Charlevoix County faces another whistleblower suit

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

For the second time in as many years, Charlevoix County officials face a whistleblower lawsuit.

The suit was filed April 8 by former Charlevoix County Building and Safety Department employee Jim Easley, who was fired in January for what commissioners called performance issues.

"There is more to the story than what Mr. Christensen (Chris Christensen, District 2 Charlevoix County Commissioner) has previously stated to the press about my client's dismissal," stated Easley's legal representation Mary Beth Kur in an e-mailed statement.

Named in the suit, which seeks in excess of $25,000, are Christensen and Charlevoix County.

"I cannot comment at this time," said Christensen.

According to Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court documents, Easley claims he was wrongfully terminated after nearly 12 years of employment as chief electrical inspector nearly two weeks after he reported county building maintenance employee Frank Shaler for doing electrical work without a license in January.

The Whistleblower Protection Act states that, "an employer shall not discharge, threaten or otherwise discriminate against an employee regarding the employee's compensation, terms, conditions or privileges of employment ... (because an employee) reports or is about to report ... a violation or suspected violation of a law or regulation or rule."

Both Easley and longtime building department head Ken Doty were fired in January by Commissioners adopted their version of ORV ordinance

Charlevoix County Commissioners adopted their version of the state's new ORV ordinance — a law which allows certain all-terrain vehicles on some road shoulders.

The ORV or off road vehicle law, which will be enforced beginning May 1, was approved following overwhelming audience support at the Thursday, April 9, public hearing at Charlevoix City Hall.

"We are ready for this ordinance," said Dennis Hass, owner of Chandler Hill Campground in Boyne Falls. "It's going to impact our business in a really positive way bringing tourism and jobs to our business specifically, which is a real nice impact."

He added, "I was glad to hear there was lots of positive comments on it tonight and I look forward to having it enacted."

Now that the ordinance has been passed locally, four-wheelers, three-wheelers, multi-track recreational vehicles, dirt bikes, motorcycles, amphibious machines and hovercraft will be allowed on the far right portion of any county designated road with the following exceptions:

• Thumb Lake Road, U.S. 131 to the Charlevoix County line:

• Boyne City/Charlevoix Road in its entirety;

• Boyne City/East Jordan Road from M-75 to the East Jordan city limits;

• Ellsworth Road from the East Jordan city limits to the Charlevoix County line;

• Marion Center Road, from Charlevoix city limits to the Charlevoix County line;

• Kings Highway, which includes Main Street, from the Light House, Sec. 26, St. James Township to East Side Drive, Sec. 34, Peaine Township, Beaver Island.

Commissioners could have chosen to prohibit off-road vehicles from 30 percent of county roads, but instead chose only 6.7 percent of what they deemed the most heavily traveled truck routes.

Charlevoix Township chose to opt out of the ordinance altogether for an additional 2.5 percent of roads.

Following what some commissioners called a trial period over the next year, some roads could be added to or removed from the list.

"This is a first blush living document," said commissioner and board chairman Chris Christensen (R-District 2).

One of the main concerns repeatedly voiced by the audience was whether riders would be cited for traveling short pieces of the prohibited roads to get from one of their properties to the next as well as driving on two tracks and certain other trails which have not been opened for use.

"Knowing these tickets will be coming through my office ... there will be a lot of warnings issued before we start writing any tickets," said Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney John Jaroma.

Federal and state highways remain off limits and ORV riders must stay with the flow of traffic and ride no later than a half-hour after dark and no earlier than a half-hour before sunrise unless they have a head and tail light.

Children younger than 16 can ride the designated shoulders once they have a safety class certificate and are under the direct supervision of an adult.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider announced during the meeting that his office will begin the first ORV safety class on May 9 with details to follow.

Visit www.charlevoixcounty.org for a copy of the ordinance. Or, call 547-7200.

Planning commission OKs Alano plan

BENJAMIN GOHS EDITOR

Groundbreaking could soon begin on a new building for the Serenity House - Charlevoix Alano Club at 106 Mason St.

Charlevoix City Planning Commission voted unanimously—commissioner Larry Boog was absent—during their April 13 regular meeting to send the plan to construct a new meeting place, on the footprint of the old Alano Club, to city council for approval.

"Last couple of years, we decided ... the building no longer suits our needs," said Alano Club Chairman of the Board of Directors Richard O'Leary. "And, after going through the procedures, the building really needed to be torn down."

He added, "It really wasn't safe."

The previous Alano Club meeting space was a two-story house which, according to Bryan Lindfors of Performance Engineering, had a foundation that was "severely weathered" and had been constructed in the late 1800s.

Other than a couple minor set backs including changes to the plan's parking lot, Charlevoix City Planner Mike Spencer said the new Alano Club meeting space and green space will mesh with the current downtown character.

The nearly complete structure seen here is actually a 36-foot by 28-foot meeting space built by the Charlevoix High School building and trades class for the Alano Club of Charlevoix. Pending approval by Charlevoix City Council as early as April 20, groundbreaking could begin at 106 Mason St. where the old Alano Club building was demolished due to its old and unsafe condition nearly a year ago.

"It's a conforming use," Spencer said. "Lodge halls, meeting halls, these types of things are accepted and allowed in the downtown business district."

The quarter-of-a-million-dollar project will include a landscape with plants and shrubs, trees, stamped concrete, patio and pathways, expanded meeting space and a basement.

The new building itself is a 36-foot by 28-foot structure which has already been built by the Charlevoix High School building and trades class with materials paid for by the Alano Club and labor donated by the students.

Charlevoix City Council has the Alano Club plan review on the agenda of their 7 p.m., Monday, April 20 meeting.

O'Leary said, pending approval, groundbreaking could begin as early as April 21 with a date anticipated to move in sometime in June.

Man escaped fire, not charges

BENJAMIN GOHS EDITOR

While he escaped an April 4 house fire in Charlevoix without serious injury, Cory Haight remains in jail.

Haight, who was in the 100 Meech St. house when it caught fire, was picked up on an unrelated matter.

"He was arrested at the scene," said Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan. "The standard procedure is to run a police records check when we're called out, and it was determined that he had a valid bench warrant for his arrest."

Haight was arrested on April 4 for third-degree retail fraud.

He was then arraigned on Tuesday, April 7 in Charlevoix's 90th District Court where he pleaded guilty to third-degree retail fraud for his part in a shoplifting incident in Boyne City.

Haight was arraigned later the same day in Charlevoix's 33rd Circuit Court where he pleaded guilty to violating a personal protection order which forbade him to have contact with his wife.

Haight was sentenced to serve 15 days in jail, with credit for three days. He is currently serving the remainder of the 15 day sentence in the Charlevoix County Jail.

Haight's wife Jennifer and three children were not at home when the blaze occurred.

The fire remains under investigation.

Sound the Alarm-Grandchildren Present

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Grandchildren are a blessing, but they can also be a burden. I am looking forward to some as I am that he'll make it through to the end of the week and is already wondering where he can hide out in peace. He may take the game of hide and seek to an all time high by disappearing for awhile. Babsitting is a reminder of why we have our children while we are young. More energy, being less forgetful and physical strength are all attributes I could use about right about now.

I did a little research on having children while you are young and found some good information besides the benefit of making another woman a younger grandma. Women for years have focused on the biological clock that ticks away the ability to still get pregnant, hold down a job and find the right person to be with. Well to and behold Lisa Belkin, journalist for the New York Times tells us that men have biological clocks too. After analyzing more than 33,000 American children the report claims that children born to men forty years old and older are more likely to have offspring with lower I.Q.'s and poorer concentration and reading skills. Across the continent a Swedish study found that the risk of bipolar disorder also increases with a father who is older than 55.

So women listen up—choosing a father for your child according to his expiration date may be one more thing a woman has to worry about when getting pregnant. A 30 year old woman may start to look at a fifty year old man as damaged goods only if she plans on childbirth. I want to make that notation clear as I feel older men have a mature outlook and have a lot to offer, it's the child-bearing I am referring to. Men in their forties who desire to have offspring might actually have to come to grips with dating and marrying women their own age while in their twenties and thirties. I am beginning to like research.

Knowing this information that both men and women have an even score card, I'm pleased to have lived long enough to see that baby making has reached a level playing field. Young parents today are already becoming more aware of the involvement that parenting is a two way street. In the last few years couples announce 'we're pregnant' rather than having the woman enjoy the entire congratulations on becoming 'with child'. Today I see more involvement of men sharing the parenting and care for their children.

I just returned home from making last minute food purchases that will keep two seventeen month old boys fairly happy even if for two minutes. To my surprise my husband did a complete child proofing reminiscent of the Survivor Series. He had bungee corded every feasible cupboard in the kitchen and protected a precious glass table with blankets and bungee corded it as well. Make-shift gates were set up so I could warm up for the next Senior Olympic trials. This is going to be a longer week than I thought. The alarm is set for 7:00 a.m. so we can be armed and ready for the track and field event of caring for twin grandsons. Now, if I can just remember where I put my bite split.

GUEST commentary

From a teacher's perspective

The following guest commentary is presented by Charlevoix High School government teacher Annemarie Conway.

Now that the community of Charlevoix has been fostered into the school district's negotiation process, I think it's important that you have some context and history from which to view things.

We formally began this bargaining cycle in March of 2008.

The teachers requested expedited bargaining, which protects both parties and generally limits the sort of collateral damage we currently see—billboards and blogs, for instance. The Board flatly declined to expedite, and we were told that they could not fully participate in bargaining until after the bond election in May 2008.

In the same spirit with which we approach all our tasks, the teachers and support staff sent out hundreds of post cards with personalized notes in support of the bond project. It passed by a sizable margin, thanks to your generosity.

Nevertheless, when both parties sat down to exchange initial proposals on May 15, 2008, the board still wasn't prepared.

We waited for six weeks. Not until June 30 did we finally receive the board's 38 page proposal—ours had been needed to expedite, and we were told that they could not fully participate in bargaining until after the bond election in May 2008.

Demo's do good

The Charlevoix County Democrats held a very successful drive on Saturday, April 4 to benefit the Boyne City Food Pantry, the Walloon Community Food Pantry and the Boyne Area Free Clinic.

The drive was held at Glen's Supermarket in Boyne City. At least 15 shopping carts were filled with grocery items and $990 in cash and checks were collected.

Many shoppers commented that they appreciated the slips of paper we handed out at the door telling them which items were needed and that we would deliver the grocery items for them.

Several also told us we should do this more often. The Charlevoix County Democrats would like to express their gratitude to Glen's and the Party volunteers who worked on the drive.

Most of all, we want to thank the people of Boyne City who so generously gave groceries or money to help those less fortunate.

We also want to thank the hard-working and dedicated volunteers of the Boyne and Walloon Food Pantries and the Boyne Area Free Clinic who truly are the backbone of their communities and inspire the rest of us to do more.

The Boyne Food Pantry is located behind Trinity Fellowship Church at 401 State St. in Boyne City.

The Walloon Community Food Pantry is located at the Walloon Community Church at 4320 M-75 in Walloon Lake and the Boyne Area Free Clinic is located at 624 State St. in Boyne City.

Volunteers make a difference

Editor:
National Volunteer Week is celebrated April 19 through 25. We take this time to recognize our dedicated volunteers. We appreciate the tremendous contribution

RSVP volunteers make to Emmet and Charlevoix Counties. Our volunteers give the gift of time and talent, helping many non-profit agencies meet their mission. Senior volunteers work tirelessly, volunteering countless hours to improve our communities and truly make a difference. We are very fortunate to have a dedicated group of men and women who assist with community need. Many local non-profit agencies could not meet their mission without the support of RSVP Volunteers. Thank you for caring and making a positive impact on your community. We value your efforts and appreciate all that you do. A heartfelt thank you to our wonderful volunteers.

Sexual assault awareness

Editor:
The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRC) joins the rest of the country in recognizing April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month. The WRC helps hundreds of individuals and families each year that have experienced this devastating crime of sexual violence at some point in their lives.

The WRC has a strong history and mission of commitment and advocacy that provides a set of tools, knowledge, networks, and expertise for intervention after sexual violence.

This history now enters an additional mission of primary prevention.

Primary prevention is taking action before any violence occurs to prevent the initial assault or victimization. Primary prevention seeks to change root causes of sexual violence; such as societal norms, attitudes, and behaviors that lead to sexual violence.

Primary prevention is about individual, relationship, community, and societal change.

The WRC is seeking social change about how our society, our culture and our own community views sexual violence.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those team members in the community who support and take action with the WRC to end violence in our community. Representatives from the Health Department, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, Char-Em ISD, faith community, and a private practice counselor and psychotherapist have joined with us to begin creating a community plan to help mobilize the change that is needed to end this destructive crime.

It is critical to get our community involved since sexual violence is a community problem and one sector alone cannot prevent this crime.

The responsibility for sexual violence prevention lies within each of us. Educate yourself and start conversations about the problem of sexual violence. Use language that respects and values diversity and empowers others. Challenge those that use degrading language or actions.

Intervene or get help if you see a friend or stranger grab or insult a woman.

Do not support companies that use commercials or ads exploiting women, and explain to children, nieces, nephews, and others that this is not okay. Help re-define what healthy masculinity looks like to end dangerous stereotypes.

Mentor youth by modeling equality in relationships. Primary prevention helps create communities where we all have the right to feel safe in our relationships, homes, neighborhoods, schools, and workplaces.

The WRC is a community supported non-profit agency serving residents in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Oshtemo counties. For more information or support, call the WRC 24-hour crisis and information line at (231) 347-0082 or (800) 275-1995.

History in the Making!

Editor:
After working with the Charlevoix Historical Society for the past few years I have come to the realization that the things we are doing today will be considered history in a hundred years.

So, it becomes important to let the community know about activities and to document some of these activities for the future archives.

I am aware of a dedicated group of people incorporated as "SeaPorts Great Lakes," who are well on their way with plans to build a replica of the famous Great Lakes Schooner, the "Challenge" right here in Charlevoix.

They are enlisting the cooperation and hands-on efforts of the entire community and already have had great cooperation from the city, the Army Corps of Engineers, Northwest Academy, Concord Academy and other schools.

This also is involving co-operation and approval of the U.S. Coast Guard and the DNR and other agencies.

The Historical Society has promised encouragement and has arranged for a power point presentation about "The Age Of Schooners" and their impact on Charlevoix, Ironton, Boyne City and East Jordan. This effort promises so much for our future. SeaPorts is arranging for this to be a "Summer of Tall Ships." From May 29 through June 1, the 135-foot three-masted schooner "Denus Sullivan" will arrive in Round Lake and there will be great festivities as well as a chance to see and board her and for those lucky school kids, to actually help sail her as crew.

At the end of June, in will come the 77-foot schooner "Inland Seas" with a complement of students, and day trips will be available for the general public on July 1 and 2.

There is hope to also bring in again the wonderful, historic, 123-foot "USS Niagara" which visited us briefly last summer.

And as a bonus the "Liberty" a gaff-rigged sloop, will be here all summer in Round Lake as a training ship and again there will be opportunities for true sailing experiences.

So we truly have history in the making right here and right now.

I hope historians will say our communities around Lake Charlevoix proudly rose to the occasion and helped bring this project to fruition.

High MEAP marks in Charlevoix and Emmet counties

BY CHRISTINA ROHN

Every school district in Charlevoix and Emmet counties — with the exception of Pellston Public Schools — met and exceeded the state MEAP averages in all subject areas.

The state assessment, which was taken by students in grades third through eighth in the fall of 2008, tested each student in math, reading, writing and English language arts. Additionally, fifth- and eighth-grade students were tested in science, and sixth-grade students were tested in social studies.

Dr. John Scholten, superintendent for Petoskey Public Schools, said he was pleased with his district's performance, which showed a 3 percent increase in math and a 4 percent increase in writing.

"Last year, we targeted our energies on math and writing, and our results have shown that our teachers are working really hard, and our students are working really hard," he said. "We're well above the state average in every area."

Mark Tompkins, first-year superintendent for Harbor Springs Public Schools, said he was happy to see his district outperform itself in every subject, except English language arts where scores remained the same, when compared to last year.

"The scores were good," he said. "I'm impressed."

Pellston Public Schools was a different story, however, with its average percentages for grades third through eighth falling 1 percent below the state average in math, and 3 percent below the state in writing. (See results in sidebar)

When compared to its previous year's MEAP scores (2007), Pellston's average percentage of students who met or exceeded the state's standards dropped significantly in every subject but math.

Pellston superintendent, Bill Tebbe, said he believes the difference in these scores can be attributed to a shift in students from last year.

"The kids taking the test this year, and the kids who took the test at the same grade level last year — like say last year's third graders are this year's fourth grade — are two different groups of kids in so many ways, so there is a difference in scores because of that."

Tebbe said the school is evaluating its curriculum, and has already made one significant change to affect next year's scores.

"All but one school district in Charlevoix and Emmet counties met or exceeded state-level standards in the 2008 MEAP assessment."

"We instituted a brand new writing program this year, K-12 — obviously the results of that won't be seen until this next year — those should pick up our writing scores," he said. "We are looking at our grade-level content to see where we need to make adjustments, in order to assure the kids have the ability to be successful on that test."

And, although East Jordan and Charlevoix public schools exceeded the state standards for 2008, their districts' average percentages dropped in several subject areas when compared to the 2007 MEAP results — East Jordan dropped 1 percent in reading, 2 percent in English language arts, 6 percent in science and 1 percent in social studies; Charlevoix dropped 3 percent in reading, 1 percent in writing and 4 percent in English language arts.

Charlevoix superintendent Chet Janik said he was not disappointed with these results.

"We like to look at the long-term trend — for many years our scores have been consistently above state average," he said. "We're continuing to look at them to see what we can improve, but overall, I have to compliment our teachers, students and parents."

Alanson Public Schools, showed significant increases in all subject areas when compared to its 2007 MEAP scores — 3 percent jump in math, 10 percent in reading, 12 percent in writing, 6 percent in English language arts, 5 percent in science and 5 percent in social studies.

When looking at the big picture, it would seem that local students, as well as students throughout the state are struggling with the writing portion of the MEAP.

In 2007, the state average for writing was 63 percent meeting or exceeding the standard. That year, Alanson and Pellston public schools fell below the average with 61 percent and 54 percent. Other districts hovered in the mid-60 to -70 percent range.

In 2008, the state average for writing increased by 3 percent to 66 percent. Pellston Public Schools was the only district to fall below this average with 63 percent passing. Beaver Island Community School and Harbor Springs Public Schools posted the highest averages, with 85 percent and 80 percent meeting the standards. The remaining districts — with the exception of the Public Schools of Petoskey with 75 percent (up 4 percent from 2007) — posted average percentages in the mid-60s. (See results in sidebar)

Mark Tompkins, superintendent for Harbor Springs Public Schools, said writing is a difficult subject area for all schools.

"I think that writing is the hardest thing to teach because it's really individualized, and it's tough work — that's an area everyone needs to improve on," he said. "I believe the state is looking at revising (the writing portion of MEAP)."

Gary Urman, Boyne Falls superintendent, said he believes writing is hard for certain students to catch onto, especially if they're not naturally creative.

"Writing isn't the easiest thing for people to do — it's almost a talent someone would have like an athletic ability," he said. "It's a creative kind of thing — sometimes I think we're trying to force kids to do it, when maybe they don't have the talents."

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS MAY 5 ELECTION

On Tuesday, May 5, the Charlevoix Public Schools will hold its annual school election. On the ballot will be two positions on the Board of Education and the non-homestead millage renewal. Below are the common questions and answers about the non-homestead millage, which is required since 1994 for every school district in Michigan.

Please feel free to contact me at 547-3204 if you have any questions or would like clarification on this issue.

Please vote May 5

Chet Janik
Superintendent

What is a "non-homestead" property tax?

It is an 18-mill tax levy on business, industrial, agricultural and rental properties within a given school district. It is NOT a tax on homeowners. Because this is a local tax levy on businesses, Charlevoix Schools would lose the entire amount of money raised by this tax if the millage request is denied.

How much money is raised by 18 mills?

The amount varies from district to district, depending on the combined value of property in that district. For Charlevoix, the 18 mills represent $ 7.7 million — or about 75% — of the district's total operating budget.

Why do we need to vote on this renewal?

When state lawmakers implemented Proposal A — which shifted most of the financing of education from property taxes to the increased state sales tax — they felt it was important to retain a local voice in the funding system. This "local voice" took shape as voter approval of the "non-homestead" millage, which is levied only against non-homeowner property, yet must be approved by all residents, including homeowners.

Will my home property tax rates go up if I vote yes?

No. Your home property tax rate will remain the same.

What happens if I vote yes?

For homeowners and businesses alike, nothing will change. Homeowners do not pay this tax anyway, and businesses will simply continue to pay a tax they have been paying all along. For the Charlevoix School District, a yes vote will mean a continuation of $ 7.7 million worth of direct local funding.

What happens if I vote no?

For homeowners, nothing will happen. For the Charlevoix School District, a no vote will mean the loss of $ 7.7 million in direct tax revenue. The rate will drop only for commercial, industrial and rental business; however, the direct loss of this funding would adversely affect all educational programs.

Can the District use bond money to cover expenses?

No. While the District receives revenue from the 1999 and 2008 bonds, these funds are restricted by law to bond projects and cannot be used for general fund expenses.

Left, Gerald (Jerry) of Charlevoix and Ft. Myers, Fla. died March 26, 2009. Arrangements pending. Complete obituary will follow.

Diversity and end-of-life care will be the topic of the 16th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference "Diversity and End-of-Life Care" will be the topic of the upcoming Hospice Foundation of America's 16th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference.

This year's program, sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital, Hospice of NW Michigan and the Health Department of NW Michigan, is from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 29 at Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lakeshore Drive, Charlevoix.

This year's teleconference will focus on how diversity influences end-of-life decision making and the impact that culture has at the time of death and during bereavement.

One of the goals of the teleconference is to increase sensitivity by helping professionals acknowledge how their own cultural values and assumptions influence the delivery of care. The program will include a special examination of hospice care and diversity, including how hospices are reaching out to diverse groups and incorporating traditional practices and alternative therapies.

The program will also discuss the challenges that may occur when culture considerations may cause ethical concerns or moral distress.

Moderated by Frank Sesno, Professor of Media and Public Affairs at The George Washington University and Special Correspondent with CNN, the national panel of noted authorities includes: Samira K. Beckwith, President and CEO of Hope Hospice and Community Services; Sandy Chen Stokes, Executive Director, Chinese/American Coalition for Compassionate Care; Kenneth J. Doka, Professor of Gerontology, Graduate School of the College of New Rochelle; Wanda H. Jenkins, Bereavement Services Manager, Vitas; Richard Payne, Director, Institute on Care at the End of Life, Duke University; Paul Rosenblatt, Professor, College of Education & Human Development, University of Minnesota; and Carlos Sandoval-Cros, Rev., St. Simon's Episcopal Church, and psychiatrist, private practice.

Save big bucks on health tests

Wellness Wednesdays at Charlevoix Area Hospital just $12

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What kind of a price would you put on your health?

At Charlevoix Area Hospital's Wellness Wednesdays, anyone interested can get a health screening which includes cholesterol and blood glucose level tests, a body mass index (BMI) score, a blood pressure reading, a blood pressure log and pedometer all for $12.

"I have been finding that people do not want to get their cholesterol checked if they do not have insurance because it can cost hundreds of dollars," said Kathleen Jacobson a registered nurse with Charlevoix Area Hospital's Community Health Education program. "It's very important because people don't feel high cholesterol, but it is a major risk factor for heart disease, heart attack and stroke."

Kathleen Jacobson

The Wellness Wednesdays event is scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., May 6.

Walk-ins are welcome or you may call 547-8906 to schedule an appointment. Jacobson said the entire visit will take 10 minutes per person and could end up saving their life.

"I would think having high blood pressure, high blood sugar or high cholesterol would be a motivator in some cases," she said. "We can't do anything about heredity, but we can eat right and exercise."

This program, which is funded by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Association, will continue for as long as there is community interest. "With the present economic conditions, we have a population that's getting heavier and eating more unhealthy food that is cheap," Jacobson said. "I think if we can start making changes by getting the message out before it's too late."

Test results will be given at the time of testing. "They'll (participants) get their test results in five minutes," Jacobson said. "This is not a blood draw. It's just a finger prick." According to Jacobson, the consultation will be tailored to each person by a registered nurse.

For just $12 anyone can have their BMI, blood sugar, cholesterol and blood pressure checked at Charlevoix Area Hospital's Wellness Wednesday. Participants will have their test results in five to 10 minutes and only a prick to the finger—not a full blood draw—is necessary.

EAST PARK EGG-STRAVAGANZA

Organizers of the annual Easter egg hunt in Charlevoix's newly remodeled East Park said this was a record year for participants. Hundreds of people from all over the region and state attended the event. Here the children in the 3- and 4-year-old egg pen hunt for their share of nearly 5,000 eggs in total.

Act of kindness

Harbor View Cafe owner Elizabeth Rich was awestruck when an anonymous local business owner approached her about his or her idea of paying it forward by paying for all the meals for Rich's customers on Wednesday, April 8. Rich said she thought it was a great act of kindness especially during a time when so many people are hurting financially.

Good breakfast, good Karma

Rachel Boss and her daughter Lilly are seen following breakfast on Wednesday, April 8 at Harbor View Cafe. An anonymous local business owner paid for all the meals of patrons that day in an apparent "pay it forward" campaign. Paying it forward, also a hit movie, is the practice of doing something nice for someone in hopes that they will do nice for someone else in turn.

Anonymous benefactor: Pay it forward

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Patrons of the Harbor View Cafe got something strange with their meal last Wednesday.

In addition to being told their food, drink and gratuity were already paid for, they were asked to consider participating in their own act of benevolence.

"Someone who works for a local business owner just kind of came in on Monday (April 6) and presented the proposal," said Harbor View Cafe owner Elizabeth Rich. "I thought it was a wonderful thing."

The proposal was simple: The anonymous person or persons would reimburse Rich for all meals given throughout the business day of April 8.

Upon each customer's guest check, which arrived at the end of the meal, was printed the following: "Your meal and your server's gratuity are the treat of an anonymous business owner today. All he asks is that you consider doing something kind and unexpected for someone else in the next week or perhaps take the money you would have spent there and contribute it or spend it elsewhere in our community. Thanks!"

The restaurant, located at 100 East Antrim St. in the Oleson's Plaza, served more than 100 customers between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. that day.

Local resident Rachel Boss, who ate breakfast with a friend and her daughter, was shocked by the gesture.

"Not many people do these kinds of things these days," she said. "It is very kind."

Rich said the anonymous benefactor did something similar in another community, wherein he owns a business, with great success.

"One of our first customers just said 'thanks' and left a $20 bill on the table for the server," she said.

The anonymous business owner paid nearly $900 to cover the cost of all the meals and tips.

"My whole dining room was full at lunchtime," Rich said. "I did get some neat comments like 'I hope it comes back to you 10 fold.'"

Other pleased patrons told Rich they were going to donate money to local schools and even help the family who were victim of a recent house fire.

"I had an older couple that came in and said 'wow,'" she said. "They had toyed with the idea and decided to have their 99-year-old mother come to live with them. They were on the way to the hospital to pick her up and decided to stop off for lunch."

Rich added, "They were doing a good deed and it made them feel even better about their decision."

While many speculated on just who the benefactor was, Rich said he wished to remain completely anonymous.

"To be honest," Rich said "It's so secret even I don't know who they are."

Rich forwarded some of the positive comments via the philanthropic phantom's agent who, in turn, reported that the benefactor was pleased.

New coach eager to lead young team

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Rayder boys' golf face season with a new coach and a mix of new and experienced players. In what will be their first year without long-time golf coach Jim Glynn, the Charlevoix boys' golf team has its fair share of challenges and strengths.

"I'm very excited," said coach Doug Drenth. "We are returning many excellent players including the Ty Jones, Gunner Whitley and Wyatt Drost—all with Varsity experience—along with players Thomas Rich, Nick Brandi, Beau Boss and Connor Boss who have shown a lot of

With 13 golfers, the boys' numbers are right on from years past.

And, Drenth said, he has much faith in his four incoming freshmen as well as his returning All-Conference player sophomore Drost and honorable mention All-Conference players—juniors Jones and Whitley.

Drenth added that, last season, the Rayder boys' were the third place defending Michigan High School Athletic Association District Champions in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rayders will meet their first competition of the season on April 16 in Indian River. The boys' most fierce rival, Drenth said, "Traverse City St. Francis—they are a perennial state power."

Local Buddhists seek best selves

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

While Buddhism has existed for dozens of centuries, it has been practiced in Charlevoix for fewer than 30 years.

The Soka Gakkai International USA form of Buddhism practiced by Charlevoix resident Jeanne McGhee stems from the teachings of the ancient Nepalese prince Nichiren Daishonin who gave up his title and riches to pursue enlightenment.

"First: There are as many Buddha sects as there are Christian sects," McGhee said. "We're not Zen or Dalai Lama."

Fellow Buddhist Melinda

Kelley said Soka Gakkai differs from other sects of Buddhism mainly because it teaches that all people are equal and that all—regardless of financial, racial, sexual, religious orientation—are welcome to the practice of Buddhism.

"Before Nichiren Buddhism, it was mainly for priests and it wasn't accessible to lay-people," Kelley said.

Through faith, practice and study of the religion, Buddhists seek to increase their own personal happiness, care for others and decrease suffering.

"We really don't debate doctrine," said Buddhist Nadia Mathison. "We take on our own life, to transform it into value by changing whatever situation we encounter in our lives and raising our life condition."

McGhee said the goal is to bring out each individual's "Buddhahood" or highest human potential.

"We really focus on the present moment. What am I needing to change to achieve and really bring forth the power that we have?" Kelley said. "We are not helpless; we are not destined to suffer just because something really bad happened. We can transform it into something positive."

Soka Gakkai Buddhists do not convene for a church type service before a pastor, priest, imam or rabbi. They instead gather for discussion in a circle with a scroll called the Gohonzon which is inscribed by Nichiren, and then they chant the words "Nam-myoho-enge-kyo."

"Nam" means to devote oneself

"Myoho" means mystic law.

"Renge" means lotus flower. Since a lotus flower simultaneously produces seeds when it blooms, it is used to represent cause and effect.

"Kyo" means Buddha's voice or teachings.

Buddhists believe that, by chanting "Nam-myoho-enge-kyo" one can attain unsurpassed enlightenment, happiness and peace.

Buddhist Donna Ruhling said, "Buddhism is the belief that there is an innate wisdom, compassion and courage in all of us. It's kind of like the Wizard of Oz when Dorothy realizes that all of those things: heart, brains, courage, were all within her. She had the answers."

"Everyone has that creative value in them. You won't know, unless you chant, what the chant does for you," McGhee said. "And, we do not blame or put down others. You are in charge of your own self."

And, the ladies said, since Buddha is not a deity, anyone of any faith can be Buddhist.

"Jesus was Buddha, Martin Luther King (Jr.) was Buddha, Gandhi was Buddha," McGhee said.

For more information on Soka Gakkai Buddhism, go to www.sgi-usa.org

To attend one of the area's monthly meetings, call (231) 687-1548 for more information

The Charlevoix Public Library also has books, newsletters and magazines all about Soka Gakkai Buddhism, which is practiced by nearly 12 million people in more than 190 countries.

Spring non-motorized trail presentation

Fewer than 15 years ago, the vision for a comprehensive non-motorized trail system throughout Northern Michigan was just that.

Today, with more than 270 miles of existing, or soon to be constructed trails, recreational enthusiasts can now safely enjoy contiguous routes from Charlevoix to Alpena, Gaylord to Mackinaw City, Petoskey to Cheboygan, and well beyond.

"Trails in the Tip," a presentation sponsored by the Top of Michigan Trails Council (TOMTC) will detail the many features of one of the most strikingly beautiful and highly regarded non-motorized trail systems in North America. The event is scheduled for 7 p.m. to 8 p.m., Thursday, April 30 at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 West Clinton St. Emily Meyerson, Northern Lower Peninsula Trailways Coordinator, and Charlie McGinnis, TOMTC President will serve as keynote speakers for the event.

Among the many discussion topics will include new trail projects and future plans, community benefits, potential partnerships for facilities along the trails, as well as an overview of the successful efforts of the Trails Council. You will hear about the network of trails that link communities as far from Charlevoix to Alpena, Gaylord to Mackinaw City and Petoskey to Cheboygan and beyond.

A brief question and answer period will round out the presentation, and all trail users and interested parties are encouraged to attend.

The TOMTC Annual Meeting is at 10 a.m., Wednesday, May 13 in the lower level of the Carnegie Building in Petoskey.

"National Trails Day" will be celebrated with an organized ride along the North Central State Trail beginning at 8:30 a.m., June 6 in Wolverine.

The event will conclude with lunch and prizes, and several area vendors will attend.

For more information about these and other upcoming events, activities, and volunteer opportunities, please contact TOMTC Executive Director Anne McDevitt at (231) 348-8280 or tomic@freeway.net, info@trailsCouncil.org or visit www.trailsCouncil.org

Tea party turns to shouting match

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

You might have heard of the Boston Tea Party, but the Charlevoix Conservative Tea Party?

While there wasn't any actual tea thrown into Charlevoix's harbor last Saturday, the protest of President Barack Obama's spending practices by some evoked strong responses from several passersby of tea party headquarters at 1214 Bridge St. "I guess they don't like Obama because of the stuff (he's) doing," said Shonda Carpenter, who was out for a bike ride on April 11, and decided to stop in front of the protest and voice her own opinion. "But people (have) got to pay taxes anyway."

She added, "I think Obama's doing a damn good job."

Carpenter, an 18-year-old who said she voted for Obama in the 2008 presidential election said the protest was "petty."

The Charlevoix Conservative Tea Party was a preview of the national Tax Day Tea Party, an event with the same theme, scheduled nationwide for Wednesday, April 15—also known as tax day.

Organizers of the Charlevoix Conservative Tea Party stood with signs which stated "Obama: Commander And Thief." "God only requires 10%," "The Revolution is Brewing" and "Don't Tread On Me."

The women were serenaded by a chorus of honking horns from passing cars and even a pedestrian who shouted an epithet-peppered statement in support of Obama.

In the background, the Rush Limbaugh Show emanated from the stereo of a car parked at conservative tea party headquarters.

"It's not just about taxes," said tea party organizer Michelle Brock. "It's his agenda: Higher taxes, socialism, big government—I don't want the government telling me what to do."

Fellow tea party organizer Patty Sitzema said she just wants to see Americans treated equally.

"We expect that the taxes we pay now shouldn't have to reflect what our kids pay in the future," she said. "He needs to learn his foreign policy... and when he talks to foreign leaders he doesn't bow."

Main tea party organizer Sheryl Denny said, while there was some negative feedback throughout the day, most of the response to their protest was positive.

Denny invited anyone interested to come out to the Tax Day Tea Party observance beginning at noon on Wednesday, April 15 at 1214 Bridge St., next door to Small Engines Unlimited.

Free Tax

Preparation is still available from the Northwest Michigan Community Action Agency (NMCAA). Volunteers have been trained to prepare and electronically file both federal and state returns which will include checking for any tax credits the customers may qualify for such as the Earned Income Credit, Child Care Credit, Property Tax Credit, and the Home Heating Credit. Low to moderate income families and individuals, seniors, persons with disabilities and those with limited-English proficiency will qualify. While waiting for their appointment, customers will be given the opportunity to complete a brief needs assessment to help NMCAA determine if there are other needs that the agency may assist with. To make an appointment for this free service, call (231) 347-9070 or (800) 443-5518.

The NMCAA office is located at 2202 Mitchell Park Drive #4 in Petoskey.

Two arraigned in Michigan Officeways theft

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

An East Jordan husband and wife were arraigned April 14, accused of stealing and concealing nearly $40,000 worth of cash and goods from Michigan Officeways of Charlevoix.

Laura Lynne Patton, 42, was charged with a 10-year and/or $15,000 felony of embezzlement greater than $20,000, but less than $50,000 and a 10-year and/or $10,000 felony of using a computer to commit a crime; husband Rodney Patton, 43, was charged with a five-year and/or $10,000 felony of receiving and concealing stolen property more than $1,000, but less than $20,000.

"The allegations are that she (Laura Lynne) was a long-time employee and that she took funds and property," said Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema.

According to the investigation report by Det. Cpl. Todd Reeves of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Laura Lynne used her position as manager and purchasing agent for Michigan Officeways to buy vacuums, cameras, computers and peripherals, fuel and hardware supplies without authorization.

"We're pleased that the investigation went so well," said Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider. "Our detective did a great job on it and hopefully we're going to try to recover some of the monies that Michigan Officeways lost."

The Pattons face a 2:30 p.m., May 4 preliminary examination.

"How serious is this?" said Jarema. "This is a small community, and being a small business owner you have to trust your employees. Obviously she violated that trust."

He added, "When you find out someone in your own business is stealing from you, it's pretty tough to take."

City Council looks for exploratory committee?

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix City Council approved the search for an exploratory committee to consider seeking a recreation authority for Mt. McSauba during their April 20 meeting.

City recreation director Ike Boss said he would like to propose a two-tenths of a mill levy to the taxpayers, which could generate $139,000 to support the ski hill's operational and capital expenditures as early as this November.

"The city, for the last 34 years, has subsidized the operation of Mt. McSauba anywhere from $20,000 a year to quarter million dollars depending on what was going on out there," he said. "I think the time has come for the area to support this rather than just the city taxpayers to support it."

Boss, who plans to meet with Charlevoix, Manon and Hayes townships to discuss sharing the burden of cost said he would like to see a recreation authority created to allow area residents to use the winter park for free.

"If we pass this proposal, everybody in these townships and the city would ski free and rent free; lessons would be half price," he said. "And then if you didn't belong to this authority you would pay full price ... which would still generate $20,000 a year with fees over and above what these taxes (2/10 mill) would bring in."

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said he thinks the formation of an exploratory committee is a great idea.

"Obviously there are still some questions that need to be answered," Straebel said. "And, the more we can incorporate the different townships that would be affected by this, the better off the proposal would be."

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. also supported the venture, but emphasized the need for input from the entire community on the matter before moving forward.

"(I'm) just getting ideas to see if they want to form a committee," Boss said, and added that he wants equal representation on any potential committee which may be formed.

I want to see two people from each township and the city on this," he said.

Boss said the matter is in the early stages of mere discussion, but added that everyone he has talked to so far has thought the speculative authority was a good idea.

"If you have a hundred thousand dollar home you pay taxes on $50,000; it'll cost you $10 a year so every child, every adult can ski and use the skating rink," he said. "There are a lot of needy children in this area. We have a free day for (kids) ... and this is the only time that 80 percent of the children in town get the chance to skiing, get lessons and have a good time."

Boss said he merely wants the go-ahead from the council to meet with the surrounding townships and discuss the matter with them.

Boss' current budget is approximately $110,000 per year. And, Boss said, the extra nearly $50,000 each year could be used for capital improvements such as maintaining groomers, snow guns, the snowboarding park, sledding hill, skating rink and rope tows.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's next Business After Hours is scheduled from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., May 14 at the Charlevoix Yacht Club, 209 Ferry Ave. in Charlevoix.

This event will be co-hosted by the Charlevoix Courier newspaper and the yacht club.

Planned Power Outage

A fifteen minute planned power outage will take place at 9:30 p.m. on Monday, April 27.

The outage will affect downtown businesses between Antrim Street and the drawbridge, and from the marina west to State Street.

The outage is required for City of Charlevoix crews to perform necessary maintenance on the city's power grid.

Charlevoix could receive fire grants

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

From thousand dollar breathing apparatus to a $26,000 portable heart defibrillator, fire and EMT services are not cheap.

But, according to Charlevoix City Fire Chief Paul Ivan, there is help available through Department of Homeland Security grants.

"Out of six or seven years, we have been awarded two grants," Ivan said. "We got almost $70,000 for all new breathing apparatus in 2003 and another $5,000 (in recent years)."

The Department of Homeland Security Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AIFG) Program is open to Michigan fire departments and various non-affiliated emergency medical service groups.

Applications are due by 5 p.m., May 20.

Ivan said his department is in need of several items.

"The past couple years we've been talking about entering a county-wide grant to replace some of our ALS (advanced life support or heart) monitors," he said. "We are in the process of seeing what needs we have and putting together a proposal."

According to a recent press release by U.S. Senators Debbie Stabenow (D-MI) and Carl Levin (D-MI), the firefighter assistance grants will total nearly $510 million to "improve the effectiveness of operations and health and safety programs and to establish or expand fire prevention programs throughout the United States."

"The brave men and women that serve Michigan as fire fighters and first responders protect families and communities when emergencies arise," Stabenow stated. "I encourage Michigan fire departments and EMS organizations across the state to apply for this vital funding, which will help provide them with the best possible equipment and training." For more information visit www.firegrantsupport.com or call (866) 274-0960.

Local soldier injured in Afghanistan

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Army Sergeant R. Troy Drebenstedt was traveling a road near Pakistan's border when his personnel carrier was flipped by a roadside bomb.

The IED or improvised explosive device sent the South African-made armored personnel carrier tumbling, severely injuring Drebenstedt and some of his men.

"He's been in Afghanistan since the first of the year ... and he served 14 months in Iraq, but this is the first time I've really been concerned for him," said Troy's father Bob Drebenstedt. "We were in Oklahoma when we found out. He ... called and got a hold of Marliiss (Bob Drebenstedt's wife). She was driving to the grocery store he said. 'You better pull over to the side of the road.'"

He added, "He kept telling her, 'Mom, I'm OK, I'm OK. I don't know what would have happened if she would have gotten that phone call from the Army.'"

The 25-year-old soldier was ejected when the truck rolled. It rolled over his legs, damaging his lower ligaments and he had numerous shards of glass stuck in his body.

"You think you're prepared for it," Bob said.

Troy is now recuperating and on restricted duty. Even though he received trauma to his internal organs from the blast and crash, he was able to get up and move around in the weeks following the incident which occurred in late March.

Troy has served six years in the army on active duty and he is currently with the Sapper combat engineering unit which does everything from build bridges and roads to remove mines and construct airfields.

Troy's specific duty within the troop is to watch for road mines and roadside bombs.

"He's healing," Bob said. "When his 30 days of light duty are done the army will send him home for a couple weeks."

He added, "The way he's talking he's going right back at it, but we haven't heard anything from the Army."

Their biggest fear is that internal injuries can crop up many months after a concussion from explosions happens.

Bob said, "We'll have to watch him closely." He said, "But, he called the other day saying he was in barracks going stir crazy."

Troy's group had been watching insurgents cross the Pakistani border into Afghanisstan on a relatively regular basis. "My last conversation with him was, 'We need like 400,000 troops, not 4,000,'" Bob said. "They (the enemy) walk around in regular clothes with a machine gun over their shoulder and you can't fire unless fired upon."

He added, "A lot more is happening there than most (people) know. It is being watered down tremendously from ... news reporting on what's going on with soldiers over there."

Due to his remote location, Troy could not be reached via e-mail for comment by press time.

School board candidates speak out

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will be hosting a candidates forum for the May 5 school board election.

The Forum will be held 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 28 in community room B at the library. Mona Bergeon will moderate the event which is open to the public.

The four candidates vying for a spot on the Board are incumbents Dean Spenceley and Christine Michaud and newcomers Kevin Pearsall and Mike Pearsall.

The forum is intended to assist residents in making an educated decision before heading to the voting booth.

Participants will have an opportunity to ask questions of the candidates.

Alano groundbreaking

Crews wasted no time in breaking ground on the site of the new Alano Club building located at 106 Mason St. in Charlevoix. City council approved unanimously the club's plan to erect a new building in the general footprint of their old building which was demolished nearly a year ago. The machine seen here is digging a hole which will soon become a basement for the 36-foot by 28-foot building.

Keep your brown fat active

Brown fat sounds more like something that has been left in the refrigerator too long that like an important aspect of human health.

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

But, much as it must seem that we know nearly everything about how humans work, new things are being discovered constantly. Brown fat is one of those new things. The fat we most worry about seems to just sit there or even accumulate over time. Most of us carry pounds of it, meant as a reserve of portable food in case times get tough and we have to live for at time without daily eating. Fat has the highest energy for the lowest weight of any of our normal food, whether it is what we are eating or what we have stored away in those unsightly bulges for an uncertain future. Brown fat, by contrast is extremely active and is part of the reason we are able to adapt to cold climates, even though our evolutionary history is certainly in the tropics.

When we are exposed to cold temperatures, whatever brown fat we have speeds up our metabolism and help maintain our nice warm body temperature. Babies have considerable brown fat, as do all small mammals, especially bats. For a long time, until very recently, it was thought that our baby brown fat disappeared as we grew up, but recent research shows that human adults often retain some small amount of brown fat. The amount is different from one adult to another, and may help explain why some of us have persistent weight problems while others seem to eat and stay slim. How could brown fat help us maintain appropriate weight? Exposure to cold seems to be one way. Researchers have even joked about opening cold spas for weight control.

Sitting in a cold room apparently encourages any brown fat we have to begin using up calories at a great rate, and weight loss follows. It need not be chillingly cold. Any temperature below 60 degrees will stimulate. Providing another reason to keep the thermostat low in winter, even more personally important that reducing energy costs. Why do small animals, including human infants have abundant brown fat to help keep them warm? Any small animal has to have a high metabolic rate just to maintain its body temperature. Hibernating bats hang out in cold caves, but need to keep up some body temperature all winter.

Active brown fat is the answer. Finally, something much like brown fat even operates in the plant kingdom. It provides for the early blooming of the Eastern Skunk Cabbage, which can melt its way through late snows in March and is currently in full bloom. Those flowers have a heat-producing metabolism that is as rapid as that of the smallest, coldest bat. It seems to be fueled by burning fat in large amounts.

So, cherish your small amount of adult brown fat. Eat all the chocolate you want, but keep that brown fat active.

Shingy things not always worth the effort

Last Wednesday evening, on that precious first day of warming where you can smell the earth waking up, I heard the loons.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

There is a nesting pair that returns to Nowland Lake each year, and for those of us on Wickersham Road who are winter-weary it is the arrival of the loons, even more than the opening of Dairy Griffe, that confirms Spring's return. I heard the loons through the open window of my daughters' freshly painted bedroom, where I stood giving thanks to God that there were people who would, for a price, spare me from the tedious, dirty work of painting. The redecorating project is my daughter's 10th birthday present, a makeover probably too long in coming. As much as I hate to paint, if she'd been counting on me to get it done the project might have been finished in time for high school graduation.

But now the flowered wallpaper with dusty rose trim is gone and the walls shine with bright blues and greens lifted from the pages of an L.L. Bean summer catalog. The colors of the new room make for a real eye popping experience, but the real eye-opener for me came on the afternoon we emptied her room in preparation for the painter. The volume of my daughters' "collections" should be measured in dump truck loads

In that kid's economy every little trinket is a treasure. The plastic this-or-that that looks like junk to me is to her a cherished heirloom, and so must be kept forever. My daughter has so much of this stuff that for Christmas this year she asked to receive, as her main gift, containers. My old Norwood neighbor, Dick Bartosik, used to refer to too much stuff in one spot as "two tons of fertilizer in a one ton truck."

Farmer that he was, Dick used language that was, shall we say, a little more earthy, but his vision still captured the condition of my daughter's room. There was just too much stuff, and a great deal of it had much in common with fertilizer. I considered how this "two tons of fertilizer" principle applied to my own life, and quickly admitted that in my barn, office, and garage I had too much stuff. A great deal of it was just that: stuff. Stuff I had accumulated and acquired, and stuff I no longer used or needed. Suffice it to say, I haven't thrown much away over the years. My mind went to first John and his caution against loving the world and the things of the world. The world system uses an economic currency that does transactions in cash but actually trades in power, prestige and position. The things John cautions about, the stuff we accumulate, are the means of keeping score. Whoever dies with the most stuff wins. John goes on to tell us that it is our lusts we have to manage, and asserts there are three forms of lust against which we must guard our hearts and mind. First, there is the lust of the eye, through which we desire what we see. Many Americans don't distinguish well between needs and wants, so there are huge numbers of households in the hole because we see stuff, we want stuff, and we buy stuff. Indeed, the engine of our economy has long been the credo veni, vidi, vici - I came, I saw, I charged it. Next is the lust of the flesh, through which we seek after those things that give us pleasure. Buying stuff makes us feel good, so we treat ourselves. I read research lately that documents the deep satisfaction some women derive from buying shoes, which explains a lot of the problem on my wife's end of the closet. Third, John cautions on the lust of pride. Pride is why we pay more for a pair of jeans with the popular label, and why we buy stuff to impress other people. The guy with the $5000 Rolex doesn't just want to know what time it is. So I stood in my barn staring at my own pile of stuff, and I did a little mental exercise you may wish to try. Look at any item in the pile and try to remember what you probably paid for it, back when it was new and you just had to have it. Now, divide that by the approximate amount of your hourly pay. The answer represents the number of hours of your life you traded for that pile of stuff. The hours of your life, a finite quantity given to you by God, are all you have. They are just too precious to exchange for another ton of fertilizer. Stephen Guthrie directs Christian Counseling Services in Charlevoix. By appointment at (231) 675-4682.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Nature did it alone. Editor: Jordan River Watershed. Many words have been written both for and against creating deep water wells in Albe to dispose of leachate from Bay Harbor.

In reading the latest issue of "Trout," a publication of Trout Unlimited, I came across the following quote. This should put an end to the matter for anyone with any sense. From Harry Plunket Greene, "Where the Bright Waters Meet" (1936):

"Nature did it alone, as she always will if you will not try to go one better. The secret of this river was that its watershed was fed by springs as clear and clean as crystal. In its three miles run from the source it had no chance to pick up pollution. There were no mills to discharge their waste products into those pure waters. The spawning beds were spotless, the weed and gravel ventratable provision stores, and the only worry in the lives of its inhabitants was the man on the bank."

BASES Executive Director Vote for Spenceley Editor: To the registered voters of the Charlevoix School District. Even though being on the school board can be a thankless job, it has been my pleasure to help guide this school district for the last four years. Once again I am asking for your vote on May 5 to retain my seat on the Charlevoix Board of Education. In this year's election you have the opportunity to vote for four people to fill two seats. Quite honestly I believe we are all worthy and capable candidates.

My hat goes off to anyone that runs for this position and is willing to give freely of their time. There is so much to be learned as a school board member and always so much that needs to be done. I've been thrilled with all the things that have been accomplished even though sometimes I cringe at the time it takes to complete them. My experience on this board has taught me more about patience, commitment and compromise than I would really like to admit. I can tell you that myself, the rest of this board, the administration, our teachers and support staff are committed to the education of all of our children and it truly shows.

I sincerely wish all of us running could be elected but obviously that is not how it works. There can only be two seats filled and I truly would appreciate your vote for one of them. I will work hard to accomplish plish the things we set out to do and continue working hard for all our children's education and most of all stay focused on the positive things that the Charlevoix students work so hard to be recognized for.

I've been told more than once by community members in other districts that if they could emulate any school in northern Michigan it would be Charlevoix. That says a lot about all the community members that give of their time in whatever way to make Charlevoix schools one of the best in Michigan.

In closing I would like to say: When you vote on May 5, know that, if you vote for me, you are voting for a community member who wants nothing but the best for our kids. Dean Spenceley, Charlevoix. Do your part. Fulfill. "Don't underestimate the power of people who join together they can accomplish amazing things." -President Barack Obama

President Obama has raised the challenge for every citizen to take individual responsibility to make our communities the best they can be. For the past 32 years, volunteers at the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRC) have been doing just that. The WRC was originally founded in 1977 by a group of community activists and today continues to rely on the time and energy of volunteers to fulfill the agency's mission of supporting women and families in northern Michigan.

National Volunteer Week, April 19-25, provides the ideal opportunity to honor the many achievements of the WRC volunteer team. Over 3,070 hours of service were donated to the WRC in the past year through the dedication and commitment of our volunteers.

The volunteer staff serve on the Board of Directors, support families at the Safe Home, ring up sales at the Gold Mine Resale Shops, assist with agency mailings, answer the 24-hour crisis phone line, style hair at the Safe Home, do facility upkeep and maintenance, and other important tasks.

Hundreds of individuals and families served by the WRC in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Oshtemo counties benefit from the talents of our volunteers. Last year alone, the WRC provided critical, life-changing services to over 530 victims of domestic abuse in our community with 2,365 nights of housing provided to 177 women and children at the Safe Home. These vital services could not be provided without the support of our volunteers. Please join us in acknowledging the multitude of amazing accomplishments achieved each and every day by WRC volunteers. Jamie Winters, Safe home coordinator

Directoress served two decades

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

She's been a wife, mother artist and, up until early June, she will have been a teacher for 20 years.

Children's House Directoress Barbara Godwin-Chulick has toiled with the decision of whether to retire from her post for much of the last year.

"I have been praying about it especially for much of the last school year and I know I've got great, great people working with me and my hesitation has been waiting to find just the right fit," she said. "It takes a really special person to do this kind of work and I feel like we have that in Molly Arnold."

Arnold, 27, will take over as directoress when Godwin-Chulick, 59, retires on the last day of school, June 5.

"She (Molly) is just wonderful with the kids, and they really love her. It's really a good fit."

Godwin-Chulick followed her children through the school and after they moved on to elementary school, she began as a teacher.

"Gradually I took more responsibilities on and became more involved," she said. "Opportunities opened up ... and I took the training and kind of re-directed my life from my pottery studio where I'd been for 20 years."

Godwin-Chulick has served as directoress of the school, which serves children from ages 2 to 6-and-a-half through the Montessori Method, for nearly eight years.

"It's my heart," she said. "I give my heartfelt gratitude and appreciation to them (families) for them entrusting their children into my care."

Godwin-Chulick added, "It has been an honor, an absolute honor, to serve these children and these families."

Through the years, Godwin-Chulick has taught and overseen the education of hundreds of youngsters.

"There are so many things that really stand out," she said. "Those teachable moments when they just get it and they say, 'I can do it myself!'"

Godwin-Chulick added, "Whether it's zipping a zipper or peeling an egg, there are just little moments that we celebrate that love of learning."

With time to devote back to her original passion, Godwin-Chulick said she will reinvest her love of pottery and will even spend more time helping the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

"I also want to be able to do more volunteer work in the community," she said. "I go to Christ Episcopal Church and would like to have more time to get involved there."

She added, "It's a new beginning. I'm on a big learning curve right now — just like the kids that come into here, I'm looking forward to anything that comes up."

An open house and celebration of Godwin-Chulick's career will occur in the early afternoon of Sunday, May 17, at 8700 Mercer Road, Charlevoix.

The start time is currently ten

Quiz Bowl teams getting ready for State Championship

Teams from four schools competed in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Quiz Bowl Invitational at Charlevoix High School.

The schools were selected based on their overall performance during the regular season of the Char-Em ISD Quiz Bowl League.

The four top finishing schools in the Class C and Class D divisions faced off in two semifinal matches to determine which two teams would compete for the championship, the culminating event of the 2008-2009 season.

The high schools competing were East Jordan, Northwest Academy, Charlevoix, and Concord Academy-Petoskey.

Beaver Island had qualified but was unable to attend.

In the first semifinal Northwest Academy defeated East Jordan in the closest match of the night.

After the first half Northwest was ahead 55 to 35.

After the first lightning round East Jordan moved ahead 95 to 65. After the final lightning round Northwest Academy managed to tie the score at 105 to 105.

To decide the contest the tiebreaker question was as follows: Sites in and around this city include Ebenezer Baptist Church, Fort McPherson, the birthplace of Margaret Mitchell, and the Carter Presidential Center. Located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, name this largest city and capital of Georgia.

Northwest Academy buzzed in first and won the game with the correct answer of Atlanta, Georgia.

Charlevoix High School narrowly defeated Concord Academy of Petoskey 135 to 115 to earn a spot in the championship round.

This game was tied 55 to 55 at the half.

Charlevoix took a 115 to 55 lead after the first lightning round but just managed to hold on a surging Concord Academy team to win 135 to 115.

For the final game Charlevoix built an almost insurmountable lead in the first half over Northwest Academy with a score of 135 to 10.

Northwest Academy rallied somewhat during the first lightning round and headed into the final lightning round trailing 175 to 60.

Charlevoix then iced the championship by nearly sweeping the round with their topic of Elections and Electioneering. Final score Charlevoix 245, Northwest 60.

Schools in the Char-Em service area interested in joining quiz bowl may call Barry Cole at 547-9947.

Charlevoix is coached by Pete Scholten, Northwest

Academy by Kurt Grangood and Cindy Romero, East Jordan by Jennifer Richardson, and Concord Academy by Maggie Rumpca. All four teams qualified during the regular league season for the Quiz Bowl State Championships hosted by the Michigan State University Honors College April 24 and 25. Beaver Island and Petoskey are also heading to the State Championship.

Schools in the Char-Em service area interested in joining quiz bowl may call Barry Cole at 547-9947.

OBITUARIES

Mabel V. Barnes: June 22, 1921-April 18, 2009

Mabel V. Barnes, 87, of Charlevoix, and formerly of Anderson, Ind., died Saturday, April 18, 2009, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

She was born June 22, 1921, in Broken Bow, Neb., the daughter of Carl and Antonia (Blaschke) Squier, and move to Indiana as a young girl.

On Dec. 31, 1945 she married Gene Barnes in Anderson, and he preceded her in death on December 25, 1982.

Mabel worked for General Motors in Anderson, Ind. for over 40 years retiring in 1983.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Anderson, and attended the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Mabel is survived by her daughters, Cheryl Barnes Neff of Winter Park, Fla., and Pat (Dan) Ulrich of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Christopher Neff, Elizabeth Ulrich and Adam Ulrich. She was preceded in death by three brothers, and two sisters.

A memorial service will be held at her former residence SunnyBank Retirement Community.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the First Presbyterian Church in Anderson or to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is serving the family.

DEATH NOTICE

Keep up on Captain Gary Dawson's sailing trip

Keep up on Captain Gary Dawson's sailing trip around the world in his own words.

Each Sunday, Dawson gives an update on his three to five-year trip on the high seas.

Many of you have not had a chance to experience days at sea.

So, what is it like?

There are three of us, so we have four-hour watches.

During that time it is your job to keep a look out for other boats of which there are usually none. In addition you must monitor the systems, weather and sails and make sure every thing is OK.

Like is the wind increasing or changing direction and do we have to change the sails. If something has to be done that requires you to go on deck you need to wake up your back up.

That is the person that comes after you.

Read more about Dawson's trip at www.charlevoixcourier.com.

For just $12 anyone can have their BMI, blood sugar, cholesterol and blood pressure checked at Charlevoix Area Hospital's Wellness Wednesday. Participants will have their test results in five to 10 minutes and only a prick to the finger—not a full blood draw—is necessary.

Wellness Wednesdays at Charlevoix Area Hospital

At Charlevoix Area Hospital's Wellness Wednesdays, anyone interested can get a health screening which includes cholesterol and blood glucose level tests, a body mass index (BMI) score, a blood pressure reading, a blood pressure log and pedometer all for $12.

The Wellness Wednesdays event is scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., May 6, and then every first Wednesday of each month as long as there is interest.

Walk-ins are welcome or you may call 547-8906 to schedule an appointment.

'Starlight' supports big dreams

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Can you imagine never having visited a theme park, gone camping or seen a Detroit Tigers baseball game?

For many with Downes Syndrome, the only hope of even the most routine events is through programs like those offered by the Bergmann Center which has been serving those in need since 1965.

"We ask each person if they would like to go on a summer trip and, no matter how big or small, we help support (it)," said Bergmann Center Community Relations Coordinator Kim Brock. "Some go to Mackinaw Island, baseball games, Frankenmuth, overnight shopping trips — It's huge to them."

She added, "We've already started talking about the summer trip for months and it's in their memory that they get to go somewhere special."

Bergmann Center serves nearly 55 people from Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties with employment and socialization opportunities in addition to a chance for center attendees to give back to their respective communities via volunteer efforts and charitable work.

Norene Jolliffe has two sons who attend Bergmann Center.

"Number one: it's a social life; an opportunity for them to meet other people," she said.

"And, the thing I think I like the best about it is it's so community based. The guys are in and out of the community a lot during the week doing recycling, they deliver meals on wheels... they go bowling, they go out for lunch."

Jolliffe added, "It's great for them."

Bergmann Center's main fundraising event for the summer trips is the Starlight Dinner and Live Auction — now in its seventh year.

"The money from that (Star light event) goes to help a lot of those community kinds of things," Jolliffe said.

She went on to say it is important to support the event because the Bergmann Center is so important to the people it serves.

"The staff are really great," Jolliffe said. "They are really in tune to the people who are at the Bergmann Center."

She added, "They see them as people vs. problems."

Browsing for auction items begins at 12:30 p.m., with a silent auction and raffle and live music.

Dinner begins at 1:30 p.m. and the auction begins at 2:30 p.m. on May 3 at the Emmet County Community Building at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fairgrounds.

Items up for bid include women's day out, cakes and pies, home decorations, hand-crafted purses and bags, golf passes, trips to Mackinac Island and Beaver Island and more.

To buy your tickets and/or make a donation, call 547-2979, extension 10 or 11.

Tickets cost $25 per person.

Lost and found: 20 years in the making

COURTESY PHOTO

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Kyle Sitzma didn't trek to Mordor with his precious, but he did return a gold ring with the initials "GRG" to its owner after 20 years.

Sitzma, an Ellsworth resident, found the ring, once owned by Gary R. Garn, at his parents' home back in the late 1980s.

"I found this ring in 1989 while I was out raking and I held onto it," Sitzma said. "My parents lived on Lake Street in Ellsworth and it turns out he (Garn) was a teacher there in Ellsworth who lived just down from my parents' house on the same street."

Sitzma said he tried to find the owner of the ring several years ago, but with no luck. "I tried again a couple months ago when I called a Catholic church down state after I looked it up on the Internet," he said.

Sitzma said the personnel at Monroe Catholic Central, a school in the southeastern-most county in the state, were able to look up the graduation date on the ring—1976—and match the initials with the owner who now lives in Sault Ste. Marie.

Garn said he was absolutely astonished when he got the message his ring had been found.

"I had it since 1976. I was teaching in East Jordan and living in Ellsworth in '86 and '87 so that was the year I lost it," Garn said. "I really didn't know what had happened to the ring but sort of wrote it off after 20 years."

Garn and his wife Bonnie drove down from the Upper Peninsula to Ellsworth to claim the ring on St. Patrick's Day.

"It was in very good shape with the exception of a small ... amount of moisture that had gotten under the stone," Garn said. "It's pretty nice to have it back."

He added, "It's still a mystery how it migrated 150 yards or whatever down the road."

Garn said he is grateful for the good deed.

"One thing I really admire about Kyle is he went through and took the pains to find me and return the ring," he said.

Garn subsequently gave Sitzma a $10 reward for returning the 10 karat gold ring.

"I'm just glad I was able to return it," Sitzma said.

Forewarned is Forearmed

While safety and careful handling top the list on the proper use of a firearm, the use of hearing protection is not far behind. The National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders says that 10 million Americans have already suffered irreversible hearing loss due to noise, and 30 million more are exposed to dangerous noise levels daily. This includes noise from firearms, which, when experienced at close range, can cause noise-induced hearing loss from even a one-time exposure. It can also occur from exposure to gunfire over an extended period. For these reasons, hunters and target shooters are urged to wear hearing protection. Ask any hunter over age 50 who never protected his or her ears.

P.S. The noise from firearms can reach an ear-piercing 140-170 decibels.

You Can Help Move a Mountain (of Cash)

Ben Muladore
Financial Advisor

In an uncertain economy, it's natural for people to "tighten their belts" by cutting down on their spending. And yet by having too much cash on hand today, you could actually slow your progress toward your financial goals of tomorrow.

Before we get to the possible pitfalls of hoarding cash, let's consider your fellow Americans' recent savings habits:

• How much? In the last quarter of 2008, the personal savings rate was 2.9 percent, the highest level since the third quarter of 2001, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

• Where? People are putting their money in what they consider safe vehicles. At the end of 2008, the ratio of money market fund assets and bank savings deposits to stocks — as measured by the Wilshire 5000 Index, one of the broadest market indices designed to track the overall performance of the US stock market — was 95.4 percent, according to Ned Davis Research. (Keep in mind that the Wilshire 5000 index is unmanaged and not available for direct investment.) This ratio is the highest it's been since money market accounts were created in the early 1980s.

Of course, given the stock market decline, it's not surprising that so much money is going into these accounts, because people are looking, above all else, to preserve their principal. Consequently, as a nation, we are now sitting on a "mountain" of cash.

However, the trip up this mountain does not come free. While it's true that these vehicles may help preserve your principal, they may not provide you with returns that can keep up with inflation, which means that the more of these instruments you own, and the longer you own them, the greater the likelihood that you will lose purchasing power.

Furthermore, if you're putting most of your assets into cash, you're incurring "opportunity cost" — the chance to invest that money into vehicles that have the potential to provide the growth you need to help achieve your long-term goals, such as an enjoyable retirement.

So here's the situation: On the one hand, you have a tough economy and a stock market that has probably already saddled you with losses. On the other hand, you need to consider investing in stocks or other growth-oriented investments to help you reach your long-term goals. What's the solution? Balance. There's probably a place in your portfolio for short-term instruments whose chief benefit is helping to preserve your principal. But you may need to balance these holdings with investments that can potentially reward you with growth. The exact mix of assets depends on your risk tolerance, time horizon and individual goals.

In these days, you may need a leap of faith to invest some of your cash. But history is on your side: Downturns have typically been followed by market rallies. Plus, we may eventually see cash seeking higher returns, and that should have a positive impact on the financial markets.

It may feel comforting to have a lot of cash on hand. But if you're planning for the years ahead, you should consider putting some of that cash to work.

Kiwanians fight hunger

On April 4, five members of Charlevoix Kiwanis: Carolyn Navarre, Clark Goforth, Dave Garland, Gloria Barnes and Bob Rajewski went to West Branch to participate in a state-wide Kiwanis project to assemble food packets for Kids Against Hunger. Kids Against Hunger is a nonprofit organization with the mission to significantly reduce the number of hungry children in the USA and to feed starving children throughout the world. This is being achieved by getting volunteers involved and by setting up food packaging satellites in the USA and through partnerships with humanitarian organizations worldwide. Michigan Kiwanis sponsored 10 sites around the state on April 4, with the goal of packaging 500,000 packets of food. Each package provides six nutritionally-complete servings. This year, 75 percent of the packages were designated to stay in our local communities with the other 25 percent being available to be shipped to other countries.

* Brothers turn trash into cash

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

They're new business is a bunch of garbage ... and they're OK with that.

When construction began slumping last year and the outlook for local carpenters only seemed to worsen, Tim Russell and his brother decided it was time to innovate.

"We thought we'd start something up which would actually save people money and create a couple jobs," Russell said of opening Preferred Waste.

Working with two pick-up trucks and a 16-yard dump trailer, the two plan to serve Charlevoix and Antrim Counties offering both bags and large garbage cans called

"Basically we're doing residential right now," Russell said. "We're hoping the local people will go with their local companies to just keep the money in their community."

The 30-gallon plastic garbage bags, which will be available beginning the end of April, will cost $2 each.

Totes will come in 64- and 95-gallon sizes and will cost $50 per quarter for the first year and $54 per quarter in year two.

Russell said he hopes to offer his customers a valuable service at a significant savings over his competitors.

"I don't have the overhead so most people will save ranging from $65 a year to $120 a year," he added.

To become a Preferred Waste customer, call (231) 675-2005.

Garbage pickup will begin May 5 and, though industrial waste will not be collected, Russell said his company does offer removal of larger household items such as couches and large appliances.

Garbage bags, Russell added, should be available at Glen's Markets throughout Charlevoix County by April 27.

A Proven Method for Getting What You Want in Life, Love, and Work

MARSHA BARBER CLARK

Ponder picture prosper

What are your goals? To travel? Start a new career? Have more family time? A different home? Former Charlevoix County resident Marsha Barber Clark announces the publication of her book: Ponder Picture Prosper: A Proven Method for Getting What You Want in Life, Love, and Work. The information in this self-help guide is based on the experiences of Marsha and her family, as well as others who have followed her instruction. Over the years, they have achieved personal, professional, and financial success—all attributed to the use of a Goal Book. Clark has perfected and simplified a strategy for achieving dreams and goals. Her method does not require a financial investment or an alteration in your behavior or lifestyle. You simply ponder what you want, picture it in a Goal Book, and then prosper when the universe brings it to you. Books are available at Book World in Charlevoix. Visit www.ponderpictureprosper.com for more information.

If you have United Way experience or advice to share, call or e-mail Martha Lancaster, Char-Em United Way Executive Director, at 487-1006 or e-mail martha@charemunitedway.org.

Char-Em United Way is planning to hold an informal meeting in early summer to gather United Way alumni, update them on activities and plans of the local United Way, and solicit their advice. Local United Way leaders are planning to develop a Loaned Executive program and would like to incorporate best practices of other communities.

Free tax

Preparation is still available from the Northwest Michigan Community Action Agency (NMCAA). Volunteers have been trained to prepare and electronically file both federal and state returns which will include checking for any tax credits the customers may qualify for such as the Earned Income Credit, Child Care Credit, Property Tax Credit, and the Home Heating Credit. Low to moderate income families and individuals, seniors, persons with disabilities and those with limited-English proficiency will qualify. While waiting for their appointment, customers will be given the opportunity to complete a brief needs assessment to help NMCAA determine if there are other needs that the agency may assist with. To make an appointment for this free service, call (231) 347-9070 or (800) 443-5518.

The NMCAA office is located at 2202 Mitchell Park Drive #4 in Petoskey

The Environmental Protection Agency recently proposed to amend its national emissions standards for Portland cement manufacturing to reduce emissions of mercury, total hydrocarbons, hydrochloric acid and particulate matter from both new and existing cement kilns.

The proposed amendments would set numerical emission limits for cement kilns that are considered "major" and "area" sources of air toxics emissions.

"Portland cement kilns emit about seven tons of mercury a year, making the industry the fourth largest emitter of mercury in the U.S.," said Catherine C. Milbourn, senior press officer for the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Environmental Protection Agency issued air toxics standards for Portland cement manufacturing in 1999. Air toxics, also known as hazardous air pollutants, are known, or suspected to, cause cancer and other serious health problems.

Milbourn said by sharply reducing mercury and other pollutants, the new standards will protect women of child bearing age and young children, as well as save a thousand lives every year.

"We will work with industry to encourage new, green, technologies and we support innovative solutions that lead to green jobs and a green economy as we join together to improve the quality of our nation's air," she said.

"We've been keeping an eye on these restrictions," said Courtney Schmidt, environmental manager for St. Mary's Cement Group in Charlevoix. "As a company, we have made some moves in that arena already

More than 145 days without settlement, Charlevoix Public Schools teachers are holding out for what they feel is a fair contract.

School administration officials say Charlevoix teachers are among the best compensated educators, and they are merely looking to cut costs to prepare for grim financial times. Charlevoix Courier is taking a closer look at the real facts and figures surrounding this ongoing controversy.

"I think they are equitably paid," said Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik. "If you look at the numbers of local districts, they are very close."

When asked what level of pay and benefits would be considered fair, Charlevoix High School government teacher, and lead union negotiator for the Charlevoix Education Association, Annemarie Conway declined to comment in detail. "Though these are good questions, this is not what we're about," she said via e-mail. "We have caring and qualified staff in each building that is proud to serve our community, especially our kids."

•THE PAY: 2007-2008 numbers have been used because the teachers maintain their previous contract until a new contract has been settled upon.

At lowest and highest salaries, respectively, of $35,428 and $69,868, Charlevoix teachers earn less than their local counterparts.

East Jordan teachers earn $36,938 to $70,921; Boyne City — $37,810 to $70,327; Harbor Springs — $39,634.98 to $74,025.15; and Petoskey — $37,287 to $72,991.

According to www.city-data.com, estimated median income in 2007 in Charlevoix was $37,112, compare to the state-wide average of $47,950.

speeding ticket found invalid

Elena Michelle Warner, the Elkworth woman who claimed police mistreatment during a Feb. 1 traffic stop in Charlevoix, was found "not responsible" for a speeding ticket issued that day.

During the April 21 proceedings, Charlevoix's 90th District Judge Richard May said he had to dismiss the ticket because the radar gun used was not properly tested.

"The radar gun is required to be tested in the same manner at the end of the shift as at the beginning," May said in citing People vs. Ferency (133 MICH APP 526 - 1984) wherein a Michigan Court of Appeals panel ruled seven guidelines must be met for readings from radar guns to be admissible in court.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema argued Charlevoix City Police Officer James Schlappi's radar gun—used to determine the speed of motor vehicles—was properly tested at the beginning of his shift and therefore its reading should be admissible.

Schlappi admitted in open court that he, for no apparent reason, failed to test the radar gun at the end of his shift.

During the hearing Warner recalled her previous statement to

According to the Michigan State Police's Web site, the following guidelines must be met for a reading from a radar gun to be admissible in court:

- The officer operating the device has adequate training and experience in its operation.
- The radar device was in proper working condition and properly installed in the patrol vehicle at the time of the issuance of the citation.
- The radar device was used in an area where road conditions are such that there is a minimum possibility of distortion.
- The input speed of the patrol vehicle was verified. This also means that the speedometer of the patrol vehicle was independently calibrated.
- The speedometer (radar) is retested at the end of the shift in the same manner that it was tested prior to the shift and that the speedometer (radar) be serviced by the manufacturer or other professional as recommended.
- The radar operator is able to establish that the target vehicle was within the operational area of the beam at the time the reading was displayed.
- The particular unit has been certified for use by an agency with some demonstrable expertise in the area.

DISTRICT COURT
The following cases were recently decided in the 90th District Court of Charlevoix County Michigan:

Rogelio Rio Dekinderen, 17, Orion Township. Minor in possession of alcohol. Pay $250 in fines and costs; serve 30 days of community service work.

Andrea Renee Geyer, 18, Oxford. Minor in possession of alcohol. $250 in fines and costs; serve 30 days of community service work.

Trevor Brian Olson, 19, Petoskey. Minor in possession of alcohol. $250 in fines and costs; serve 30 days of community service work.

Lacey Marie Becraft, 19, Petoskey. Motor vehicle operator without security. Pay $365 in fines and costs or serve 15 days in jail.

Cody Adam Crain, 22, Charlevoix. Impaired driving. Credit for one day in jail; 30 days held in abeyance; serve 15 days of community service work; to serve nine months on probation; submit to PBT/urine test; not to consume/possess alcohol/controlled substances; no contact with victim.

Joshua Lee Murray, 20, East Jordan. Receiving and concealing stolen property valued under $200. Credit for one day in jail; to serve two days in jail; $406.50 in fines and costs.

Trevor Allen Fortune, 18, Boyne City. Contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Credit for one day in jail; to serve three days in jail; 76 days held in abeyance; serve 10 days of community service work; to serve nine months on probation; submit to PBT/urine test; not to consume/possess alcohol/controlled substances; no contact with victim.

Anthony John Smith, 30, Boyne City. Domestic violence, first offense. Credit for 22 days in jail; to serve 38 days in jail; to serve 24 months on probation; submit to PBT/urine test; not to consume/possess alcohol/controlled substances; no contact with victim.

Daniel Eugene Moore, 23, Vanderbilt. Driving while license suspended. Pay $550 in fines and costs or serve 20 days in jail.

Jeffrey Craig Tenney, 37, Ludington. Insufficient funds for checks written, less than $100. Pay $500 in fines and costs.

Wynkoop then sold $21,606.80 worth of road gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission, some of which was used on Lakeshore Road.

The 90-day, $500 misdemeanor or charge came after a complaint was made by the lawyer for the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety—a group which opposes Wynkoop's sand and gravel operation Norwood Limestone Mine LLC.

A final pre-trial has been set for June 30 with jury selection to begin on July 9.

Chamber of Commerce Board President Kathy Speck read excerpts from the various letters, honoring all those who had been nominated for the award.

Speck concluded with the announcement of this year's winners: Dr. Jim and Mary Gillingham, and the Beaver Island Fire Department.

Dr. Jim and Mary Gillingham have been an intimate part of the Beaver Island community for nearly 25 years.

As Director of the CMU biological Station, Dr. Gillingham has involved his students in a variety of local activities from the 4th of July parade, hosting an art show and a closing party at the CMU facility, faculty led field trips for adults and children, and participating in myriad ways to assist island leaders in protecting and preserving Beaver Island's unique habitat.

Dr. Jim's annual reptile show during Museum Week is a highlight of many youngsters' summer memories.

Dr. Jim and Mary have served as an exemplary example to countless CMU students.

One letter of nomination noted "Jim and his wife always make it look easy. The service they have given toward the future of education and research on the Island cannot be measured."

Members of the Beaver Island Fire Department are currently involved in a rigorous training and educational program as they work toward state certification.

Firefighter 1, a class for new members, and Firefighter 2 classes have run throughout the fall and winter, requiring countless hours dedicated to the task with over 400 hours required for both courses.

Their willingness to commit themselves to helping others in the community was evident as they battled a fire at an industrial building last fall.

"Without their willingness to put their own lives at risk, this incident could have ended up with an explosion and a great loss of human life and property. The efforts of our volunteer firefighters benefit everyone who lives on or visits Beaver Island," stated one nomination letter.

The winners of this year's citizen of the year award received inscribed plaques; the Gillingham's with a photo of a tall ship on Paradise Bay; the Fire Department with a photo of members battling a fire.

They also were presented with State of Michigan Special Tributes, signed by State Senator Jason Allen, State Representative Kevin Elsenheimer, and Governor Jennifer Granholm.

Wynkoop refuses plea deal

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Former Norwood Supervisor Wayne Wynkoop's attorney said his client is innocent of violating the public trust during April 21 proceedings in Charlevoix's 90th District Court.

Special prosecutor Michael McNamara offered Wynkoop a plea deal which called for $240.16 in restitution and an apology for allegedly violating a law which forces public servants to disclose financial interest in a contract before the body they serve.

"I have discussed the people's offer with my client: it is rejected," said Wynkoop's attorney Robert Kaufman. "If the people wish to dismiss the complaint, we'd be more than willing to accept that."

McNamara countered by saying, "We need an acknowledgment of wrong here."

In March, 2007, Wynkoop bid to sell gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission contingent upon his receiving a special use permit to operate his mine.

On May 21, 2007, Wynkoop recused himself from voting on a measure to approve roadwork on Lakeshore Road in Norwood Township citing a possible conflict of interest on the gravel.

Wynkoop received his special use permit to operate his gravel mine on July 9, 2007.

Wynkoop then sold $21,606.80 worth of road gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission, some of which was used on Lakeshore Road.

The 90-day, $500 misdemeanor or charge came after a complaint was made by the lawyer for the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety—a group which opposes Wynkoop's sand and gravel operation Norwood Limestone Mine LLC.

Multiple winners of island's 'citizen' award

ELAINE WEST

A large crowd attended this year's Beaver Island Citizen of the Year banquet on April 25 at the Shamrock on Beaver Island.

The Chamber Board selected recipients based on over 30 letters of nomination sent in from community members.

Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Steve West introduced guest speaker Duanna Stampfer of "Promote Michigan," who discussed the many ways to utilize online programs to market businesses and services.

Chamber of Commerce Board President Kathy Speck read excerpts from the various letters, honoring all those who had been nominated for the award.

School must have millage to operate

EDITORIAL

Homestead, non-homestead, for some, the myriad millage proposals can seem confusing and even maddening at times.

But, according to Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik, the 18-mil non-homestead property tax proposal for Charlevoix Public Schools is as simple as A-B-C.

A — This is not a new tax. It is merely a renewal of an existing tax.

B — This tax is not levied on owners of a single home; the millage only applies to second homes, rental properties, farms and businesses.

C — Without voter approval on May 5, Charlevoix Public Schools will not be able to open their doors to teachers and students.

"This is 75 percent of our funding," Janik said. "I think the key point is the state would not pick up the difference if this does not pass."

He added, "This is equal to about $7.7 million. It would be devastating for us."

According to Janik, when state lawmakers implemented Proposal

A, a move that shifted most of the financing of education from property taxes to the increased state sales tax, they felt it was important to retain a local voice in the funding system. This local voice took shape as voter approval of the non-homestead millage which must be approved by majority vote.

Mattress flippers unite

A LOOK AT LIFE

Cayle Gennett

I mean that "rest" part sincerely because it's a new day at the Gennett residence. We guarantee you'll be sleeping in comfort if staying at our home is on your summer agenda. I am certain all of my readers are mattress flippers. April is designated as flip your mattress month—No need to send me a card this holiday, so save your money.

Maybe you are a smart buyer and purchased one that doesn't require this maneuver. Kudos to you.

I confess I am not a habitual mattress mover, although I do flip them at least as often as I change the batteries in my smoke alarm.

I think that's twice a year.

If you were like me, and in the past sought a deal by purchasing a mattress from an unmarked 18-wheeler or a discontinued box store outlet, you better read on.

To ensure comfort, a good night's sleep and fewer dust mites here are some helpful things worth noting.

Leaving your bed unmade each morning for at least 20 minutes airs out the mattress and the bedding.

My husband is going to love that one.

When you change the sheets, do a quick vacuum over the top of the mattress to keep it fresh from those bugs you see on the Discovery Channel.

Also leave it unmade for a few hours after taking off all the sheets and bedding while they are getting washed.

I was inspired to do this major spring cleaning after our grandsons stayed with us last week.

Unknown to all of us, the kids were allergic to our long haired cat.

When the kids kept waking up with coughing and runny noses, I decided to camp out in their room on one of the extra twin beds.

About three in the morning I realized that maybe part of my own sleeplessness was just trying to get comfortable.

Not able to sleep, I recalled that I purchased my torture rack back in 1989.

Fast forward to a new week and we now have three new beds from a reputable store and put them on a rotation flip and turn over your mattress cycle.

The cat is staying on her best behavior as she knows instinctively she may get her first crew cut in eight years and she is lucky to still live out her existence in our home.

If you can't afford a new mattress purchase a mattress topper. This helps create a little more support and will hold you over until you can purchase one.

There are a variety of mattresses out there and it's a very personal choice.

Just be certain to read the directions on the tag explaining how often and if you should join the mattress flip club.

Just for the record, I was not recently hired to sell mattresses in my retirement years. Thank goodness the twins

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Those are the words of the gruff, but lovable, Ike Boss the City of Charlevoix's recreation director. He isn't in it for the fame, and he surely cannot be in it for the money. So, when Boss comes up with an idea he thinks will benefit all the area's children, we have listen close.

Now less than a year after drumming up enough support to nearly pay off the new ski hill groomer at Mt. McSaub, Boss is hoping to garner enough support from local city and township officials to consider the creation of a recreation authority.

The premise is simple: ask local taxpayers to each pitch in a few dollars a year so local kids—no matter how rich or poor—can ski, snowboard and skate their way through the winter.

Right now the whole idea is just that, an idea.

The city council isn't trying to ram it down anyone's throat, and Boss has made it very clear that he is merely seeking input to see if there is enough interest to take the idea any further.

There are three things about this idea that we really like.

The first is that Boss wants an exploratory committee with equal representation from all the prospective parties: Charlevoix City, and the townships of Marion, Charlevoix and Hayes.

The second thing we're pleased to see is that Boss' idea isn't riddled with greed. He'd like to see a two-tenths of a mil levied to generate approximately $139,000 a year—we're talking $10 for every $100,000 your home is worth. If you own a million dollar house, you'd pay $100 a year.

The third, and possibly most important, thing is that this will open safe, healthy activities up to everyone who lives in the proposed recreation authority area—many of whom are kids whose families simply cannot afford to pay for ski and skate rentals or usage fees.

After reading all this you may be saying, "Another tax?"

Hey, we get the concerns. But, with all the taxes which go to projects we don't care about, it sure would be nice to help fund something which goes 100 percent to helping a local cause.

Let's help Ike fight for the kids.

For more information or to voice your opinion, call 547-3253. Ike would love to hear from you.

Panama or bust

Keep up on Captain Gary Dawson's sailing trip around the world in his own words.

Each Sunday, Dawson gives an update on his three to five-year trip on the high seas.

Ah yes the trip from Key Largo to Panama, well there's a story.

You remember it was April the 9 and we were leaving Key Largo for Panama, a seven-day trip. The autopilot started acting up so we stopped at Stock Island in the Keys to fix it.

We then left Stock Island on Easter Sunday for Panama with maybe a stop in Belize.

Well, we were almost all the way around the west coast of Cuba when we ran into some heavy weather: 25-knot winds and 10-foot seas.

So, we put into Cuba

We did not check in because there is nothing on the west coast of Cuba save for a light house. We just dropped anchor in a bay.

While we were there, we

LETTERS to the editor

OBSERVE WITH REVERENCE

Editor: The true meaning of Memorial Day is all but forgotten.

Memorial Day is not Flag Day, the Fourth of July, Armed Forces Day or Veterans Day.

It's a day to remember the war dead and you don't do that with parades, picnics, pompous speeches, brass bands or hype for the current war.

"Celebration" and "Memorial" are not synonyms and the day was intended for visiting cemeteries, not beaches or amusement parks.

The degrading of the event began decades ago when the federal-employee unions persuaded Congress to make federal holidays into three-day weekends and it was a stupid decision that has decreased the value of the concept of patriotism.

Not many Americans are really patriotic anymore. And, for some, it's saluting whichever cheap politician happens to be in occupying the White House or rooting for whatever the current war happens to be.

It doesn't seem to matter if the war is just or unjust or if the politician is honest or a devious liar.

We are all going to die, but it has always seemed the worst death is the unnecessary death.

It should be the goal of American politicians to never send young men and women to an unnecessary war and that means you don't go to war against a country that is not a threat to the U.S.

No American takes an oath to defend a foreign country or overthrow a foreign tyrant.

We take an oath to defend our Constitution and our country and nothing else.

American patriotism has become so diluted that when politicians publicly proclaim undying support for a foreign country, we don't even give it a second thought or remind them that they are Americans in America running for an American office to represent and serve the American people.

If they love a foreign country more than their own, then they are free to emigrate, but they should not be free to sacrifice the lives of young Americans on behalf of any foreign country.

Memorial Day should be a solemn and sad day as we remember all the young men and women who were denied the joys of a normal lifespan.

War is vicious and cruel, but whether the war is just or unjust, necessary or unnecessary, those who die in it die honorably in service of their country.

Never blame the soldier for the politician's war, and never allow anyone else to do so in your presence.

A TAXPAYER'S PERSPECTIVE

Editor: I will not comment on your relections of the teacher contract negotiations you shared in your letter to the Courier (From a teacher's perspective, April 15).

I do, however, think that you missed the mark in lamenting that public has been "foisted into the process" and been "thrust into it."

The public should be wholly informed about negotiations. As taxpayers, parents and/or general citizens, we have a vested interest in how our dollars are stewarded by the school board and what it costs to retain good facilities and staff in order to assure the well-being of our future society.

Knowledge about details, dollars and expected outcomes are paramount to an informed citizen. Unfortunately, alarmist or misdirected messages are always part of a diligent process, and must be borne as the privilege of free, if not always accurate, speech.

Had your article simply put forth the timelines as you see them, it would have been informative and deserving of attention.

Your inference that the public should not be bothered only serves to raise red flags and perhaps prompt obstructive responses.

I do with the distinct fair and solid decisions in this negotiation—much easier wished for than easily accomplished.

TREAT TEACHERS FAIRLY

Editor:

I am a member of the Charlevoix community. Both of my children were fortunate enough to have been educated in the Charlevoix Public Schools. They are both currently successful students in engineering programs at the University of Michigan. Many Charlevoix graduates attend outstanding and prestigious universities. Many are successful business people in our community. As a parent, I was a little anxious about a small school system like Charlevoix's providing a quality education for my children. I was concerned about them being prepared to attend a world-class university like the University of Michigan.

But not long into their school careers, my concern was alleviated because of the quality of the Charlevoix teachers. Any teacher can deliver curriculum. Charlevoix teachers go above and beyond just delivering curriculum. They are well educated themselves and have deep knowledge of their subject area.

As a parent, I couldn't be more pleased with the public education my children received in Charlevoix. They got a big school education in a small school setting. To attract and keep quality educators, Charlevoix Public Schools needs to pay and compensate their professionals. Many of the teachers have years of experience and advanced degrees. Most people would agree that a quality education is important for our society. If people truly value quality education then they must be willing to pay for it. I sincerely hope that the Charlevoix community, Super-

Zonta's Young Women in Public Affairs Award

Marnie Green, a senior at Charlevoix High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. The Zonta Young women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Green was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of and involvement with global issues and cultures.

Green will be attending Central Michigan University to pursue a degree in Special Education.

Green demonstrates her commitment to the community through her volunteer work with children with autism and other special needs and with Challenge Mountain.

She is also involved in school activities, including being a member of the student council and with the school's basketball program.

Zonta International is a global service organization of executives and professionals working together to advance the status of women worldwide through service and advocacy. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta.

Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in later this fall.

Jacklyn Heckendorn, a 2005 graduate of Charlevoix High School, has received the Marian A. Dammon Scholarship from Michigan State University's College of Education.

She was presented with the honor during the college's annual Awards Reception on April 3 at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

Heckendorn is majoring in English and minoring in psychology (secondary education) at MSU. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, an education honor society, and the National Council of Teachers of English. She has been a camp counselor and tutored in Lansing-area schools. She greatly anticipates completing her teaching internship during 2009-10 and teaching in a classroom of her own.

Her parents are Kirk and Kathy Heckendorn.

The MSU College of Education presented more than 160 deserving undergraduate and graduate students with scholarships or fellowships this year. These financial gifts are supported by generous donors and recognize only the strongest students for their academic performance and record of leadership and community service.

Girl Scouts help Moms & Tots

The third-grade Brownies of Charlevoix Girl Scout Troop #10253 recently made a donation of the entire Candy Apple Book series to the Charlevoix Public Library.

This is just one of the community donations that the girls have done over their years as a troop with their cookie sales earnings.

They have previously donated baby baskets that they filled and assembled to the Elksworth

Mom & Tots program and have donated coloring books and crayons to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Girl Scouts is open to girls from Kindergarten through 12th grade and is a wonderful way to make friends, help the community and have fun.

A girl can join at any time during the year. If you would like to register, please contact Karen Giudice at 547-0739.

ANNIVERSARY

60 years

Pastor Ross and Miriam Winters of Charlevoix celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Thursday, April 23.

They were married April 23, 1949 at the first Baptist Church in Hazel Park, Michigan, by the Rev. William H. Bach.

Pastor Winters served in ministry in churches in Hazel Park, Pinckney and Stanton, Michigan. Mrs. Winters worked in a women's and children's ministry in the three churches.

The Winters just returned from a 60th anniversary trip to Hawaii and Seattle given by their family.

The Winters' children and their spouses are Dianne and Dennis VanGuilder of Charlevoix, Dawn and Peter Grimm of Seattle; Rob and Carrie Winters of Atlanta, Ga.; Denise and Steve Danigelis of Rockford, Mich.; and Joel and Janet Winters of Troutdale, Ore.

The Winters have 14 grand children and six great-grandsons.

The family is planning a reunion this summer here in Charlevoix.

OBITUARIES

Kimberly A. Isaac: September 12, 1974 - April 26, 2009

Kimberly Ann Isaac, 34, of Charlevoix, a beautiful young wife, mother, daughter, sister, aunt and friend flew up to Heaven on the wings of angels April 26, 2009.

Funeral will be 1 p.m., Wednesday, April 29, at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix with visitation from 4 to 8 p.m., on Tuesday. The Reverend David Bechling will officiate and burial will take place in Barnard Cemetery.

Kimberly was born Sept. 12,

1974, the daughter of Richard and Diane (Himebauch) Wojan.

She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1993. On Oct. 16, 1993, she married Gunner J. Isaac in Charlevoix.

Kim worked for Wojan Plumbing and Heating, and was a caregiver to her grandmother, Mildred Himebauch.

Most of all, she was a great mother and wife. She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

Kimberly lived life to its fullest every day. Her greatest joy was being a wife to Gunner, a mother to Shelby Hope, and Hunter - her boo man, a baby sis to Tammy and an aunt to her nieces Kaitlyn, Brooke, Shawna, Carli, Krista, Lindsey, and her nephew, Aaron.

Kimberly loved the sunshine, reading, camping, family BBQs, bonfires and time spent with her beloved parents and mother-in-law, Bonnie. Kimberly always had time to lend a listening ear and her passion was to share her heart, love and wisdom with everyone she came into contact with.

Kimberly will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix, or to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

able medical plan offered them last year when contract negotiation began, the pay schedule would have increased to a starting wage of $36,137, and a top end wage of $71,265.

The current average wage of Charlevoix teachers is $59,119, the 10 highest paid Charlevoix teachers and staff are Kristen Beach, elementary - $66,020; David Moyer, physical education - $67,410; Roxann Roberts, elementary - $67,410; Cathy Silberman, elementary - $68,724; Carol Madison, middle school - $66,020; Dennis VanGuilder, middle school - $69,868; Kay Wasilewski, middle school - $69,868; Patricia Miller, middle school - $68,724; Debra Devitt, elementary counselor - $69,868, and John Prescott, high school counselor - $67,833.

The salaries for administration and highest paid non-union staff are as follows: Superintendent Chet Janik earned $102,144 last year with a $5,000 stipend for meals, dues and professional development, and $4,800 for a car allowance; career counselor Gail Cherry - $50,364; personnel director Kelly Yaroch - $56,200; business manager Shawn Bidle - $71,291; technology director Scott Mays - $86,982; high school principal Suzanne Klinger - $84,660; middle school principal Keith Haske, who gets a 2 percent matching annuity included in his salary - $87,228; elementary school principal Dick Swenor, who retired several years ago to save the district money, though he remains in the that position as a contracted employee - $97,700, and transportation head Gordie Russell - $65,569.

• THE INSURANCE
Charlevoix teachers currently receive Blue Cross/Blue Shield medical insurance administered by the Michigan Educational Association's MESSA insurance program.

The MEA claims health insurance premiums paid by the schools have remained relatively stable from 13.10 percent of the district's overall expenditures in 2003 to 13.42 percent in the 2007-2008 school year.

However, the actual cost of health insurance per teacher and unionized support staff member per month in 2002-2003 was $898. The cost in 2008-2009 had increased to $1,496.14 per person per month.

The Blue Cross plan currently utilized by nine administrators and non-unionized staff costs $678.91 per month, plus a $2,000 yearly deductible paid for by the school, for a single employee for nearly identical coverage — the main difference between the MESSA and the Blue Cross is that MESSA pays for massages and Blue Cross will only cover them if prescribed by a doctor.

The two-person Blue Cross plan costs $406.35 per month with a $4,000 yearly deductible paid for by the school.

The family plan for three or more persons costs $989.30 per month plus a $4,000 yearly deductible paid for by the school.

The yearly cost of single Blue Cross plan - $10,146.92.

The yearly cost of family Blue Cross plan is - $14,902.72.

The yearly cost of the MESSA plan, regardless of the number on the plan, is - $17,953.68.

• THE BENEFITS
Another apparent sticking point in negotiations is the sick time cash-out. Charlevoix teachers are allowed to accrue up to 180 days of sick time and, at retirement, receive their, then current, salary per diem for each unused sick day.

Last year, Charlevoix Public Schools paid $150,000 for five teachers who retired. Administrators once had a similar cash-out perk, but anyone hired in the last 12 years is capped at 100 sick days at $50 a day for a total of $5,000.

Janik said other local schools have respective caps ranging from $3,000 to $9,000.

Those administrators who retired over the last several years and cashed their sick time are Gary Grundman - $32,589; Jim Kanne - $45,065.90; John Sturcock - $20,553; and Dick Swenor - $52,904.71.

The top five sick day cash outs were for Pat Carland $32,706.90; Marna LaBlance - $33,844.38; Laurie Keller - $34,861.60; Roger Gowell - $33,705; and Betty Henne - $33,861.60.

Teachers, unionized support staff and administrators are also eligible for a 100 percent match of 2 percent of their yearly salary.

• THE OPINIONS
The financial brouhaha has drawn varying points of view from locals as well as people from around the state.

Petoskey High School special education teacher and Charlevoix resident Sarah Harschewski said Charlevoix's administration needs to fairly compensate its teachers.

"Charlevoix teachers took a pay freeze last contract. When times have had everybody is supposed to suffer. But, when times are good I don't remember getting a huge raise," she said.

"I just don't understand why teachers ... are having to defend pay and benefits — I might make more than a blue collar person, but that's why I got my education: to get a better salary and improve myself."

Michigan Educational Association (MEA) financial analyst Arch Lewis — who according to MEA documents earned $120,358 plus $26,692 and $9,484 in other compensation for a total of $156,532 in 2008 — gave a presentation on his version of the schools' financial situation back in February.

At the time, Lewis said Charlevoix schools routinely have an average of $900,000 more than their budget discloses, and that the extra money should be spent on raises and benefits for teachers and support staff in addition to educational materials — Charlevoix schools have had a five-year freeze on buying textbooks and other classroom supplies.

Kyle Olson, of the Muskegon-based Education Action Group, an organization encouraging schools to cut waste, recently erected a billboard claiming Charlevoix schools could save $230,000 per year by switching from MESSA health insurance to the Blue Cross plan.

"Our goal is to stop the MEA and local school boards from keeping contract negotiations behind closed doors," Olson stated via e-mail. "They're negotiating for tax money, our money, and the taxpayers should know what's happening."

Referring to Conway's recent guest editorial ("From a teacher's perspective" April 15, page 4), Olson added, "A local MEA leader said she was 'sorry' the public got dragged into the situation. We're not sorry at all, because it's the public's business."

Outspoken Charlevoix business owner John Haggard was concerned by the reluctance of teachers to switch to the lower cost insurance.

"Very few people ... realize there are no deductibles because they all get paid 100 percent by the taxpayers," he said. "Our company just switched and saved $25,000 a year."

Several Charlevoix teachers asked to comment declined to do so except to defer to Conway.

Pay disparity widest in small schools

How do teachers without collective bargaining fare?

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

During the Charlevoix Courier's investigation into school teacher and administration pay and benefits packages, Northwest Academy, the non-unionized public school in Charlevoix, was also examined.

Billing itself as the academic alternative in Charlevoix, Northwest Academy public charter school officials proudly proclaim their teachers to be "all employees" who must earn their position and pay every workday.

"Our staff chose to work here for a reason—some of them wanted more flexibility; some of them are here because they were tired of the system," said Northwest Academy head administrator John Bailey. "Are we going to pay them as much as we can? Damn right."

He added, "We're going to up those salaries just as soon as we can."

Northwest Academy receives $7,580 for each of its 78 full time students. Three percent of their income goes to their charter holder Saginaw Valley State University.

Following are the yearly pay and benefit package amounts, where applicable, for 2008-

2009 as set by the Northwest Academy Public Schools Board of Education.

- Bailey - $45,000
- Student liaison Cindy Romero - $46,000 plus $12,602 for health insurance

- Stutzman - $46,000 with $3,016 for health insurance

- Elementary teacher Michelle Utley - $36,700 plus $12,602 for health insurance

- High school teacher Michelle Brya - $27,750 plus $3,000 for health insurance

- High school teacher Kris Rasmussen - $27,200 plus $4,584 for insurance

- Early elementary teacher Phoebe Gohs - $27,000 plus $1,000 for health insurance

- High school teacher Kurt Grangood - $25,000 plus $7,369 for health insurance

- Junior high school teacher Matt Saunders - $25,000 plus $1,000 for health insurance

- Specialty staff Susan Kissinger - $25,000

- Office manager Leslie Herriman - $18,000 plus $12,602 for health insurance

- Middle and high school teacher Matt Peters - $9,311 plus $1,000 for health insurance

- High school teacher Rob Harris - $8,850
- Music teacher Don Niedert - $7,680

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik declined to comment on Northwest Academy's pay and benefit packages when compared to his own teachers.

But, he did say it doesn't matter how big of a pot of money you have to educate children, it's all in how you spend it.

He did say he felt the Charlevoix Public School District's pay and benefit package was one of several factors which attracted high quality educators.

In the interest of full disclosure, it should be noted that Can Airbag Deployment Cause Permanent Hearing Loss?

Recent research suggests that permanent hearing loss occurs in 17% of people who are exposed to airbags that deploy in vehicles sold in the United States. The study also exposed a misperception that having the windows rolled up was more dangerous to hearing because there would be increased pressure within the vehicle. Researchers found that the increased pressure with the windows rolled up was actually better for ears during air bag deployment. The increased pressure causes a displacement in the middle ear that stiffens the stapes (a small bone in the inner ear), which limits transmission of energy to the inner ear where hearing damage occurs. Hearing damage is further reduced when the passenger cabin is completely sealed.

PS: Vehicles with front and side airbags sold in the United States are required to be larger and more powerful than those sold in Europe and other parts of the world.

HELLO IT'S ME

Remember me? The old bearded guy on the bike; the one you yelled obscenities at; threw your drink at while I was riding down the road; the one you drove by in your SUV or sports car screaming at me to "get a job you & @%*# burn!"; the one you honked at and gave the finger to and then said there was no problem once confronted.

Yes that's me, the one you looked at with disgust and then did a burn out right next to me to show your social superiority.

Remember me, the one you clipped with your truck mirror and then put on your brakes looking in the mirror but not stopping because I suppose I was still upright on my bike? Yeah that's me

I guess I should be a little comforted because at least I know that I am seen while on my bike.

All of you seem to be of high school age. At least all the ones with which I could make eye contact.

Perhaps you needed to blow off a little steam while writing your humanities, social science or ethics papers. Every time I was affronted by you, I was dressed in less than fancy bike clothes, sometimes picking up bottles and cans along side the road.

When I hop on my slick mountain bike with all the right clothes, I get smiles and waves. Sadly, this tells me something about our society's view of their fellow citizens.

I encourage all to look up Michigan vehicle code Act 300 of 1949 257.660a (dealing with bicycles on the road) on the state Web site.

As for getting a job: after serving this country in the military for 30 years, I believe I will have to decline your request. Hope you all get an A+ on your papers.

Please share the road.

the Charlevoix Courier that she may have been traveling four or five miles above the speed limit when she was stopped on Antrim Street that Sunday.

"If I had been speeding I would take responsibility for that," she said.

Warner's lawyer, Richard Scarfone, met numerous objections from the prosecutor as he attempted to question both the officer and his client about the details of the traffic stop.

Warner told the court that, back in February, she stopped when she saw flashing police lights behind her.

She said she then drove her car a few car lengths ahead so the officer would have more room to pull over and, when she stopped the second time, Schlappi came charging up to her vehicle, gun drawn, and screaming for her to put her hands up.

Jarema's objections were sustained and the speeding ticket was the only issue addressed during the hearing.

However, the allegations of mistreatment may not be over.

Though two-and-a-half months passed before any form of complaint was filed with Charlevoix City Police Chief Gerard Doan, Warner submitted a letter to his office on Friday, April 17.

Doan would not divulge the letter's content and a request for the letter under the Freedom Of Information Act was not granted to the Courier by press time.

Warner's lawyer could not be reached by press time.

Warner was also cited during the traffic stop for not having her driver's license at the time and she was warned for failing to obey an officer's instructions.

Register now for College for Kids

Interested in fishing? Have you ever wanted to be a newspaper reporter? Are you a nature lover? Or perhaps you'd like to learn a foreign language? Students in grades 2 through 7 have until May 8 to register for the Char-Em ISD's College for Kids event. College for Kids is a summer enrichment program Monday through Friday, June 15 to 19, and Monday and Tuesday, June 22 and 23, at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. This year's offerings include: Acting Up!, Amigos de Espanol, Archaeology, Around the World in Seven Days, Behind the Scenes, Chess With Jess, Chivalry and Sword Play, Counting-Creating-Ice Cream = Fun, Creating Cartoons, Fun with Nature, Gone Fishin', Imagine This, Investigations in Science and Engineering, Junk Box Wars, Just the News, Let's Play and Don't Be Boorish, Now Scrap This, Oozy Sticky Slimy Goopy You!, Puppet Power and Wilderness Survival. Call (231) 582-8070 or visit www.charemisd.org for more information. Classes cost $75 (in district) and $85 (out of district). Pictured are students from last year's event having fun with Junk Box Wars.

Get ready for summer camp season

Camp Daggett wants to remind everyone that, even though snow is lingering, summer camp season is nearly here.

Registration is underway, and families are encouraged to check out Camp Daggett as the most important summer experience for their children.

Every year, over 1,000 children ages 7 to 14 get the opportunity to spend a week at Camp Daggett. They experience the beauty of the natural environment that the camp provides, make new friends, try new things and have loads of fun.

The summer program also develops a feeling of acceptance, respect and courage that campers take home with them. Camping provides a setting in which children can live, learn, and develop skills that are useful throughout their lives. Activities include adventure ropes courses, archery, group sports and games, sailing, swimming, canoeing and fishing, arts and crafts and nature study, hikes, campfires and camp outs.

Camp Daggett offers eight one-week coed camping sessions starting in June 14 and ending Aug. 8.

Campers are housed in rustic cabins designed for 10 campers and two staff members.

The program answers a child's search for adventure in an environment that is upbeat and wholesome.

Appetites are satisfied with nourishing, family style meals served in beautiful Mac Hall, a picturesque log dining room overlooking Walloon Lake.

According to www.gettingkidsoutdoors.org, over scheduling in adults and children, and the increasing need to be "plugged in" to electronic devices "unplugs" us from nature. This "nature deficit disorder" can lead to obesity, attention deficit disorders, depression and shortened life expectancy. Some startling statistics show that:

- 40% of schools nationwide have cut recess due to funding cuts and/or need for more instructional time due to pressure created by high-stakes academic testing;

- 500% increase in childhood obesity since the 1960s — from 4 percent to 20 percent;

- Our children may be the first generation at risk of having a shorter life span than their parents.

With no 2009 rate increase, Camp Daggett offers one-week sessions for $375 for Charlevoix and Emmet County residents.

Scholarships are available to campers who need financial assistance. For more information, call (877) 582-9742 or 347-9742.

Join the family of thousands of campers and give your child the meaningful, memorable and motivating experience of a lifetime.

EMISSIONS

When we've been able to we've opted for lower mercury raw materials," she said.

Since 2005, the company has made environmental and safety two of its highest priorities.

"Occupational health and safety and harmony with the environment is paramount to our company," Schmidt said. "Ultimately, we have roughly 140 employees and their families who live and work here too. We try to make decisions that are smart and wise, not only for our company but for our families as well."

Jennifer McKay, policy specialist with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council in Petoskey, said mercury is one of the most dangerous Great Lakes contaminants.

"When it enters aquatic systems, mercury goes through chemical reactions that render it into a highly toxic form. A seventh of a teaspoon is enough to contaminate the fish of a 25-acre lake," McKay said.

The policy specialist said mercury pollution comes from many sources, but the primary source is air pollution.

"Forty-three states have issued mercury fish-consumption advisories, including all the Great Lakes states. While it's important to heed fish advisories, the only real solution is to eliminate the sources of mercury pollution. Reducing mercury emissions from cement plants is a step in the right direction to eliminating the risks posed to human health and the environment," she said.

Comments about the proposal may be submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency at www.regulations.gov. The agency will have a public hearing on the proposed amendments if a request for a public hearing is made. To request a hearing, contact Pamela Garrett of EPA's Office of Air Quality Planning and Standards at (919) 541-7966 or pamela.garrett@epa.gov.

Charlevoix 3, Gaylord 3 April 17th

In a tightly contested game on a windy evening at the Charlevoix HS field, the Rayders held on to force a tie with Division 2 Gaylord.

Going with the wind early, Charlevoix got on the board, when junior co captain Madison Way sent a cross to sophomore Hallie Bills who tucked the ball into the net for the 1-0 lead.

Following shortly, junior Caroline Dupuis sent a long shot which the keeper deflected and senior co captain Olivia Catt sent the ball home. Although the Rayders managed 9 shots to the Devils 5, the half ended at 2-0.

Ten minutes into the 2nd stanza, Gaylord got on the board when a defensive miscue allowed their center striker a one on one shot against Charlevoix' senior keeper Tammy Potter.

Potter, 1st team all state in 2008, had no chance on the opponents first goal of the new season.

Gaylord kept the pressure on going with the wind, now down just 2-1. A long ball was sent forward, the offside flag went up but the center referee didn't see the flag. The Gaylord striker ran into Potter causing an injury which required the Rayders to replace her in goal.

The Devils scored almost immediately off the restart with a high shot with the wind which would have been difficult for any keeper to stop. 2-2.

Potters injury fired the Rayders up and they moved the ball well into the growing wind.

The Rayders went up 3-2 on a great individual effort by sophomore wing Taylor Smith. Smith beat the defender near midfield and took the ball to goal and again beat the keeper one on one.

The Devils answered with another high hard shot which beat Charlevoix's inexperienced replacement keeper when the defense allowed the shooter to turn in front of the net.

Potter returned to the game and again inspired the Rayders who had the better of play for the final few minutes but were unable to connect for the win.

Potter managed 13 saves and was named player of the game for the Rayders for her inspiring comeback.

Madison Way played a tough game at midfield while Meredith Rich led the Charlevoix defense.

The Rayders, 4-0 in conference and 4-0-1 overall, host Treverse City Liberty in a key contest on Monday.

For Charlevoix, Mike Kras had two hits and three RBI and Coby Herriman had two hits and two RBI. Alex Foster walked three and struck out seven over six innings.

Vandermus struck out four for the victory in the nightcap, which was called after three innings because of darkness. Kopka doubled to lead Harbor, while Vandermus, Boeckman, Morse and Mathews each singled.

Foster and Jordan Farmer each had an RBI single for the Rayders, and Michael Heckendorn singled.

Harbor is 2-2 overall and in the league.

Harbor Springs 8-6, Charlevoix 6-3

Josh Boeckman's seventh-inning single broke a 5-5 tie and Josh Morse added a two-run double for what turned out to be the decisive runs in the opener Tuesday, April 14 sparking Harbor to the Lake Michigan Conference sweep of the Rayders.

Mike Vandermus earned the win with an inning of relief. He struck out two and led Harbor at the plate with two hits. Harbor starter John Mathews struck out four over six innings. Jackson Kopka added a single for Harbor.

Ferris University camp scholarships for junior golfers

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf program has announced that scholarship applications have been mailed to those junior golfers who are eligible to receive consideration for the week-long golf camp held on the campus of Ferris State University.

To be eligible, youngsters must have attended at least half of the 2008 summer instructional sessions and be at least 12 years of age.

For the past 14 year, five to seven area golfers have been selected each year to attend golf camp.

Executive Director Dean Davenport pointed out that applications have been mailed to those eligible and the dealing to return applications is May 15.

If some needs an application they can call him at (231) 796-7252.

Board treasurer Sam Supernaw Sr., had praise for local golfers that support junior golf through a variety of ways.

"We're grateful to area golfers who participate in our sole fund-raiser Teaching Professional Steve Braun's 100 holes in a day," Supernaw said of the event where supporters make pledges.

The many volunteers that donate their time to serve as mentors, walking golf holes with our large class of junior golfers and helping out in a variety of ways are critical to our success, and the obvious cooperation of area courses, the Charlevoix Golf Country Club, the Belvedere, the Municipal and Antrim Dells course who open their facilities for our youngsters.

Each scholarship applicant is evaluated, with winners publicly announced on June 13.

On that date, Junior Golf registration for 8 to 17 year olds is scheduled with an orientation session all to take place at the Municipal Golf Course at 11 a.m. More details on the program will be announced later.

Charlevoix second highest in drug complaints, arrestsBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Whether you pop, snort, inject, smoke or just plain sell illicit drugs, the Straights Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) team is looking for you.

Law enforcement officials say they are making progress in certain areas, but added that much work must be done to slow the northern Michigan region's illegal drug trade.

"The availability of cocaine dropped significantly during 2008," stated SANE Unit Commander Det. Lt. Ken Mills in his annual report. "This is a tribute to the great cases conducted during the three previous years, when arrest counts for delivery of cocaine were above 80."

He added, "A number of those arrests were significant cocaine traffickers that were arrested on state and federal charges."

A total of 88 grams of powder and crack cocaine — 15 and 73 grams respectively — were seized at a street value of $9,680.

According to Mills, the arrests for delivery of prescription medication rose significantly last year.

"The team made 97 prescription drug arrests during the year," he stated. "The team had worked more closely with those in the medical field to better impact the problem."

Prescription drug doses seized numbered 1,249 for a combined street value of $76,241.

According to Scott Kelly, the executive director of Bay Area Substance Education Services also known as BASES Teen Center, said prescription drugs is the fastest growing threat to young people.

"There has been a steady increase for the last three years," he said. "Access to the pills has been one of the biggest issues."

Kelly said kids can get anything from Vicodin and OxyContin to drugs used to treat attention deficit disorder from the purses, medicine cabinets and cupboards of friends and relatives

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema agreed that the misuse of prescription drugs poses the biggest threat to the community.

"I have tried to take a three-fold approach: Educate the youth as to the ramifications of drugs; established the drug death team to quickly respond to drug overdose deaths," he said. "We have received convictions for delivering drugs causing death ... and I have worked with our legislators to change the laws on obtaining prescription pain killers and there are currently bills pending in Lansing."

Of the 11 counties SANE serves, Charlevoix has the second

Officials ready for swine flu

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Authorities from school personnel to paramedics are closely watching the outbreak of H1N1 influenza, also known as the swine flu.

And, they assure that they have plans in place to deal with the illness should it spread to northern Michigan.

"In all reality swine flu is the flu—it just hit harder in Mexico than here," said Charlevoix City Fire Chief Paul Ivan. "We always disinfect the ambulances and there are masks on the ambulances ... which are supposed to protect our people from any air-based pathogen."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) as of May 3 there was still only one death from the H1N1 virus with 226 cases nationwide and two laboratory-confirmed cases in Michigan.

According to the CDC, the H1N1 is a combination of swine, human and bird influenza viruses.

Symptoms can include: fever, cough, sore throat, headache, muscle aches, runny nose, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

And, while H1N1 may be similar to the seasonal flu which annually sickens 200,000 and kills 36,000 Americans, it has some unique features.

"It's a completely new strain which means none of us have ever been infected by it; which means none of us have any kind of immunity for it," said Caron Withers, the Infection Prevention Coordinator at Charlevoix Area Hospital. "From what I understand, the seasonal vaccine will not protect you from swine flu."

She added, "Another danger of this new strain is that it may be extremely virulent and could make people very

Captain Dawson's sailing trip

Keep up on Captain Gary Dawson's sailing trip around the world in his own words.

Each Sunday, Dawson gives an update on his three to five-year trip on the high seas.

Panama, finally. We finally made it to Panama.

We left Old Providence Island Thursday at noon and arrived at the canal around 3 a.m. on Saturday.

The trip was short—250 miles—about 40 hours, but the winds were 12 to 16 knots and the seas seven to nine feet.

So, we had a fast sail in lumpy seas.

Upon leaving the Island we caught three barracuda and promptly let them go—not great eating.

About 30 miles out from the Island we saw some birds around a certain area of water, so I put the lure back in and headed towards the birds. We then hooked onto a four-foot, 30-pound Mahi Mahi.

We filleted it and froze it and have enough for five meals.

Charlevoix business robust overall

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A recession may be afoot, but someone apparently forgot to tell some of Charlevoix's business owners.

Despite a long winter, steady unemployment and grim financial outlook by some experts, area businesses are surviving and even thriving.

"I have expanded on the Internet significantly," said Pine River Books owner Tony Duerr. "I've had a better year than the year before."

Duerr said foot traffic this time of year is generally slow, but he expects that to increase as temperatures get warmer.

Duerr is positive a busy summer lies ahead and he isn't the only one who sees good things on the horizon.

According to the Michigan Retailers Association, store owners are expecting an increase in their second quarter sales figures.

"Retailers' short-term forecasts fell sharply last fall after the meltdown in the financial markets, hitting a low point in November," stated James P. Hallan, Michigan Retailers Association president and CEO in his late-April report.

"Since then, they have improved gradually, demonstrating greater confidence in the economy. There is still a long, long way to go, but we see this as a positive trend."

Vi Forreider, who owns and operates Scovie's Gourmet with her husband Scott, said despite the current economic conditions, people still have to eat.

"It has not affected us as much as other retailers," she said. "Yeah, people can't go out as much, but they're still spending money."

Forreider said Scovie's is able to enter its sixth year in downtown Charlevoix because she and her husband stress quality ingredients and incomparable customer service.

Housing crisis or not, according to Realtor Alicia Mosher with Prudential Preferred Properties Network, real estate is still selling.

"Traditionally, because we're more of a resort type of community, we do tend to slow in the first quarter, but the second quarter is starting to pick up," she said.

While Mosher said there is no comparison between the amount of business she is doing now and the number of homes she was selling just a few years ago, there is reason to be optimistic.

"Phone calls are coming in and contacts via the Internet are as well," she said.

Part of the reason for the slower than normal growth is unemployment and lenders with more stringent standards.

"Banks say there is money available, but ... actually getting that money to the borrower means there's a lot more hoops they have to get through," Mosher said.

While the housing market is a bit of a "wait and see" game, Mosher said she expects a good summer due to the number of bargains and bargain hunters in the region.

When it comes to what goes in the houses which are sold, Kitchens North owner Jim Tank said he has been as busy this winter as any other.

"Over 88 percent of people (in Michigan) are still emploied and ... I've always marketed myself," said the cabinet maker. "I've built long-term relationships with my customers."

While the recession is in the forefront of the minds of so many, Tank said you really cannot let it depress you.

"I first went into business when (Jimmy) Carter was president. I got my first business loan at 18 percent and I didn't know any better," he said. "I just didn't know it was a bad time to go into business."

Tank added, "If I would have been paying attention to the news I would still probably be working for someone else out of fear."

Another key indicator of the economy's health is car sales.

"The majority of our sales have been with used (cars) and the majority of those have been under $10,000," said Pat McKeown Sr. of Pat McKeown Ford in Charlevoix. "People just don't want to commit to the big dollar amount."

McKeown said Ford Motor Credit is ready and willing to loan money to customers.

"We did not take the government cheese. We did not shut down for nine weeks. We did not go bankrupt," he said. "We have very little excess in our dealership. We are cut right down to exactly the number of people we need and everybody wears two or three hats."

McKeown said despite a rough first quarter, his body shop and service department continue to thrive.

"When I first came here in 1981 it was rough. You just work through it," he added

City working on energy buy-back policy

BENJAMIN GOHS

Can customers on Charlevoix's electrical grid sell the excess electricity they create via wind and solar back to the city?

That was the question which came up just before Charlevoix City Council approved both their energy optimization and renewable energy plans.

"I want the City of Charlevoix to encourage individual homeowners and businesses to generate some of their own electricity from renewable sources," said City of Charlevoix electric consumer Steve Hansen. "The way to encourage this activity is to help individuals and businesses to return excess electricity to the city power grid and to be paid for this electricity."

The State of Michigan encourages utility companies to buy excess electricity from citizens who generate their own power from solar, wind or other renewable sources.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. asked Charlevoix electric department head Don Swem if there was a policy in place to allow for the buy-back of electricity.

"We don't have a policy for that right now," Swem said. "We're working on a policy but there are some questions that have to be answered."

Swem said he has concerns about allowing citizens to feed electricity into the lines for the sake of safety and cost.

"With Great Lakes (Energy) you've got 125,000 customers to spread that cost," he said. "In the case of a small municipal like Charlevoix with 2,500 customers you're going to be paying dollars extra."

Swem said his biggest safety concern comes from how the flow of energy would be controlled when the grid is down for service.

If an electrical line worker is working on a city power line he thinks is off and a windmill is feeding electricity into that line, he could be electrocuted.

"I hope you don't just allow in a passive or grudging way individuals to sell their excess electricity back to the city," Hansen said. "The way to encourage this ... is by minimizing hook-up fees and ... paying retail price for the renewable electricity generated."

Swem said his department will continue working with to develop a sound policy which he will bring to before council at an unspecified date.

However, once the policy has been drafted, a public hearing will be announced for public input.

In other business, council announced that applications for individuals to run the concession stand at Lake Michigan Beach will be accepted until Friday, May 8. The only application submitted so far is from Carlson, who disclosed the matter during the meeting to avoid any potential for perceived conflict of interest.

Council also announced the construction on the trout stream in East Park should be completed within a week's time.

Science is worthy of our trust

I don't like to rant, but when I do it is most likely to be about the misunderstanding or misuse of science.

I had thought, as many do, that the reluctance on the part of political or religious leaders to accept the truths that science offers was due to a lack of education or understanding.

I may be wrong. Psychologists are increasingly convinced that many humans reject science because they don't trust what scientists tell them.

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

An essay in the May issue of Natural History magazine has helped to clarify my thinking and reduce my ranting.

I was trained as a scientist and spent much of my professional life doing science in addition to teaching it.

Most scientists are narrowly trained, that's how we identify an expert. I am no exception. I spent seven years at Michigan State University learning everything I could about plants, their growth, nutrition, evolution, diseases and more.

I spent 30 years at Luther College in Iowa continuing to learn all I could about plants. If I do say so myself: I am a pretty reliable source of information about plants. I have come to expect that people will trust what I tell them about plants.

In unrelated areas of science, like nuclear physics, human diseases, or climatology my expertise is very limited, and I am no more trustworthy than anyone else.

When I listen to someone who has spent most of a lifetime studying nuclear physics or human diseases or climatology, I expect their ideas in those areas of expertise to be trustworthy.

I am more likely to trust someone who is actually doing science—that is, collecting reliable information and trying to understand it—than someone who is merely commenting on science done by others. If we are going to trust scientists, we should try to be certain that they are actually well versed in the subject they are talking about. Having a Ph.D. in botanical science does not make one a trustworthy commentator on nuclear physics.

My personal experience of scientists has been that they are usually reliable sources of information in their area of expertise. Just like any other group of people, there are scientists who are charlatans or at least unreliable.

But, since science is a collective effort, other experts in the same area of knowledge serve as a control on the occasional renegade.

According to psychologists, we are most likely to trust those who have authority and power. Thus the statements of an elected president are likely to carry more weight for many than the statements of any number of reliable scientists.

The statements of the Pope are likely to carry more weight than hundreds of physicians. We depend for our well-being and even our survival on the information and ideas that science has provided, from how to combat a flu epidemic to which antibiotic is best to combat strep throat. We could learn to be as attentive to the statements from science experts in other areas.

A president's advice on global warming or the Pope's advice on how to combat a flu epidemic is likely to be less reliable than that of a scientific expert on those subjects. Science does provide trustworthy information.

We could learn to trust it more often.

GRATITUDE

Editor:

On behalf of the Fr. Pierre Charlevoix Knights Of Columbus Council 7172 we would like to extend our gratitude to the wonderful people who live in this community who supported our 32nd Annual Cash Raffle Party held Saturday, April 25, 2009 at Castle Farms—one of the most beautiful and well-run banquet facilities in the world!

In the midst of a tremendously challenging economic environment, several hundred people dug deep into their pockets to purchase a ticket to attend what was repeatedly described as the best Cash Party we have ever put on. The new menu options received rave reviews. Our new music format had people dancing from "doors open to doors close", and the party helped all of us forget our financial and employment concerns, celebrate the end of a long and hard winter, and enjoy our friends and acquaintances.

What we, the Knights of Columbus, are especially grateful for is that all of our efforts to host this great event each year helps raise thousands of dollars to allow us to give this money directly back to our community to people and groups who are struggling more than many of us could ever know.

We modestly and quietly want the community to know that last year the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus donated over $20,000 to needy people and programs in this community—all from the proceeds from the Cash Party. established several years ago to provide perpetual funding for the community.

From the generosity of the Cash Party (and all of our fundraising events) attendees, we donated money to the Charlevoix Food Pantry; Scouting; 4-H; all area schools for programs, events and to needy students who could not afford to participate in these functions; to help build the Skateboard Park and purchase helmets to protect our youth; to the Mt. McSaubas snowmobile purchase; to the East Park Interactive Fountain; to the Veterans Memorial honoring our fallen heroes, to the Bergmann Center and Charlevoix House, and many needy people a bit down on their luck this year, just to name a few.

This year our proceeds were a little less than prior years, but we are so grateful for the turnout and support from the community, we want to thank everyone for helping us to help others. That is what we do.

most wonderful highway system. We possess extensive viaducts that have in the past been both our state's blood vessels and nervous system. These superlative highways are called the Great Lakes.

During those seasons ending in -ball, my wife and I live in Ann Arbor. Otherwise, having a condo there we can't sell, we stay Up North in Charlevoix. Charlevoix has a few citizens with a retro dream. They've formed a non-profit: SeaPorts Great Lakes. They hope one day to gather sufficient resources to reconstruct the 1850's schooner "Challenge." More can be learned by visiting our web site: www.CharlevoixChallenge.com. The reason its "our" web site is that I'm the group's secretary.

The history of the original Challenge involves its being the fastest sailing ship on the lakes for almost 30 years. Its builder was a 20-something young man from an East Coast shipbuilding family, who traveled West, spurred by his father's demeaning words about biting off a challenge.

The new schooner Challenge will look on the outside much like its namesake, but inside there is a difference. Our Governor was present last week for ceremonies involving the startup of four storage battery firms in Michigan. Larger sailing vessels carry ballast. Suppose that ballast were batteries storing power created by a generator driven off the ship's propeller; which spins when sailing. The batteries would provide energy that would turn an electric motor attached to the propeller when the wind dropped. Sound far-fetched? Not really. A number of companies are now offering such regenerative power plants, but on much smaller vessels than a multi-masted, 100' schooner. No one as far as we know has done this yet on a larger ship. Schooners have, in the past, grown to be several hundred feet in length, sporting a forest of masts named for all the days of the week. They needn't be tiny.

Too busy to die, and other non sequiturs

It's been about a goat's age since I wrote a towel, but I've been swamped with the shiny delights of the American dream.

Between fighting with the hot rod, fighting with the kids, fighting with the dogs, dealing with my son's confirmation and planning for both a major family get-together and my wife's upcoming trip to Glacier National Park, I've had just enough time each night to down some butterscotch schnapps, cheap beer and raspberry Zingers before crying myself to sleep.

Oh, and did I mention I've just started a new diet. OK, so I'm actually restarting the diet. I tend to go in spurts: stewed spinach and yogurt for three days, Busch Light and chili dogs the rest of the week.

Then there's the Gohs-mobile—I'm goin' out of order here, so bear with me—First the damn driver's side door freezes up on me. Then, I finally get the old mufflers off so I can install the really loud Cherry Bombs and karma strikes in the form of the transmission and gas tank simultaneously springing leaks; seriously, did I kick puppies in a former life?

By the way, my 17-year-old brother is now living with us which basically means I now have two angst-ridden,

THE CRYING TOWEL
Benjamin Gohs

horizontally charged, unemployed testosterone machines eating my food and squatting in the rooms upstairs.

Could somebody please tell me how five people use 12 bath towels a day?

Let's not forget that I endured my first ever church service recently which went something like this: Rise; be seated; rise; be seated; rise and sing; be seated; rise; sing; rise; hut, hut, hike!

It was like doing squat-thrusts in football practice but without the coach screaming "You still want seconds on mashed potatoes Mrs. Gohs?" at me between whistle blasts.

And then there's the scurrying. The kids are sitting next to us, then they're gone. Then they're there. Then gone again.

Rise.

Be seated. Sing: "What a friend we have in Jesus."

Rise. Then my daughter skulks by with a seven-foot brass torch straight out of Fahrenheit 451.

For god's sake would someone hide the books! Actually the people at the wife's church were very nice, and, frankly, the only thing out of ordinary was me—there, divorce averted.

For lack of a better segue I'll say I survived the ordeal just so I could face yet another speed bump on Gohs' Easy Street: Prom night.

Luckily for me my daughter is still too young for school dances. She's 13 now which means I've only got about 27 more years before she starts dating.

The boys are another story

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

Central Michigan University senior Jennifer Lopez of Charlevoix recently participated in CMU's Alternative Winter Break volunteer program.

Lopez, a Charlevoix High School graduate and daughter of Cindy Perkins and Carlos Lopez, was among more than 120 CMU students who took part in the week of service travel organized by the university's Volunteer Center.

During Alternative Winter Break, 11 teams of CMU students volunteered around the world with organizations that address such social issues as at-risk youth, disaster relief, sexual abuse, hunger and homelessness, terminal illness, care for the elderly, and civil rights. Lopez was a volunteer at the Ronald McDonald House in Houston, Texas, cooking dinners for the children and families staying at the house and spending quality time with the guests. She is majoring in political science and minoring in religion at CMU.

Seussical the Musical Rayder performers put Seuss to song

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix High School performing arts students will soon put Seuss to song.

The show, called "Seussical the Musical" will take the audience on a colorful journey through the realm of Dr. Seuss characters as the story follows Horton the elephant and is narrated by the Cat in the Hat.

"It's a family show," said Charlevoix High School performing arts teacher and director Danielle Wager. "Compared to a lot of other shows, this has a lot more music."

She added, "It's very fun, very upbeat, very happy. There are a lot of bright colors and a lot of the characters are animals."

More than 25 high school students and five middle school students will fill the roles of the show.

"It's a large casted show and we feel like the connection between the high school arts and the middle school arts sometimes gets lost on the students," she said. "So, we decided to cast some of the seventh- and eighth-graders."

There will be three performances beginning with the 7 p.m., Friday, May 15 show in the high school's auditorium. There will also be a show at 7 p.m. on Saturday, May 16 and 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 17.

Cost is $5 for students and children; $7 for adults. Ticket price includes refreshments at intermission.

Wager said the show was chosen democratically from a short list of student-generated ideas.

She said the show is appropriate for all ages.

"This has a little bit of a romance story to it," Wager said. "So, I think it's kind of ageless."

The show has a running time of approximately two hours.

Jenny's choice: A mother's ultimate sacrifice

BY SHELIA DAVIS
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The day Jenny Patrell gave birth to her beautiful son she cried tears of joy, counted every toe and every finger and was overwhelmed by the love she felt.

Not unlike any other parent who is experiencing the new birth of their child, she savored every hiccup, cry and peaceful sleep in those first few hours of life, but Patrell had even more reason to savor these moments.

She was giving her son up for adoption.

"It's really hard at first," she said. "You feel like you shouldn't be able to go on with your life and be happy."

But, Patrell added, "I later had peace of mind that I did what was best for him."

Earlier in her pregnancy she made a decision that would change everything in her life and the life of her newborn son.

Patrell had chosen to take responsibility for her child's future by preparing his life through adoption planning.

She had met with an agency, interviewed several families and decided that all that she wanted for her son was things she was not prepared to give him.

During the last part of her pregnancy as she searched for the right family to build a relationship with and place her son with she realized how prepared adoptive couples are to be parents.

She realized they were planning for a child for sometimes years and wanted to become a family.

She met with several couples before making the selection of the parents that are raising her now 3-year-old son.

During the remainder of her pregnancy they went shopping together, doctor appointments together and Jenny was even at a baby shower for the adoptive mother-to-be.

As Patrell lie there in the hospital bed and holding her newborn she suddenly had a change of mind. There was so much more emotion involved in seeing and holding him then she could have prepared herself for.

She also thought about the parents she had grown to love that had prepared their home for this baby.

She took several hours to pray about what to do and think about how she would parent.

Before she left the hospital she came to the realization that she had already made the best decision for him through the adoption plan and continued that.

Patrell said the fact that the prospective adopting parents could not have children was important to her placing her son with them.

"It's not life-ending, but rather life-changing," Patrell said.

Adoption has become so prevalent that Birthmother's Day, celebrated the Saturday before Mother's Day each year since 1990, is now a day for birth mothers to celebrate their birthmotherhood.

Now Patrell and her husband have a 10-month-old son. She and the parents of her first-born son have remained in contact by sharing e-mails, phone calls and pictures.

Patrell and her husband and new son are planning a trip to New York, where the adopting family lives, so the boys can meet each other.

The experience was integral in Patrell's decision to work in counseling and adoption.

"Getting people to learn more about adoption is something I really want to do," she said. "What the media portrays about adoption is a lot different than what it's like in real life."

Patrell is now working with Heaven Sent Adoption Services of Charlevoix to develop a monthly gathering for women who have made adoption plans for their children and for those considering adoption that would like to learn more.

Contact Shelia Davis at Heaven Sent by calling 237-9880 or toll free at (877) 583-0990 for more information on adoption support, services and Birthmother's Day observances.

Petunia planting? Summer must be coming

MAGGIE PETERSON
GRAPHIC EDITOR

Operation Petunia is a Charlevoix institution coming back for its 28th year.

"It really is just a community staple. It's one of those events where you have people my age and older and younger that have been planting for most of their lives," said Keep Charlevoix Beautiful committee president Erin Bemis.

The event kicks off at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 21.

The location is anywhere on a more than five-mile stretch of U.S. 31, which stretches from Harbor Industries at the south end to Mercer Boulevard at the north end.

About 1,500 flats of petunias have been ordered in many colors, and those interested in helping plant them are encouraged to bring a trowel or spoon for the planting.

The event is a quick one, usually taking less than an hour, Bemis noted. Traffic will be brought down to one lane in both directions beginning in the afternoon.

New this year are additional hanging petunia baskets for the promenade in East Park, bringing the total basket count to 90 throughout the downtown.

Once the petunias are in the ground, block captains in neon T-shirts will hand out meal tickets for the picnic, which also include coupons for items from local merchants.

On the menu for the picnic in East Park are hot dogs, chips, cookies and beverages, accompanied by music from the Northwest Academy and Charlevoix High School bands.

Lining the streets of Charlevoix with petunias was the vision of Charlevoix resident Dale Boss in 1982. That same year, funds were raised and the beds for the flowers were created.

What started with 600 flats of petunias has more than doubled to today's count of 1,500. It takes three hours and 15 minutes a day to water the plants, totaling 17,000 gallons of water per week on average, Bemis said.

She added that the petunias have become a piece of community pride.

"It's an amazing project of an amazing group of people in an amazing community," she noted.

Officials ready for swine flu

sick like the 1918 strain which resulted in many deaths."

The CDC recommends people with flu symptoms stay home for seven days; or 24 hours after their symptoms have ended.

Be sure to wash your hands regularly with soap and water or alcohol-based waterless cleanser.

Do not touch your face while out in public as this virus can infiltrate through mucous membranes like your eyes, nose and mouth.

Isolate yourself from the rest of your family if you have flu-like symptoms.

Drink plenty of fluids to prevent dehydration.

Be sure to cover your mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing.

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture the virus is not affecting pigs in America and that you cannot get sick from eating cooked pork.

The CDC has begun shipping stocks of prescription-strength anti-viral medicine like Tamiflu around the country in the event that it is needed.

"We have good stocks of Tamiflu and we haven't had to use any," Withers said. "This is something we've been preparing for for years, since SARS (Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome, 2003), because experts have been telling us that another influenza pandemic is going to happen—the only question is where and when?"

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik said the most important thing parents can do to help prevent the spread of influenza is to keep their sick children home from school.

"We are not aware of any cases, but our custodians are taking extra precautions by disinfecting our buildings," he said. "We're trying to be proactive at this point and monitor it as I'm sure other districts are."

While the United States government has not instated any restrictions on travel, the CDC recommends visiting affected areas such as Mexico for "essential purposes only."

For more information, visit www.cdc.gov/swineflu.

Cases reported

According to the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, 45 probable cases of H1N1 or swine flu have been reported in the following counties:

- Allegan County – 1 probable case
- Kent County – 18 probable cases
- Livingston County – 4 probable cases
- Macomb County – 6 probable cases
- Muskegon County – 1 probable case
- Ottawa County – 13 probable cases and highest incidences of both complaints and arrests with 40 and 43 respectively.

Chippewa was in the number one slot with 53 complaints and 54 arrests.

Kelly said factors such as pressure from pharmaceutical groups on doctors to prescribe medication, rampant incorrect self-diagnosis of diseases and conditions and poor role modeling by parents has helped catapult the misuse of medication to the forefront of the drug war.

In addition to Kelly's counseling and education services, Jarema's office has allocated funds to help parents buy home drug testing kits.

"The drug problem is not going away. It takes the whole community to be cognizant of where their medicine is kept and what are the symptoms of someone on drugs," Jarema said. "Look up your prescriptions if you have painkillers. If you suspect your child is using, have them take a drug test."

Middle-schoolers become medical detectives

Students in grades 6, 7 and 8 are invited to explore their futures in an exciting health care career. During the hands-on, three-day workshop MCSI: Medical Career Scene Investigation.

MCSI will be held June 23-25 and is coordinated by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Northwest Michigan WORKS!, and North Central Michigan College. Interactive sessions are held at the college and both hospitals.

Health careers that will be explored this year include:

Nursing, ER, ICU, CVU - Deciphering the Language of Nursing. Students in this session will discover the many opportunities available in the nursing profession - from medical records to tubes and medications.

Pathologist: The Real Investigators. Here, students will learn about a pathologist, who is a physician who specializes in diagnosing diseases by looking at tissue samples under a microscope. To better understand the internal workings of the human body, MCSI campers will be dissecting a fetal pig.

Phlebotomy: Vampires in the World of Medicine. In this session, students will discover how important blood is in diagnosing and treating the sick and injured.

Radiology/X-Ray: See Inside the Body. Students will learn how the emergency physician uses high-tech imaging services to solve a medical mystery.

SIM Man: Who Loves to have Visitors! MCSI campers will feel the excitement of a health care career when they visit the SIM Man (simulated mannequin) patient and have an opportunity to listen to heart, lung and bowel sounds, draw blood from the mannequin's arm, and give an injection.

Surgical Technician: Scalpels, Masks, Tape, Suction and Staples. Students who like to play patients in a remote setting. "Operation" may want to choose this session. Here, they'll learn how to be the hands beside the surgeon.

Wilderness EMS: Sirens, Gurneys and Flashing Lights. This career exploration is for students who want to work for an emergency care service, ski patrol, or as a professional search and rescue crew member. Students will learn the latest wilderness medicine practices including how to treat, stabilize, provide care, and make appropriate evacuation decisions for patients in a remote setting.

EMT/Paramedic - What Happens to a Patient Before the ER? Here, participants will learn the large role EMTs and paramedics make in stabilizing and caring for patients as they're rushed to an emergency department.

MCSI is available to students within the service area of Char-Em ISD including Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties. The registration fee of $25 covers all workshop materials. Students also receive a surgical scrub shirt with the MCSI logo, continental breakfast and lunch during all sessions. They must provide their own transportation to NCMC. Seating is limited to the first 30 registrations. A pamphlet and registration form can be found at www.char-emisd.org, or call Patti Gabos at Char-Em ISD at (231) 582-8070 for more information or to receive a copy of the registration form.

15th Annual Bryan Roloff Memorial Jam

The 15th Annual Bryan Roloff Memorial fund Benefit will be from 1 p.m. to midnight on May 17 at the Gold Nugget in Ellsworth.

Roloff was a talented local guitarist. He won the Hot Licks contest in 1991 and had the honor of opening for Foghat/Nazareth in Traverse City on May 2, 1993. Two weeks later he was diagnosed with a brain tumor and died on May 6, 1994.

Bryan was a very devoted young man who loved his family, friends and music. This benefit is an annual event to celebrate his life, music and his spirit while helping others with medical needs.

The afternoon event will feature the following bands: Mox (The Push), Audio Circus, Charlie's Root Fusion, Jellyroll Blues Band, Bare Bones, Nancy's Fury, Lizzy's Ax-plu3, more to be announced. Doors open at 1 p.m. Bands start at 2 p.m. until midnight. $10 cover charge includes food. Must be 21 years of age. 50/50 drawings - Door Prizes - Silent Auction from 5 to 7 p.m.

All proceeds go to "The Bryan Roloff Memorial Medical Fund at The Charlevoix State Bank. For further information, call Shirley Roloff at 547-6169.

Charlevoix boys, girls sweep at Bellarie Invitational

It was a clean Rayder sweep on the track Monday, April 27.

Both Charlevoix teams earned victories at the 10-team Bellarie Invitational, as the Rayders boys won by 66.5 points over second-place Onaway, while Charlevoix girls slipped past Inland Lakes, 130.5-114.5.

The Inland Lakes boys placed fifth with 42 points, while Ellsworth was sixth with 37, and Pellston placed seventh with 33. In the girls' meet, Ellsworth, 32, was eighth; while Pellston was ninth with 28.

For the Charlevoix boys, Eric Buday won two events, the 1600-meter run in 4 minutes, 32.80 seconds; and the 800, 2:08.50; while Mat Golovich took first in the pole vault at 11 feet; and Bill Ivan won the shot put, 42.10 1/4.

The Rayders also won the 800 relay in 1:32.20, as well as claimed a pair of coed relay events, the 3200, 9:43.30, and the 1600, 4:04.80.

The Charlevoix girls won three events, including two relays. The Rayders' Madeline Jeakle was first in the high jump, 4-9; while Ellise Smolenyak, Alyssa Smith, Taylor Storm and Chantel Novotny teamed up to win the 800 relay in 1:53.40; and Kari Smolenyak, Sherry Boss, Sara Wilkinson and Kathryn Sell combined to win the 400 relay in 55.11.

For Inland Lakes, Becky Rotter won the 400 in 1:03.72; Breanna Ohlert took first in the pole vault with a school record vault of 9-6; Megan Bruniquel won the 100 hurdles, 17.10; and Rebecca Hair won the discus at 92-7 1/2.

The Pellston boys won the 400 relay in 49.08, while Ashton Fisher of Ellsworth won the 3200, 10:32.17.

Charlevoix soccer remains unbeaten

CHARLEVOIX — Junior Madison Way scored two first half goals as Charlevoix shut out Harbor Springs, 3-0, in its home opener Thursday.

Olivia Catt also scored while KC McCarty and Caroline

Dupuis each had an assist as Charlevoix improved to 2-0 both overall and in the league. Tammy Potter earned the shutout in goal, while Meredith Rich, Marnie Greene and Hannah Doan were lauded for their defensive efforts.

"For our first time on our home field, it was nice to get the win," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "Our defensive line did a good job of keeping Harbor out of our end."

PREP SOCCER CHARLEVOIX 5, EAST JORDAN 0

CHARLEVOIX — Taylor Smith scored two goals Thursday, April 30 as Charlevoix rolled past East Jordan in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

The Rayders, ranked eighth in the Division IV state coaches poll, improved to 7-2-1 overall, 6-1 league.

Olivia Catt, Bridget Peters and Hallie Bills also scored, while Catt picked up two assists, and KC McCarty, Peters and Hannah Doan had one each.

Tammy Potter posted the shutout in goal. Rachel Boss and Doan were Charlevoix's defensive standouts, coach Carol Madison said.

East Jordan goalkeeper Maribeth Poindexter made 38 saves, while Trista Karl-skin and Shenya Argetsinger were the Red Devils' defensive standouts.

"I was very pleased with the ladies tonight," East Jordan coach Peter Elliott said. "They worked hard all evening and improved on our last game with Charlevoix. We faced a strong team and they gave their best and can walk away satisfied with their job."

PREP ROUNDUP ELK RAPIDS 4-2, CHARLEVOIX 1-1

ELK RAPIDS — Troy Huhta's none-out bases-loaded single in the bottom of the sixth inning broke a 1-1 tie in the second game as Elk Rapids completed the Lake Michigan Conference sweep of the Rayders Thursday, April 30.

Charlevoix left 10 runners on, including eight in scoring position, in dropping the nightcap.

Michael Heckendorn had two hits and an RBI for Charlevoix, while Bill Ivan added a pair of hits, Alex Foster doubled and Coby Herriman singled.

Clayton Mitchell took the loss. He allowed three hits, walked two and struck out three. Ryan Forfinski earned the victory.

In the opener, Charlevoix trailed 4-1 in its final at-bat and loaded the bases with one out, but couldn't get the big hit.

Foster allowed four hits, walked two and struck out three in taking the loss.

Mitchell and Isaac Klooster each singled for the Rayders. Klooster drove in the Rayders' lone run with a bases-loaded walk.

Charlevoix is 2-12 overall, 1-8 league; Elk Rapids is 5-9, 3-5.

Charlevoix falls to Elk Rapids, Boyne City rolls in girls' soccer

Another tough opponent, and unfortunately for the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team, another one-goal loss.

Lake Michigan Conference-leading Elk Rapids scored the lone goal of the game 17 minutes into the first half and made it stand up for a 1-0 victory over the Rayders Monday, April 27.

Olivia Morrison scored the goal as Elk Rapids improved to 8-0-1 overall, 7-0 league. Chelsea Peters had the assist. Maggie Marshall posted the shutout in goal.

Charlevoix, coming off a 1-0 non-league loss to Petoskey, fell to 6-2-1 overall, 6-1 league.

"We just couldn't seem to finish," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "Individually, we played well, but we didn't seem to play together. Our passing seemed to be a bit off."

The Rayders nearly took an early lead as an Abby Barnes shot rang off the crossbar just five minutes in.

"If that shot would've went in, it could've changed the momentum of the game," Madison said. "We played them scoreless the entire second half."

Charlevoix outshot the Elks, 9-6. Tammy Potter finished with five saves in goal for the Rayders, who were playing without center back Meredith Rich.

Charlevoix won the JV game, 1-0, as Jane Balasz scored the lone goal of the game. Lauren Bartling earned the shutout in goal.

Spring into Action with ISD/AmeriCorps

Hundreds of students throughout Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will be encouraged to get fit and eat well as part of the ISD AmeriCorps' "Spring Into Action" project from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on May 9, at Petoskey High School when grades 3 through 5 will be exposed to various fitness and health activities.

As part of AmeriCorps Week celebrations, the ISD team of nine AmeriCorps members selected hosting and organizing the free event to give back to students, their families, and area schools. As children spend more time sitting in front of the TV or computer, they are spending less time outside and engaging in physical activity. This can lead to obesity, diabetes and other illnesses related to being overweight. At Spring Into Action, students will be invited to participate in three activities throughout the day. Activities include basketball, football, golf, hockey, La Crosse, martial arts, Pi lates, running, soccer, softball, swimming, volleyball, yoga, and Zumba. Mid-day, students will take a break – and enjoy eating – nutritional snacks. The MSU Extension Service will speak to pupils about making healthy snack choices. Students will also receive a T-shirt and a bag full of information about healthy eating and fitness. Northwestern Bank names Charlevoix vice president

Steve Weber

Northwestern Bank has announced that Steve Weber has joined the bank as vice president for the Charlevoix area. Steve has more than 30 years experience in the financial services industry including an extensive background in commercial lending. Before joining Northwestern he served as vice president/community banker for another financial institution in Petoskey.

A longtime northern Michigan resident, Steve sits on the board of trustees for Charlevoix Area Hospital and has actively served the community as a member of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and other organizations. He is a graduate of Eastern Illinois University.

Northwestern vice president Dave Taylor, the former manager of the Charlevoix office, has joined the bank's business development team in the Emmet County area. Northwestern has recently announced plans for an additional Emmet County office, scheduled to open next month in downtown Harbor Springs.

Northwestern Bank was chartered in 1955 and is now the largest independent community bank in northern Michigan. A growing financial institution with $840 million in assets, the bank is one of the leading mortgage, consumer, and commercial lenders in the region. Northwestern offers complete banking, investment and trust, and employee benefit services from 27 offices throughout northern Lower Michigan. Northwestern Bank is well-known for its "I can do that!" approach to service, which empowers its people to make decisions on the spot to meet customer needs and exceed their expectations.

Further information on the bank can be found at www.nwbank.com. Steve Weber can be reached at 547-6561.

110 Alien grass sites

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A seemingly harmless grass is devouring wildlife habitat, blocking views and destroying local beaches.

And, say local experts, this invasive species of Phragmites (fray-MY-nee-z) is doing so at an alarming rate.

"We did a survey of the lake-shores in February and March and found ... 110 sites where it had been," said Lake Charlevoix Association vice-president Dan Mishler. "Beaver Island has treated 27 acres over the last two years—this stuff can quickly take over."

He added, "I've heard that even ducks can't get through because it gets so thick. Nothing else in the environment can use the beach."

The Lake Charlevoix Association is working with the Charlevoix County Conservation District to spearhead the identification and eradication of the grass.

Called the common reed, Phragmites australis is a grass native to Michigan, but its cousin, an invasive Phragmites, tends to grow in wetlands and reach up to 15 feet tall.

The invasive grass is thought to have been brought to America's East Coast in the ballast water of ships in the 1800s.

"It has taken a long time to get here," Mishler said. "But, it's inching its way up—mostly by the roots."

Unlike many plants, which spread through seeds, Phragmites spreads when sections of its roots are fragmented.

In addition to choking out all other plant life, eliminating habitat for birds and other animals, the dense stands of the plant can present a fire hazard when the plants dry in the fall.

One of seven townships which have beaches at risk to the invasive grass, Norwood Township has been working on a plan to fight Phragmites since last fall.

"The ordinance was passed nearly three months ago," said Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton.

Norwood Township is partnering with St. Mary's Cement and Fisherman's Island State Park on this project. All three Vandalism Trial adjourned, motions pending

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The attorney for Austin Wilhelm, the former Charlevoix student charged with vandalism at the high school last May, wants the prosecutor thrown off the case.

According to Wilhelm's defense Mary Beth Kur, the prosecutor not only violated discovery by withholding taped conversations between witnesses and police, but one witness has claimed intimidation by the prosecutor's office.

"I did not get the taped interviews until six days before trial," Kur said. "It is beyond belief to me."

Kur said when she did finally get the tapes, the conversation between Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema and key witness Jason Faulkner was only partial.

"There is no explanation as to why, except that the tape wasn't on," she said, adding that the missing portion is believed to contain threats to Faulkner that he was under investigation.

Faulkner, an Oregon resident, testified during the preliminary examination on Feb. 3 that he gave a paint-covered sweatshirt to Wilhelm well before the vandalism at the high school which involved paint being sprayed and splashed inside a modular home built by the Charlevoix High School building and trades class.

Authorities believe some of the paint on the sweatshirt is similar to the paint used in the vandalism, but Faulkner testified that the shirt appeared to be in the same condition as when he gave it to Wilhelm.

There have been several unsuccessful attempts to contact Faulkner to have him return to Michigan for further testimony.

Jarema would not comment in detail on Kur's move to either have the case dropped or to have a new prosecutor assigned to it, but he did say his office would not drop the charges.

Kur also filed a motion to use Faulkner's original testimony, but Jarema insisted Faulkner must appear in the Charlevoix courtroom.

"I would like to question him about other evidence we have learned since the preliminary exam," Jarema said.

"Among accusations flying back and forth is the prosecutor's belief that Kur instructed Faulkner to avoid questioning

Jarema's written response to Kur's motion to have him disqualified as prosecutor filed in circuit court on May 7 stated,

"As soon as Mr. Faulkner stated he could not/would not speak with the detective unless defense counsel was on the line, although said defense counsel (Kur) doesn't represent him, ... red flags were raised as to whether the witness lied under oath and did so at the behest of defense counsel."

"He's (Jarema) made some pretty outlandish claims that I have told witnesses not to talk to the police and they are completely false," Kur said. "No body wants Jason Faulkner here more than I do."

Wilhelm's trial was supposed to begin Tuesday, May 12 in Judge Richard Pajtas 33rd Circuit Court, but proceedings have been postponed until all motions have been heard.

A hearing on the defense's motion to dismiss the case or disqualify the prosecutor is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. before Pajtas on Thursday, May 14.

While the focus is temporarily off Wilhelm, he still faces charges of breaking and entering a building with intent, a 10-year felony; and malicious destruction to a building, damage of more than $1,000 but less than $20,000, a five-year felony.

OPINIONS yours & ours

We all have a sense of direction

I just returned from spending a few days attending a conference in the beautiful and ever expanding furniture capital also known as Grand Rapids.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Genett

Knowing there would be some free time I couldn't wait to take in the sites of the big city.

My first adventure was getting lost in the parking structure.

It was well past midnight and already tired from the three hour drive I mistakenly walked through an exit that led to a construction site and away from the hotel.

Fortunately, with cell phone in hand and the hotel number memorized I contacted the bell hop—do they still call them that anymore?

He guided me in with the likes of a steady handed air traffic controller dealing with a passenger who lost their pilot.

My generous monetary tip inspired his quick smile as he bantered that he was on until 7 a.m. and pointed to his speed dial number in case I needed help again.

Early the next morning I decided to make a quick trip to the Grand Rapids Public Museum.

I walked in the front door just in time to hear a security guard exclaim, "They're here, they've arrived!" I had entered a minute before a jubilant group of third graders came in for a class trip. I was immediately whisked in with the group like spring chicks and a mother hen guided by a teacher the likes of a border collie.

I smiled at the guard and chaplains. My years of teaching found me automatically putting my finger to my lips to remind the youngsters to be quiet. I became part of their tour and learned what I felt was much more than I would have had I toured it alone.

This wonderful museum was a combination of Greenfield Village and the Chicago Museum of Field and Science. A must see on my next trip down to this area.

The next day I wanted to expand my sites further and quietly explained to the concierge about my ability of getting lost in less time than it takes for him to give me directions. I gave myself the diagnosis of "Dysmappia" hoping it would create an interest on his part to help me. This wonderful young person arranged for a taxi cab driver to help me with the rest of my journey.

The cab pulled into view and I welled up with the excitement that Lewis and Clark must have experienced as they set forth on their many adventures.

My cabbie said his name was Wilson, but his coffee colored skin, bright smile and heavy accent told me he was probably given another name at birth.

I couldn't help but recall Tom Hanks and his beloved Wilson in the movie "Joe and the Volcano" and felt immediately that Wilson was going to be my new-found friend as well. Wilson drove me to my next destination, the Fredrick Meijer Gardens. Upon my arrival I was met by a volunteer who suggested I take the tram for a complete one hour tour of the sculptures and gardens.

It was a wise choice again as I learned a lot and security was not sent to find me on one of the many winding paths during closing time. While waiting for Wilson to pick me up in front of the gardens I sat and watched the workers and volunteers leave in their cars to return home and I felt envy because they all had a sense of direction.

While there are thousands of flowers to be planted, the whole process happens rather quickly, so be sure to get there at 5 p.m. and secure your spot.

Then, following the community-wide planting, be sure to get your ticket good for a hot-dog, chips, cookies and something to drink down at East Park where the

We were five miles into our journey when we abruptly stopped due to a long line of traffic created by an accident on the expressway. Wilson quickly stuck his arm out the window, made a few taps on his horn and maneuvered us down side streets with the agility and speed of Popeye in "The French Connection."

I viewed parts of the city I would have surely taken in if lost, but I would have felt overwhelmed and scared. Instead I was comforted to know that this man from Haiti could aptly drive the side streets of Grand Rapids that he knew so well.

He had a great sense of direction and we arrived back to the hotel in record time.

When I arrived back to my room there were a number of messages awaiting my return call.

All of the callers needed advice and direction. Not the compass kind but a listening ear that could decipher the best way to handle their difficult situation.

I guided a friend through her medical demise and another through a dilemma with a work related situation.

Later that day while sipping iced tea and basking in the warmth of the beautiful spring day, it was then that I realized I do have a sense of direction.

Helping others find their way through life's ups and downs is much more important than knowing which side moss grows on a tree. I realized as long as there are Wilson's in the world to get me to my destination in a physical sense it really was not a handicap but a blessing in disguise. I met volunteers, a concierge and a bell hop, all of whom would not been in my path if I had a better sense of reading a map and understanding direction with Eagle Scout precision.

Many individuals have a weakness whether it is physical, mental, spiritual or emotional; it's recognizing this inadequacy, accepting it and finding the means to get through it that makes living worthwhile. Most of us feel a sense of self worth by helping someone. My new job is to bring joy to others by making them feel useful by their guidance of physically getting me where I need to be and in return I can assist them in the decisions they are faced with in their daily lives. We all have our own sense of direction it's just a matter of how you view it.

Celebrate spring with petunias and hot-dogs

It's that time of year again: Petunia planting time.

Not only does next week's annual celebration of spring, flowers and Charlevoix the Beautiful mark the end of old man winter, but it means summer isn't too far off and with it the resurgence of the local economy.

And now, with East Park construction completed—word is the trout stream will be finished and ready for the Friday, May 15 dedication ceremony—we have even more to celebrate.

We cannot wait to see all the familiar faces out there planting Charlevoix's favorite flower, but we urge anyone who has never participated to come on out and plant a flat or two.

This year's festivities begin at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 21.

Just show up anywhere along the five-mile strip of US 31/Bridge Street from Mercer Boulevard on the north side to Harbor Industries on the south side and get to planting.

Nearly 1,500 flats in a rainbow of colors of these familiar flora will be located along the edge of both sides of the road.

While you do not need any special skill to plan, it is helpful to bring a trowel or spoon to speed up the process and save your fingernails.

While there are thousands of flowers to be planted, the whole process happens rather quickly, so be sure to get there at 5 p.m. and secure your spot.

Then, following the community-wide planting, be sure to get your ticket good for a hot-dog, chips, cookies and something to drink down at East Park where the Charlevoix High and North-west Academy school bands will serenade picnickers.

So, come on out and see why, for nearly three decades, the annual spring petunia planting party has been a Charlevoix tradition.

KUDOS LEARN & SERVE

Editor:
I want to express my Thank you to Charlevoix Middle school teacher Gretchen Rice and her second hour class. They have prepared reading and math activities to share with my daycare program. They used the Serve & Learn grant program. They come to us and give very special one on one attention to our young preschoolers. They read them a story or two and have a project that corresponds to the story they have just read.

They have taught about Michigan, planting seeds, counting and colors. They have done activities with them indoors and outside. My kids can't wait until they get here. They talk proudly about what they have done and fondly of their partner. I think everyone is having a great time. I year olds to adults. I think this is a wonderful project and I hope we can do it again next year

This is a benefit to all who participate, myself included. These students are kind, gentle and wonderful young ladies and gentlemen. I am proud to have them in my community and look forward to them coming to our daycare. I am glad Mrs. Rice put it all together. We are very fortunate to have teachers like her in our school rooms and our community. Pauline Young Charlevoix

SAVE THE TREES

Editor:
Are you a person who likes to wake up to the birds singing, or going for a walk in the forest?
I know I do! But what if the birds and the trees were gone? I believe cutting down forests is hurting people and animals. Every day, animal habitats are being destroyed. By taking away their habitats, we are causing animals to become endangered or extinct! We are forcing animals to live in smaller spaces or polluted areas. Deforestation is also hurting humans. We need trees to help clean our air. Without clean air, we would have to breathe polluted air, and that could make us sick. So besides cutting down forests and clearing land, there are other things we can do to make our cities grow. There are empty buildings in almost every city that are waiting to be used or reused. Also it costs less money than clearing land and building new buildings. Finally, if we need lumber, then we should plant new trees to replace the ones we cut down. We can work together to keep our forests and clean air and protect our animals.

Hip band seeks cool cats City band diverse, therapeutic and fun

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

They've played parades, East Park, Castle Farms, and while they are as good as they are diverse, they're looking for even more musicians.

So you haven't blown the dust off the old trombone in 40 years, and maybe that tuba has been holding up a corner of the couch—no matter, according to Charlevoix City Band Director Gary Stutzman.

"We'll take people that want to come and play at all skill levels," he said. "We are really wide open: our instrumentation is a full symphonic band with flutes, clarinets, sax, trombones, baritone, percussion."

For more than 100 years the city band has been playing at festivals thanks to the volunteer efforts of local musicians who want little more than to have fun, fellowship and an opportunity to play in front of a crowd.

"In a section of four tubas, I play fifth chair," joked tuba player Ron Willey. "Whereas my wife is first chair alto sax."

He added, "We've got the total gamut from total professional to rank beginner—it's a nice variety and I've got a lot of friends associated with it."

While some players have been in the band for 40 or 50 years, newcomer Leslie Cunningham was recently encouraged to join.

"My kids got me a flute for my 60th birthday and my first thought was 'damn, I've got to learn how to play,'" she said. "But, it's been great. I am learning new things every day and I am learning that music is a wonderful stress reliever."

Cunningham added that prospective band mates should join because, "It's a great way to stay young and give something back to their community."

Cunningham said she hopes to learn Stars and Stripes Forever on the piccolo.

"Everybody's welcome, no matter what their skill level," she said. "They're only going to get better."

According to trombone player Steve Kroll, getting better sometimes means more than just becoming a better musician.

There is a tremendous sense of accomplishment," said Kroll, who was unsure he'd ever be able to play again after his stroke. "In just a few months, I was able to get my chops (skills) back."

Kroll may be new to the band, but his musical career started nearly 40 years ago while he was stationed in Texas for two years after being drafted into the Vietnam War.

After being a member of the band for an armored division, he taught music in Texas for several years.

To join the band, simply show up at 6:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the Charlevoix Middle School band room.

The Charlevoix City Band's first concert will 8 p.m., June 30 with a patriotic concert to celebrate the Fourth of July. "We don't do auditions," Stutzman said. "The band has a place for every level—we don't restrict people from playing, even if they can't play all the music."

Rabbi builds 6,000-mile bridge

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

For a man with such high hopes, he comes off as pretty modest.

Rabbi David Louis is also a bit of a realist: He knows he cannot change the world by himself, but that isn't stopping him from building a bridge between the cultures of Jerusalem and Charlevoix.

"We're not so different," Louis said of Jews, Christians, Muslims and even atheists. "Understandably there are a lot of troubles in Israel, but that impression can also be misleading because inside of Israel, 2.5 million Arabs live ... they just want to make a living and take care of their kids."

He added, "Unfortunately, a small group of people can make a lot of noise."

Now on sabbatical in northern Michigan for at least six months to further study music and lecture at various venues, Louis is focusing on making spiritual and mental connections with as many people as possible.

"My fantastic aspirations on the high end are to promote world peace through education and music," Louis said. "And that one day there would be one absolutely undivided common church, one god and the unity of all mankind."

Right now, Louis said, he would settle with connecting the youth of Israel with the youth of Charlevoix.

"We're going to try to put together a coffee house where people can play music and read poetry and have bible readings in a positive atmosphere," he said.

Louis hopes to connect the coffee house in Charlevoix with the one his son runs in Israel.

"Right in the heart of Jerusalem, it's a small place of old Jerusalem brick with high ceiling rooms," he said. "It has a good little stage where three or four people can play at one time."

Louis said the younger generations of all denominations frequent the spot nightly from midnight to 4 a.m.

"They do bible studies and silent prayer," he said. "It's a spiritual place."

Louis, who grew up on Illinois, has lived in Israel for 35 years.

He teaches and lectures on the subject of Jewish philosophy, metaphysics and mysticism called kabbalah.

"The word 'Kabbalah' means 'receiving' in Hebrew," he said. "The science of Kabbalah is based on the fact that god only gives—he doesn't receive. He created the world out of love, and when man is a receiver, he makes himself opposite of god."

Louis added, "When he (man) becomes a giving person, he becomes closer to god; more similar to god."

Though he misses his home already, Louis said he loves visiting America.

"America is a great country. You've got freedom of religion," he said. "The founding fathers said there would be no persecution for religious beliefs and that we have to respect each other's opinions."

Louis then pulled two wrinkled sheets of paper from his wallet and began reading Thomas Jefferson's bill for establishing religious freedom in Virginia.

Louise read the entire two pages, and then reread, with emphasis, the following: "No man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatsoever, nor shall be enforced, restrained, molested, or burthened in his body or goods, nor shall otherwise suffer, on account of his religious opinions or belief; but that all men shall be free to profess, and by argument to maintain, their opinions in matters of religion, and that the same shall in no wise diminish, enlarge, or affect their civil capacities."

An avid trumpet and flute player, Louis plans to work on some recording and playing with various bands in between lectures.

To help with the coffee house or to get a schedule of Louis' appearances, call call (231) 459-5101.

Louis will also host a bible study gathering at 7 p.m., Wednesdays, call to RSVP.

100-day fitness challenge

Become healthier by being active, doing the things you enjoy, and by participating in the Northern Michigan Community fitness challenge called "Let's Get Moving Northern Michigan" (LGMNM). Increasing physical activity is the goal of LGMNM. This fitness program is for the residents of Charlevoix, and other Northern Michigan counties. There is no cost to join.

Residents of Charlevoix County that are registered in the "Let's Get Moving" program will automatically be entered to win bi-weekly prizes. Visit www.lgmnm.com under Charlevoix County for a list of prize sponsors.

Participants can join individually or as a team. It is a great chance for employers to motivate their employees to become healthier.

"Here at Charlevoix Hospital, our Wellness Committees divides us up into teams. This year, employees will be grouped by department. The physicians will have their own team headed by Dr. Rod Tinney. The nurses are already starting to strategize their team plan. It got pretty competitive last year, this year promises to be no different. We had a lot of fun with the program and look forward to starting it again." Said Kathy Jacobsen RN and Charlevoix County Coordinator for LGMNM.

The official 100-day fitness challenge begins on May 20 and ends August 27. Research has shown that after 100 days of doing something, it becomes a habit. For detailed information on this challenge, log on to lgmnm.org.

or call the office of Community Health Education at Charlevoix Area Hospital at 231-547-8906.

Camp Daggett still thriving

Even though many camps are struggling with decreasing registrations due to the economy, Camp Daggett is 87 percent full, and still taking registrations for the remaining openings. Families believe that Camp Daggett is the most important summer experience for their children.

Every year, over 1,000 children ages 7-14 get the opportunity to spend a week at Camp Daggett.

They experience the beauty of the natural environment that the camp provides, make new friends, try new things and have loads of fun. The summer program also develops a feeling of acceptance, respect and courage that campers take home with them. Camping provides a setting in which children can live, learn, and develop skills that are useful throughout their lives. Activities include adventure ropes courses, archery, group sports and games, sailing, swimming, canoeing and fishing, arts and crafts and nature study, hikes, campfires and camp outs.

Camp Daggett offers eight one-week coed camping sessions starting in June 14 and ending August 8. Campers range in age from 7 through 14 years. These one-week sessions are offered for $375 for Charlevoix and Emmet County residents.

For more challenging wilderness excursions for youth 13 to 15 years old, there are four different camp adventures. On the Beachcomber adventure (June 28-July 4), youth will explore Nordhouse Dunes, the only designated Wilderness area in Michigan's Lower Peninsula, and a great place to explore, romp and have fun. This three day, two night trip will encompass camping on the dunes and day hiking around historic light-houses along the Lake Michigan Shoreline. The Pathfinder (July 19-25) is a backpacking and canoeing trip on one of the most popular loop hikes in Michigan, the Jordan River Pathway. During the four-day, three night adventure, youth will explore trails as well as canoe a section of the Jordan River. Finally, if you are looking for more challenging wilderness excursions, the Explorer (June 22-28) is just for you. Our destination will be the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore along the southern shore of Lake Superior for four days and three nights. While here, we will take in the undisturbed beauty of one of the largest freshwater lakes in the world and marvel at the immaculate limestone formations that serve as its shoreline.

Scholarships are available to campers who need financial assistance. For more information, call (877) 582-9742 or (231) 347-9742.

Camps are rapidly filling, and Camp Daggett encourages families to join our family this summer for a meaningful and memorable experience of a lifetime. For more information, visit www.campdaggett.com or call (231) 347-9742.

We love you

Ms. Barb!

Ms. Barb: Thanks for all the great years and memories. We are now in Sweden and we both speak Swedish! Brandon loves to do puzzles, has many friends, and organizes his racecars by color, size and type! Isabella is excellent at school, has lots of friends, and is great at math and reading! Both kids say thanks for the wonderful memories and background which made it possible to be here.

Love and kisses, Isabella and Brandon Baum

Thank you for being my teacher I will never forget you.

I love you, Ella

Best wishes for a happy future.

Nancy Allison

I had lots of fun at the Children's House, especially when we did the make-a-thon because I never got a flu shot!

Danny Nesburg

When I was in Ms. Barb's class, I think I was the only one who was at the Children's House. I love her hugs and all the things she did there. No matter how I got, I still want to be a part of it when I visit her. She is a great teacher.

Jacob Robinson (age 8, 3rd grader at Boyne City Elementary)

Thank you, Ms. Barb and thank you for showing us the new world.

Lauren Shepard

Barb, thank you so very much for all your dedication and wisdom you have brought to Charlevoix Children's House. Your love and caring for our children during the years following has been wonderful for our family.

We love you, Linda and Jason Whitley

Thank you for teaching me at Charlevoix Children's House.

Love, Carson

Thank you for all the love, love her a lot, love her a lot? Cause I love her a lot!

Joshua Robinson (age 5, kindergarten at Boyne City Elementary)

I think Ms. Barb is a GREAT artist! She always gives you hugs no matter how old you are. So far, she is my favorite teacher, and I think she will always be my favorite teacher. Here are some adjectives that describe her. She is funny, kind, fun, awesome, helpful, loving, caring, very nice, artistic and last, but not least, she is patient. There are a lot more adjectives to describe her, but I can't write them all. I also liked her because she loved animals, and best of all she LOVES kids. I also love when she comes camping with us. I LOVE Ms. Barb.

Rachel Nesburg

Ms. Barb impressed me with her gentle, kind spirit from the first moment we met. Her love of children radiated in the classroom. She guided them with their tasks. Each child was always respected as an individual and encouraged to develop his or her own independence and creativity. During her years of devoted service it was always about the children or "What would Maria do?" I feel truly blessed that our children developed their love for learning in all areas of life with Ms. Barb as their teacher. Our family will always appreciate her dedication and love.

Annette Nesburg

Ms. Barbara has proved to be a friend, a support, and a guide with our children. She has given of herself personally and professionally time and time again. Our family has been very blessed through her involvement in our children's educational and emotional growth.

Barb Robinson

Thank you for your incredible patience and sincere dedication to so many children over 20 years. You will surely be missed by all. Your love and devotion for Josee and Maqgee remains a great foundation for their life path. Their eyes light up when a visit to see you is mentioned! Thanks for all the love.

Love, The Behling Family

I loved going to the Children's House and playing with Jami. It's fun to go back and visit.

Michael Nesburg

Kind, caring, friendly, loving, respectful, knowledgeable and joyful are just a few words to describe Ms. Barb. She can brighten a child's day just by saying Hello. She has put my mind at ease many times with her loving manner. My favorite thing she did with each of our children is a story dictation. She would make it truly their own story. She will be missed by many and hold a special place in our hearts. Best Wishes Ms. Barb you are one of a kind and we have been truly blessed to have had you in our children's lives.

Love, The Romano Family

Ms. Barb would always give me a big bear hug whenever she saw me. She is a great artist and comes up with the best games. If you fell and got a cut on your knee she would help take care of it and get all the nasty germs out. So far she is the nicest person I have ever met, and she is pretty funny. She has the best games at the Children's House and I still like to play with them and I am nine. I think Ms. Barb is really patient unlike my mom and there are lots of other good things about Ms. Barb but can't run out of room.

Natalie Nesburg

It has been an honor and privilege to work with you for over 20 years. May God shower you with all the blessings that you so deserve.

Dianne, Bill and the Dreyer children

Philip, 2-year Children's House veteran, loved doing art projects with Ms. Barb and Mr. Dave and learning about their studio.

Jake, 3-year Children's House veteran remembers most the many nature walks in the woods behind the school and I.

The Conway Family

Thank you for starting our children on the right track. Your love, knowledge and understanding has made such a difference in their lives. Best Wishes in all your endeavors.

HUGS RULE!

John, Kim, Cora and Keon Taylor

Best wishes from all your students and parents!

Ms. Barb is retiring after 20 years at CCH. Come honor her commitment & dedication.

Join the Relay for Life

There is good news in the search for a cancer cure. Cancer death rates continue to decrease, according to the American Cancer Society. This means we are making progress in the fight against cancer — progress you can be a part of through your local Relay For Life event. "All of us who participate in Relay are a part of the cure," stated Lindsey Malpass-Skop, Public Relations Chair for Charlevoix County. "Everything we do at Relay contributes to reducing cancer mortality and incidences. Whether it is raising dollars that go to support patient programs and research or volunteering to commit to advocacy and education efforts — we're all a part of the fight."

This year's Relay will be held at Castle Farms in Charlevoix on Aug. 15 and 16.

Relay For Life offers every one in the community an opportunity to participate in the fight against cancer, and we want to encourage everyone to get their team together. Teams are often made up of co-workers, friends and family members. Many businesses, community organizations and religious groups also build teams.

Prior to the Relay event, team members raise dollars by fundraising and securing sponsorships. During Relay, teams camp out overnight and take turns walking a track in an effort to raise awareness and funds in the fight against cancer.

This year marks the fourth year for Relay For Life of Charlevoix County featuring a new Fight Back Ceremony. While the Luncheon and Survivor Ceremonies offer us time to remember those we've lost and celebrate those who have won the battle, the Fight Back Ceremony gives everyone a chance to make a personal commitment to how they're going to take action against cancer.

If you are interested in starting or joining a team, log on to www.relayforlife.org and follow the links to the Relay For Life of Charlevoix County page.

If you're not able to join a team, simply log on to make a donation.

For more information, call Lindsey Malpass-Skop at (231) 536-7959.

This year's participants in the Middle Division include seventh graders Emily Roloff, Shelby Robinson, Lexie Barnes, and Mallory Murray.

Students active in the Senior Division are nine sophomores: Taylor Smith, Erica Smith, Lindsey Laway, Lynzie Gotshall, Emily Mielke, Katie Mays, Abby Wilhelm, Karinne Smolenyak, and Hallie Blits. Future Problem Solving teams are coached by Lynn Smolenyak and Jill Tabaczka (high school teacher), and advised by Amy Pott, a middle school teacher.

A team of Senior Division students was recently invited to participate in the annual FPS State Bowl held at Michigan State University April 25th and 26th against 99 teams from across the state. Going in, teams were aware of the general topic of the bowl—"The Counterfeit Economy"—but did not know the specific nature of the problem they would be asked to solve until competition began. Solutions are evaluated on clearly established criteria, and the top five teams from each division received trophies.

Competing that weekend were Emily Mielke, Katie Mays, Karinne Smolenyak and Lynzie Gotshall. Overall, they earned 5th place out of 19 Senior teams for their booklet writing on Counterfeit Economy and 3rd place for presentation of their detailed action plan. On an individual basis, Karinne Smolenyak earned first place for Scenario Writing (a 1500-word fictional piece on the topic of "Pandemic") and 2nd place in individual booklet writing, earning her the chance to compete in the International FPS Conference at MSU May 29 through 31.

Seemingly harmless grass

GRASS

entireties will share the same permit which, once approved by the state, will allow them the apply herbicide to the plants this fall.

Officials say it is impossible to put a dollar figure on lost enjoyment of a lakefront homeowner's beach, and that the loss of native wildlife and tourism to overrun beaches would be immeasurable.

"This is like an alien invader," Mushler said. "And it's got to be stopped."

Hayes Township is also working on a plan to rid their shoreline of the grass.

We are in the process of adopting a Phragmites ordinance, then having someone identifying any spots in the township," said Hayes Township Clerk Marlene Golovich.

Once the major stands of grass have been destroyed, Hayes Township intends to closely monitor the potential for new growth by conducting annual inspections and producing reports to track new growth and the resurgence of the plant in areas thought to have been decimated.

Charlevoix Township also has passed an ordinance dealing with the invasive grass.

"We do have some along Lake Michigan ... but we don't have any reports of it (Phragmites) on any property within the township," said Charlevoix Township Supervisor Dale Glass. "We are proceeding with trying to gather the information to go for the permits."

Glass said he will not know what purchasing and applying the herbicide will cost the township until later this summer.

"Right now we're just trying to get the permits—it's a highly complicated procedure," he said. But, he added, "It's going to have to be an area-wide effort. We can't just have one area treated (Phragmites) or it's going to spread."

Phragmites' most vulnerable time is in the fall, and that is when it must be treated for maximum effect.

Officials urge people not to burn the grass as it burns very hot and will stimulate rapid growth.

"You can really make it worse, so we really don't want people trying to treat it on their own," Mushler said. "It is important to contact us and work with us and we'll do it right."

For more information and to see a completed map of Phragmites hot spots, which should be up by the end of the week, visit www.lakecharlevoix.org.

To report a Phragmites stand or to learn how you can volunteer to help stop the spread of the invasive grass, e-mail info@nrcan.org.

FILE PHOTO

Phragmites fighter Carol Apol is seen here swallowed by stands of the invasive species phragmites, a type of grass which grows near water and can reach 15 feet in height. Phragmites is deemed undesirable for its penchant for blocking views and choking out all other plant life as it is hearty, prolific and fast growing.

Turning CO2 to fuel Charlevoix grad' turns emissions to fuel

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now finishing his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering at University of Nevada, Reno, Charlevoix graduate York Smith is on the cutting edge of green technology.

Smith's project was so impressive that he won second place in the coveted Donald W. Reynolds Governor's Cup Award for best collegiate business plan in the undergraduate division.

"I was very shocked," Smith said. "I knew we would do well, but I didn't really think we could make it this far."

Smith and his team member Palkin Zed, won second place for their Carbon Gold business wherein CO2 emissions are reduced by collecting exhaust gases from energy plants and altering it to make it a viable fuel like propane.

"The idea of actually converting the CO2 emissions rather than putting them into the ground has been pretty well worked on ... for the last 15 years," he said. "However, developing a full process that uses a couple steps to convert it from the (smoke) stack to the tank of your vehicle has never been fully developed before."

Smith added, "We're not saying this is the Holy Grail, the solution to all our problems. It's just a different approach that nobody has taken."

According to Smith, what makes a good fuel is how much carbon it possesses.

"If you have CO2, you really can't burn it because it only has one carbon, as opposed to octane which is gasoline which has eight or more sometimes," he said. "So, you have to take carbon dioxide and strip off oxygen and add hydrogen to it and then you can really start to make some good fuels."

Smith added, "And this is all done through catalysts using sunlight." In addition to returning to the University of Nevada, Reno to work on his master's degree in chemical engineering, Smith has also earned the opportunity to study in India for six months.

"I'll be working in a research exchange with UNR (University of Nevada, Reno) and the India Institute of Technology," he said. "That's a pretty good university over there."

Smith said he will likely enter the field of green technology as it is wide open to chemical engineers.

"There is big demand for developing these technologies, people can use to improve their lives," he said. "And, it's better for the environment."

Smith will now go on to compete in the Tri-State Reynolds Cup where he will face competition from three states.

Smith's mother Mary Lou Smith said she is very proud of her son's accomplishments.

"It was very exciting," she said. "He's worked very hard."

CHARLEVOIX 8-3, HARBOR LIGHT 5-8

Harbor Light Christian rebounded in the second game to earn a non-league split with Charlevoix Friday, May 8.

Charlevoix scored six runs in the fifth inning of the opener. Heckendorn had two hits, while Bill Ivan doubled, and Clayton Mitchell, Mike Kras and Foster each singled. Largent and Foster finished with two RBI apiece, while Ivan and Andrew Potter each drove in a run. Kras struck out four, walked three and allowed four runs on four hits through five innings for the win.

Collin Hewitt earned the win in relief for the Swordsmen, who are 14-3-1 and ranked No. 3 in the Division IV state coaches poll. Hewitt gave up two runs on one hit in four innings of relief. Mark Fila started and gave up a run on two hits while striking out three. Jake Ellis also pitched in relief for Harbor Light. Mark Fila singled and doubled, Ben Cole and Ellis had two hits apiece, and Brant Cole singled for the Swordsmen.

Michael Heckendorn, Alex Foster and Drew Largent each singled for Charlevoix. Brant Cole allowed six runs on seven hits while striking out one in taking the loss. Hewitt pitched in relief.

Brant Cole, Mark Fila, Hewitt and Ellis each singled for the Swordsmen.

Investing Lessons from the Vineyards

Ben Muladore
Financial Advisor

As an investor, you can get plenty of advice from financial experts on the evening news or cable financial shows. But you may actually be able to learn some deeper truths about investing by observing other professionals — such as winemakers.

At first glance, you might not see what these "guardians of the grape" can teach you about building an investment portfolio. After all, they're shaping Sangiovese while you're seeking stocks, they're bottling Burgundy while you're buying bonds, and they're mastering Malbec while you're monitoring mutual funds. Where's the connection?

Start by considering the life cycle of wine and the concept of "vintage." For example, a particular wine is labeled a 2005 vintage if it is made from grapes that were predominantly grown and harvested in 2005. Yet given the requirements of wine production, this 2005 vintage may not actually hit the markets until 2008 — and some aficionados may think the wine won't taste its best until 2018.

If you translated this type of scenario to the financial world, you could say that the 2008 investment "vintage" was not promising, given that the value of almost all investments — even the quality ones — fell last year. But if you were to hold these quality investments for the long term — as you should, because investing is a long-term activity — you might find that the 2008 vintage investments may eventually become productive vehicles that can help you achieve your financial goals.

So, what lessons can you learn from winemakers? Here are a few suggestions:

- Be patient. Winemakers put a lot of time, effort and money into planting today's grapes — for which they will not see one penny of profit for many years. Yet they have the discipline to wait patiently until the products of their labors come to fruition. Are all their wines successful? No — and all your investments may not be, either. But given enough time, quality investments can usually help you work toward your financial goals.

- Have faith in your strategy. Wine drinkers' tastes can change from year to year. Yet winemakers don't rip out their vineyards and replant them with today's "hot" varietal. Instead, they cultivate the grapes they've planted, make the best wine they can and maintain their belief that their products will find a market. As an investor, you can't allow yourself to be swayed by today's hot tips and trends. Instead, build a portfolio of quality investments that can stand the test of time.

- Adapt your goals to your situation. One of the most famous winemaking regions in the world, Napa Valley, contains a number of microclimates that vary by temperature, rainfall and soil. Napa Valley winemakers know which grapes will do best in which microclimate, and they concentrate their efforts accordingly. And you, as an individual investor, should make your investment decisions based on your own "microclimate" — your risk tolerance, family situation, time horizon and other factors. In other words, you should choose those investments that are best suited for you and that have the best chance to help you meet your goals.

Investing, like winemaking, is filled with challenges. But by observing how winemakers work, you may learn some things that can eventually help you raise a glass to your own success.

Harbor best in country

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now in its 63rd year of business, Harbor Industries of Grand Haven and Charlevoix continues to garner recognition as one of the country's top businesses.

Most recently, the business was named the Jeffrey Butland Family Owned Business of the Year in a pool of companies across America, and prior to that they were named among the 100 best and brightest companies.

"I think one of the main reasons we received these honors has to do with our community involvement," said Harbor Industries president Tim Parker, the third generation in his family to run the point of purchase display manufacturer. "We encourage our employees and we send them out on our time to volunteer and make a difference in their communities."

In addition to increasing the amount of involvement his employees spend on their own time, Parker said allowing workers to spend some of their days helping their fellow man works toward the larger goal of a strong community.

"We have a very family oriented company, and that's not just because of the Parker family, that is because all of our employees treat each other as part of their families," he said.

Harbor was first named Family Owned Business of the Year by the Small Business Administration of Michigan on April 30, and then it was recognized regionally among companies from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Founded in Grand Haven in 1946, the company was run by Tim's grandfather Henry

Charlevoix car seller seeks answers

RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS REVIEW

Targeted for the elimination of a General Motors franchise, the operators of a local car dealership hope they can convince the automaker to reconsider.

Rick Summers, regional director for Fox Motors, said the company's Charlevoix dealership received a letter from GM Friday, indicating that its franchise would not be renewed beyond the next 18 months.

"We are appealing that, because we think they made a misinformed decision," he added. "Our sales have been above objective most every quarter for the past two years."

The dealership, which carries GM's Chevrolet, Buick, Pontiac and Cadillac brands, also has seen positive results in terms of customer satisfaction ratings, Summers noted.

"We're just kind of puzzled and looking for answers on what's what," he said.

Summers noted that the dealership hasn't received much detail from GM as to what prompted its non-renewal decision. Based on what he heard from one GM regional staffer, the Fox manager said the dealership's pairing of GM and Chrysler franchises may have played a part.

If GM doesn't reconsider, Summers said the Fox chain's relationship with other auto makers perhaps could help in landing a new franchise for the Charlevoix location. Operating as a Chrysler-only store — Fox carries the Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge lines as well as Chrysler's Global Electric Motorscars in Charlevoix — is another possibility for the future, he added.

This year, GM products account for about half of the Charlevoix location's new vehicle sales, Summers said, and had generated a bit larger share in years past.

The Charlevoix dealership currently employs 21 people, and Summers doesn't expect GM's decision will reduce that number.

Summers said he's heard from some in the community who intend to organize a letter-writing campaign in hope of getting reconsideration from GM.

"That made me feel real good," he added.

GM, which is looking to thin its dealer network as part of cost-cutting restructuring efforts — notified dealerships in writing on Friday if they were targeted for franchise elimination. For the automaker's two Petoskey dealerships, the day passed without that type of news arriving.

Mary Foster, one of four siblings who operate Fleich's of Petoskey — which carries Buick, Pontiac and GMC — said

New fear of old plants

The following is a reprint of an essay previously published.

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Phragmites (frag-might-ease) is invading! Garlic Mustard is invading! Purple Loosestrife is invading! They are choking out other plants! They are taking over natural habitats! They are suppressing wildlife! We have to do something NOW! Let's get together and eliminate the troublesome plant.

Our usual response to such imminent threats is to rally the public and do everything we can to eradicate the invaders. We might even consider spraying large areas with herbicides that will kill all the plants sprayed, not just the one we see as the most dominant of the most offensive. Actually eradicating an established plant is so close to impossible it should hardly be considered.

There are some general botanical rules we might examine before beginning public eradication efforts, and there are some specific facts regarding particular kinds of plants.

The natural world with its many thousands of different plants and creatures is not like the Internet, where if we get the right software we can speed things up. The community of plants and animals that occupies any particular part of the world responds to changes in climate, to changes in kinds of organisms, plant and animal, and it does so at its own pace, not the pace we might choose.

Think about how plants get from one place to another. They are spread by spores and seeds, which are carried by wind, water and other organisms including humans. Every one of those plants and animals used to live somewhere else, and at some time in the past invaded new territory. In every case, the plants and animals already there adapted to the new invaders. They did it at the pace of the natural world, where change is generally slow by our hurry-up standards. It is also worth pointing out that up to now there is not a single case of any invasive plant eliminating any plant that was already there when it arrived.

Any invading plant is likely to temporarily alter the numbers of other kinds of plants. It may temporarily reduce the numbers of some plant we particularly like. How long is temporary? It depends on the plant. Sugar Maples, for example will change very slowly in response to some new organism. A tree might have to live for 10 or 15 years or more before it begins to produce seeds, and may live for hundreds of years. We will most likely not see any overall change in Sugar Maples in several human lifetimes. Other plants grow with great speed, live for less than a year and produce a new generation of seeds in a few weeks or months. Quickweed, so called, one of the common weeds in our street-side petunia beds, would adapt very quickly to changes. It might even become resistant to herbicides in just a few years if it were sprayed consistently, with only the resistant plants living to produce seed for the next generation. Most plants fall somewhere between those extremes and are capable of noticeable change in a few years to a few decades.

Now, how about Phragmites growing along our coastlines. First of all it is not an invader in the usual sense. Phragmites grows all over the temperate world, and is found in dozens of Michigan counties. One of its common names is Ditch Reed, and it is often seen along highways, where it occupies damp, recently bare ditches. Strains of the plant differ from place to place and time to time, but they

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

Because we were nuclear-powered and did not need to visit port for refueling we often spent 60 days or more at sea in the area known as the Tonkin Gulf Yacht Club.

Down in the engine room, where I worked, we often complained when it was your turn to stand the midnight watch. It was the only time of day temperatures dipped below 100 degrees, and, unlike the day watches there was no expectation we would fix, clean, or paint anything.

And so we would convene under the ventilation duct that blew in that refreshing 90 degree night air from topside and swap stories.

There was always plenty to gab about around the old vent duct after we'd been in port or when there had been an event aboard ship, such as the shellback initiation ceremony as we crossed the equator.

But after a month or so, all the fresh story material was exhausted and we reverted to the reliable standby source for all tall tales: our lives before the Navy.

The stories we each told somehow connected us to the real world.

It reassured us we had once enjoyed a real life filled with family and friends and females, and bolstered the hope that when our time was up we would once again be free to pick up our lives where we'd left off.

And so the stories rolled out, night after night under the vent duct, and in that spirit of late night telling of tall tales known to military men everywhere we embellished, we invented, and we misrepresented our pre-Navy lives. After all, it was the South China Sea, it was midnight, and none of us were going anywhere anyway.

Under the vent duct the second string high school fullback from Iowa that rarely rose from the bench scored the game-winning touchdown at homecoming.

And under the vent duct the kid from Arizona who could not get a date for the prom told and retold tall tales of romantic adventures under the desert stars.

Of all the stories I heard under the vent duct only one has stuck with me. The story was told by a tall, gangly kid from West Virginia named Charley. Charley and I spent five years together on active duty and I came to believe this story happened just as he said.

Charley said one day when he was around five or six his dad stood him up on the kitchen counter, took three steps back, and held out his arms. "Jump," he told Charley. "I'll catch you."

Charley hesitated. To a kid, it seemed like a scary proposition. "Jump, Charley," his dad encouraged. "You can trust me. I'll catch you."

Charley flung himself off the kitchen counter, arms outstretched like a comic book hero. And, as he did, his dad stepped back and let him go splat on the kitchen floor.

"There," his dad told him, "is the most important lesson you'll ever learn: Never trust anybody."

And he walked away.

Now, what Charley's dad did was nothing short of cruel.

The lesson, though badly taught, still has validity.

Who, after all, can you really trust?

Cynical as it sounds, people have a rather poor record of trustworthy behavior.

Given enough need, greed, or lust, the trusted person is capable of doing the untrustworthy thing.

If husbands and wives were absolutely trustworthy, there would be no affairs or betrayals.

If parents were always to be trusted we'd have no neglected or abused children.

If employers were to be trusted we'd have no Enron, and if investors were trustworthy we'd have no Bernie Madoff.

If financial institutions and bankers were trustworthy, Americans over 50 would not have just lost over two trillion dollars in retirement fund value.

And if government was to be trusted... well, let's not bother going there.

But people are too hopeful to go through life never taking a chance on anyone.

Kids naturally trust their parents, and newlyweds trust their spouse.

We are wired to trust until we're given reason not to.

Still, each week people visit the counseling office whose trust has been violated by someone who should have been trustworthy.

In the midst of that betrayal some of those folks look around for God and wonder if He is trustworthy.

All I can tell them is God would have never let Charley go splat. He'd have caught him, and held him, and loved him.

And that's the difference between God and the rest of us mere mortals.

If you take the risk and make the leap He will never let you hit the kitchen floor.

Steve Guthrie directs Christian Counseling Services in Charlevoix. By appointment at (231) 678-4682.

LETTERS to the editor

Share the road

Editor:

It was not my intent to offend or sound pompous rather to inform. My letter was to those that affronted me personally thus the question "remember me". Most teens and the whole population for that matter are courteous and considerate. I did however intend to cause a big stir and sound fed up and angered by the actions of these few individuals whom by throwing things at me and hitting me with an automobile committed assault. I should have reported it to the police but all I could say is "it was a brown car with a kid hanging out of it. And the truck that hit me was at night so all I could say was "it was a pickup with lights." Yes I had reflectors and lights front and back. I guess to some assault is deemed "alright" but not to me.

I made no mistakes as Austin implied. I was operating according to the motor vehicle code, on the shoulder (if it was rideable) when the speed limit was over 45 mph, the edge of the road if under, to the right of a foul lane road. If someone needs two lanes or a lane and the shoulder to pass me they have made the mistake. You are not required to maintain the speed limit. If this were the case bicycles would not be allowed on most streets.

The lowest city speed limits are usually 25 mph. I have been in situations that could potentially slow traffic for an extended time. In such cases I pulled off and let the traffic clear. That does not imply that a cyclist should pull over for every car. Austin stay off the sidewalk. Studies have shown you are twice as likely to have an accident riding the sidewalks as you were operating on the road obeying traffic laws. In part of Charlevoix it is illegal to ride on the sidewalk because of the danger to pedestrians.

In my opinion you should ride on the sidewalk only if your age consists of a single digit. "What Every Michigan Bicyclist Must Know" is a pamphlet all motorists and cyclists should read. Brought to you through a partnership between the League of Michigan Bicyclists, the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness <<http://www.michiganfitness.org/>>, Michigan Department of Transportation <<http://www.michigan.gov/mdot/>>, and the Michigan Department of Community Health <<http://www.michigan.gov/mdch/>>. Find it at Lmb.org. The right to cycle on the road started in 1887, six years before Charles Edgar Duryea put the first commercial gas powered auto on the road in the U.S. in 1893.

All I ask is Share the road it's the law. Curtis Merrifield

Ball field needs repair

Editor: When you were a kid did you play on the little league baseball field? Of one reading this did you play on that field? Well if you did you might know it might need some help.

I've played on that field for three or four years now. And there is no doubt that it needs help. Well the scoreboard is always off balance like it only goes up to 12 or 13. When a team gets up that high it is hard to tell who won. Also you have to start out with one extra strike some times.

Also people hit a lot of grounders to short stop it's built in a hill. It takes a big bounce.

The sand has big rocks in it so they get stuck in your shoes and the baseball glove also when you slide you gets rocks stuck in your underwear.

Also there are big holes in the outfield. Sometimes when you're going to get a pop fly you might trip over one of those hole and fall. In conclusion the little field might need some repair.

Dog park needed

Editor: Do you hate that every day walk, or should I say run trying to keep your dog from going potty on someone else's lawn? With a dog park, we would not have that problem.

In our new park we are not allowed to have dogs

We need a place where we can have dogs, who can go potty, and can play fetch with their owners.

A dog park would also be a good tourist attraction, because most people want to bring their pets on their vacation. They don't because they would end up having their dog cooped up in the car and having restricted areas. Therefore, with a dog park more people would come to visit.

This is why I believe we, Charlevoix the Beautiful, need a dog park.

Maddie Boss Sixth-grade student

World of voices coming soon

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

More than 375 kids from Mongolia, Kenya, Canada, Hungary, Vietnam, Mexico and more are coming to northern Michigan to perform nearly three dozen concerts.

But, the "Children of the World in Harmony" International Youth Choir/Dance Festival needs your help to make this epic event a reality.

"The organization grew out of a festival I planned while I was director of education and cultural programming at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in the late '70s," said Jack Kukuk, event organizer. "We have hundreds of kids from many different countries and we still need housing in Charlevoix."

Kukuk is now taking applications for families interested in hosting a child to stay with them for Sunday, July 26 through Tuesday, July 28.

Now it's its 27th year, the International Youth Choir/Dance Festival is making its way to northern Michigan for the first time.

This particular concert is the 17th International Children of the World in Harmony Festival.

"One of the reasons we do this is we believe that the young people need to have an opportunity to meet each other from different cultures," Kukuk said. "So, when they grow to become adults, they will have experienced people from other cultures and be less likely to face them in a confrontational situation."

situation."

He added, "We want them to be a part of a program that promotes peace and understanding."

This non-competitive festival will offer shows at 7:30 p.m. on July 27 at the Charlevoix Public Library and on July 29 at the Odmark Pavilion in Charlevoix's East Park.

These free concerts will feature performances by groups including the Dancers Without Borders — Dancers from Charlevoix and Emmet counties; Kalamazoo Children's Choir from Kalamazoo; Lawrence University Cantabile Choir from Appleton, Wis.; Mariachi los Rebeldes from Phoenix, Ariz.; Oltoloo Loo Nkera (Children's Voices) Maasai Children's Choir from Transmara District, Kenya; Mongolian Children's Palace "Talent" Dance Ensemble from Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia; Scolia Cantorum de Mexico, Mexico City, Mexico; Waganakising Eshkinigijik (Young People from the Place of the Crooked Tree) Odawa youth from northern Michigan; Rolnicka Praha Children's Choir from Prague, Czech Republic; St. Marys Children's Choir from St. Marys, Ontario, Canada; Yip's Hong Kong Children's Choir from Hong Kong, China and the Voices Without Borders International Festival Choir.

For more information on concerts or to host a performer, e-mail choralfest@msn.com or call Kukuk directly at (602) 618-2807.

OBITUARIES

Melvin P. Renaud: October 12, 1940 - May 15, 2009

Melvin P. Renaud, 68, of Charlevoix, was called home on Friday, May 15, 2009, at his home surrounded by his family. Mel fought a courageous battle with illness for the past 13 years.

Mel was born Oct. 12, 1940, in Wyandotte, the son of Harvey H. and Jeannette M. (Souleire) Renaud.

Mel graduated from Lincoln

High School in 1959, and served in the US Navy for six years during the Vietnam War.

On Oct. 21, 1961, he married Madelyn M. Wojan in Charlevoix at Saint Mary's Church. Mel was the founder of Dry Harbour Marine in Charlevoix, a member of the Charlevoix Planning Commission and enjoyed golfing, fishing, hunting and spending time with his family. He is survived by his wife of 47 years, Madelyn; daughter, Kari (Casey) Curtis; grandchildren Tyler and Travis Curtis of Charlevoix, and Renee Paul Renaud of Vanderbilt; sister Millie (Don) Cox of Westland. Mel's son Jeffrey preceded him in death on Jan. 29, 2000.

Funeral will be at the Winchester Funeral Home in where friends may meet Mel's family from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. with funeral service beginning at 2 p.m., burial will be in Saint Mary's Cemetery immediately following. The Reverend Jerry Hunko of Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix will officiate. Memorial contributions may be made to St. Mary's Church or Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

At his request he was cremated and at this time there will be no service.

Camp McSauba needs your help

Due to decreased grant-giving in recent months, Camp McSauba has lost its funding source which used to fund scholarships for needy area campers.

Now a nine-week day camp, Camp McSauba offers a week-long welcome back party with traditional and new camp games and activities; week two is Native American Week where you can learn traditions games and crafts; week three is United We Stand, a patriotic week of fund and games; week four is Super Sports, for everything sport related; week five is Survivor Week: who will be the last to survive the challenge?; week six is Fun Factor during Venetian Week; week seven is Camp Hawaii where you will learn lei making, hula dancing and more; week eight is the Camp Olympics with gold, silver and bronze medals for event winners; and week nine is Wacky Week.

Camp sessions run from June 15 to Aug. 14 and cost is $85 per session; session five costs $70.

Call 547-3253 for more information or pick up a copy of the Camp McSauba brochure with attached registration form at City Hall.

Also new this year is the Tyler Hoffman Memorial Scholarship Fund which will help fund scholarships to needy area campers.

Send monetary donations to the Charlevoix Recreation Department, Tyler Hoffman Memorial Scholarship, 210 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Northwest Academy MEAPs remain strong

Northwest Academy public charter school's MEAP scores continue to exceed state averages in almost every category.

Northwest lead administrator John Bailey said he is pleased with the results and owed the success to dedicated teachers.

"My overall thoughts of the scores are that they are excellent. As you've seen, we are above the state average in almost every category," he said. "Our fifth-graders scored 100 percent proficient or advanced in all areas."

Northwest scored above the state averages in fifth grade through eighth-grade reading, math, writing, science and social studies.

Math:
Northwest - .85

State - .78
Reading:
Northwest - .8127833333
State - .81
Writing:
Northwest - .6888833333
State - .63
Science:
Northwest - .1
State - .8
Social studies:
Northwest - .8
State - .73

The school was below the state average in the categories of English/language arts with a school average of .74445 as opposed to the state average of .77.

Bailey said he credits several factors for the school's success on the state-wide test.

"I believe our scores show that, for the students who come to Northwest Academy, we provide very well for the student's educational needs," Bailey said. "Our teachers are dedicated to the individual student, our class sizes are low so each student gets the attention they need, and our kids feel very com-

Wheels of learning

Charlevoix first-graders learn that it is not just the wheels on a bus that go round and round as community businesses brought their vehicles to Charlevoix Elementary School to let the children get hands-on experience with different occupations that involve wheels. Veterans fund grants Charlevoix County Veterans received $4,665,000 last year.

During the fiscal year that ended September 30, 2008, veterans and their families in Charlevoix County received $4,665,000 from the Department of Veterans Affairs. Benefits in the form of Disability Compensation, Pension, Education, Insurance and indemnities were paid directly to many of the county's Charlevoix veterans.

Linda C. Walker, Director of the VA Regional Office in Detroit, the office that administers benefit payments for Michigan said, "This influx of money into the Charlevoix county economy was a significant portion of the more than one billion dollars VA expended to serve the 761,308 veterans living throughout the State of Michigan."

"Over half of all VA expenditures, more than $500 million, are paid directly to veterans and their families each year," Walker added. "The rest is used to support VA medical services provided at Michigan's five VA Medical Centers, five Outpatient Clinics, and the numerous Community Based Outpatient Clinics (CBOCs) located throughout the State."

Walker reminds any Charlevoix County veteran "if you believe your service connected condition has gotten worse or you simply have a question about your VA benefits be sure to contact the VA." You may do this by calling the Charlevoix County veterans representative Ed Holm at 547-7220.

Fear of old plants

PLANTS

all have the capacity to occupy large areas of wet land in a few years. They spread mostly by using growing runners beneath the soil surface but also by seeds that can blow around or be carried with the mud on bird's feet. Phragmites is just not catching up with the drop in Lake Michigan water levels. That drop provided a lot of new, damp territory with few competing plants. Phragmites moved in and used its normal competitive ability to grow as widely and as rapidly as possible. Almost all kinds of plants must have great competitive ability or they would not have survived the centuries. That competitive ability is a biological plus, not a minus.

I can provide a personal example of this competitive ability. The same story could be told of thousands of different kinds of plants. When we lived in Iowa I had a continuing interest in the plants of the native prairie. There were only a few pieces of undisturbed native prairie left in our part of eastern Iowa. Iowa native prairie had about three hundred different kinds of plants. It was possible to identify two hundred of them from a few acres of ground. They lived in a highly competitive environment, as to most of the plants on earth. One of the plants was a wild rose. In the prairie it was a small plant, maybe a foot or so tall with three or four blooms in a good year. In a drought year, it might not bloom at all. I transplanted one of those small wild roses to my back yard, where it had to compete from its two hundred neighbors above or below ground. Within two years the rose plant was four feet high and had literally hundreds of blooms. Had I ceased mowing the lawn it could easily have taken over the yard.

In my yard the wild rose was behaving like an invader. What it really was, of course, was the only native plant in the lawn. The usual lawn plants, in Iowa as in Michigan, were non-native plants that people had imported to provide us with the lawn we wanted. As a native plant the rose was quite capable of out-competing the real invaders.

Phragmites is merely doing what it does well; informed by centuries of competition with other plants, it is occupying mostly vacant space, growing and reproducing as fast as it can. That we don't like the view is not by itself sufficient reason to marshal the public in a war on it. Private control of Phragmites or almost any other plant is for the owner of the property to decide as long as that control harms no one else's property. The use of any public money should be approached with great care. Phragmites is a private problem, not a public one.

If we want to eliminate Phragmites from some parts of our coastline, we can certainly do that, but let us not pretend that we are battling some invader in order to whip up public interest. If we have some patience, Phragmites will revert to its usual role of occupying recently bared wet ground. Were we to successfully remove Phragmites from Beaver Island or any of the local townships, for example, it would merely re-invade from the other thousands of sites in Michigan where it has been present for many years. The Phragmites that arrived might be even more competitive than the current resident.

We mess with Mother Nature all the time, sometimes to our sorrow. We should at least know what Mother Nature is about before we try to thwart her.

T. Parker Sr. until the early 80s when Tim's father Ted took over.

Tim then became president in January 2008.

"I started mowing the lawn when I was in junior high and I have progressed through various positions over time," Parker said. "It's different having to worry about all areas of the company, but I have a great management team I have worked with for a long time."

While so many businesses face hardship due to the state of the economy, Parker said he has situated his business to survive the downturn.

"The biggest change in general is the economy. It's been kind of a wild time to have this transition, but virtually every sector is facing the same cycle," he said. "We're definitely lighter than we would have wanted, but business has picked up to where we have some (extra) temporary employees on in Charlevoix and we are optimistic and hope we already felt bottom."

Parker said his current products are aligned with the right customer base to keep Harbor growing well into the future.

Both companies combined have a total of nearly 300 employees with the bulk of more than 200 in the Charlevoix plant.

"I think it's better for us not to be tied to a large corporation, especially now," Parker said. "It allows us to make decisions based on our values and beliefs more than you can in a large corporate environment — a lot of times they make decisions strictly on financial matters without factoring in their personal beliefs."

Parker said his father instilled in him at a young age the importance of doing what is right for the company, the employees and the community.

"I think my dad's overriding company philosophy is being good people — that's first and foremost," he said. "And, do what's right."

Among Harbor Industries' many products are display stands for video stores, flooring outlets and even complete furnishings for changing rooms for national chains like Target stores.

The Parkers were expected to accept their most recent award on May 18 in Washington, D.C.

"My heart goes out to those folks who may have gotten the letter."

GM spokeswoman Susan Garantakos said the automaker isn't commenting on the circumstances leading to non-renewal for specific dealerships.

In general, she noted that sales volume and various other performance metrics — like sales effectiveness, customer satisfaction, dealer profitability and capitalization and sales facility image — were considered in deciding dealerships' future.

As GM looks to make itself financially viable, Garantakos said "some very difficult decisions" were made concerning the dealer network.

"It's really sad," she said. "It's not our dealers' fault. We've got some great dealers."

Public hearing on contentious boathouse Judge orders ZBA to revisit permit

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What began with an application for a Round Lake boathouse back in January 2007, has culminated in numerous court filings, accusations of due process violation and now a public hearing.

Neighbors of the 304 East Dixon Ave. property claim they are concerned with the 72-foot by 42-foot boathouse, docks with room for 14 boat slips and a single family residence proposed by James and Patricia Anderson of Grosse Pointe Shores due to proposed dredging and sheer size of the project.

"(The) issuance of a permit to defendants Anderson, without submitting the Anderson application to a public hearing and without any notice to plaintiffs, condoned multiple violations of the zoning ordinance, authorized the creation of nuisance ... and promoted and encouraged the overburdening of the easement traversing plaintiff's properties," stated Bridget Brown Powers, an attorney for neighboring property owner Elden Johnson. In their suit, opponents to the proposed project have named, among others, the City of Charlevoix, its zoning board of appeals or ZBA and former city planner Gerry Harsch, who retired on Aug. 31, 2007.

While the city attempted to have a federal court dismiss the suit, it was sent back to the lower local court of 33rd Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas, who back in late March of this year ordered the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals to hold a public hearing and review the permit issued by Harsch.

"They (opponents) feel the permit was given improperly and they are asking the ZBA to interpret multiple sections of the zoning ordinance that pertain to the issuance of the permit," said current Charlevoix City Planner Mike Spencer. "After they do that the ZBA will have to decide whether the permit should be issued."

The public hearing is scheduled for 6 p.m., Wednesday, May 20, in city council chambers.

The hearing before the ZBA will be to collect public comment only.

The ZBA is expected to then deliberate until June 17 when a decision is expected.

Judge to issue written opinion scripts did not reveal any command by Kur to avoid police or refuse to speak with them.

Jarema declined to comment on the ongoing case other than to say, "As the prosecutor, I do not try my case in the paper."

Jarema did say the judge could issue his opinion as early as later this week.

Wilhelm faces charges of breaking and entering a building with intent, a 10-year felony; and malicious destruction to a building, damage of more than $1,000 but less than $20,000, a five-year felony.

• Public Forum

Frustrated by how the local criminal justice system has handled the Wilhelm case, Petoskey professor Dale Hull is hosting a public forum on justice and civil rights.

The 7 p.m., June 1 forum at the Charlevoix Public Library is open to the general public.

"Interested citizens are invited to join us in a public forum centered on the criminal justice system of our community and how that system functions in light of our civil rights and the protection of individual rights afforded us under the Constitution," Hull said. "I find myself ... feeling particularly responsible these days for the general well-being of all the young people in our community."

SPORTS reviewing the action

Saturday, May 9 marked the start of the Charlevoix Little League baseball season. Here on the infield are the Major League teams (from left) the Rangers, the Tigers and the Diamond-Backs. The first five teams on the outfield are Minor Leaguers (from left) the Reds, the Dodgers, the Astros, the Orioles and the Rays; followed by four teams in the Midget Division, the Muck Dogs, the Express, the Scrappers. Retired coach Dick Putman in honor of Don Potter, the recently deceased baseball advocate who spent many years coaching Charlevoix Little League, threw the first pitch. Rayder girls win two

On May 6, Charlevoix beat Suttons Bay 2-0.

Their record was then 8-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference and 9-2-1 overall.

Charlevoix earned a non-conference win over a good Suttons Bay squad on Wednesday.

The Lady Norsemen played hard but couldn't score as the half ended at 0-0.

Charlevoix came out strong in the second and scored when Maddie Way sent a cross to the goal mouth which was touched by Hallie Bills to Olivia Catt waiting to bury the ball in the net.

The play continued hard until Way again sent the assist to Taylor Smith who dropped the ball over the goalie for the 2-0 final score.

Charlevoix played well defensively, led by Tammy Potter's 12 saves in the net for her 9th shutout.

Rachel Boss, getting the start at center back played strong all night with help from senior defender Marnie Greene. KC McCary played her usual strong game in the midfield along with Caroline Dupuis touch play on the outside.

On May 4, Charlevoix beat Harbor Springs 3-0.

The Rayders improved to 8-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference with a tough win at Harbor on Monday.

Charlevoix outshot the Rams 21-4 but couldn't put Harbor away until the closing minutes of the second half.

Senior all-stater and co-captain McCary got the Rayders on the board 25 minutes in with an unassisted goal.

In a typical battle between these two clubs, Harbor went to the ball hard all night long and got the Rayders out of their possession style game. Well into the second, the Rams were awarded a penalty kick on a handball in the box.

The shot went wide and Charlevoix maintained the 1-0 advantage.

Charlevoix then picked up its pace of play and began getting more chances.

With seven minutes left, the Rams keeper came out a bit too far and sophomore Abbey Barnes lofted a ball over her head toward the net.

Smith followed the pass and put the game away with the Rayder's second goal.

Moments later, senior Catt sent a cross to junior Dupuis who put the match away with the final goal.

Charlevoix got good defensive efforts from all state back Meridith Rich, Hannah Doan and Marnie Greene.

All-State Keeper Potter earned her eighth shutout of the season with four saves on the night.

Board deliberates on boat house

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

After more than five hours of testimony on James and Patricia Anderson's proposed Round Lake boat house, the city zoning board adjourned to deliberate.

Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals members listened as opponents to the 3,096 square foot project presented their case that the proposed boat house does not meet city zoning requirements, and that their current permit should be voided.

"The zoning code, that's our protective covenant here," said neighboring property owner and project opponent Eldon Johnson. "Why would anybody issue this permit? This permit was issued without authority and illegally."

Johnson's attorney cited several reasons they believe the proposal does not meet city code including their claim that the lot to be used for the construction of both a house and boat house is actually two lots; that the boat house must be limited to boat storage, but that it cannot be with the planned bathroom and shower facilities; that the proposal's footprint would exceed the maximum square footage allowed of 3,400; and that, due to the planned amenities, the boat house actually qualifies as a second residence.

However, the major sticking point during testimony was whether the boat house was considered attached or detached to the proposed residence.

The opposition argued that it was not attached since the only connection between the proposed primary residence and the boat house would be a patio, but the Anderson's exhibited a three-dimensional model of the plan which clearly shows a hall and breezeway from a sub-basement elevator to the boat house.

"If you can get to point 'a' from point 'b' without going outside, I'd say that's attached," James Anderson said.

While this is the first public hearing before the city on the project, the issue goes back several years.

The Andersons were awarded their zoning permit for their 300 East Dixon Ave. property back in January, 2007, without a public hearing, spurring opponents to sue.

The matter went through several courts before 33rd Circuit Judge Richard M. Pa-

One motion granted, one denied

Charlevoix Judge Richard M. Pajtas denied one, and granted one, motion filed by the defense attorney Mary Beth Kur in the Charlevoix High School vandalism case in his May 21 opinion.

In the 33rd Circuit Judge's 17-page assessment, he denied Kur's motion to disqualify the Charlevoix County Prosecutor and sheriff office, and the request to have all charges against her client dropped, but did grant her motion to have the preliminary examination testimony of key witness Jason Faulkner admitted in his absence.

"I am going to read it and digest it and figure out what options there are," said Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema.

The case involving Austin Wilhelm, a Charlevoix high graduate accused of vandalizing a school project house back in May, 2008, with both liquid and aerosol paints, took a turn in recent weeks when the trial was adjourned so Pajtas could hear the motions.

In her motions, Kur claimed her client could not get a fair hearing after a detective on the case looked at her cross-examination questions when over 700 of her client's family's e-mails were seized.

Kur also claimed she was disadvantaged when she did not receive various documents from the prosecution until several days before the original trial date of May 11.

Finally, Kur felt that the prosecution's treatment of Faulkner had been so abusive that he refused to come back to Michigan from Oregon to testify for a second time, and that his original testimony at the preliminary examination should be used.

The judge found that there will still be ample time for Kur to prepare for trial and that her cross-examination questions were likely only seen by one detective who could be called to testify in the trial. Pajtas also ruled that Faulkner's testimony at the preliminary examination is valid and can be used in lieu of his coming back to Michigan.

Kur could not be reached by press time. A scheduling conference has been set for 8:10 a.m. June 5, so new trial dates may be scheduled.

Just say Know

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A Florida drug test manufacturer was so inspired by a recent Courier article (Pills up, coke down, May 6) on area drug use, he's decided to take action.

Douglas Chinchar, vice-president of the Know Drug Test company, is donating $1,000 worth of at-home drug tests to the Bay Area Substance Education Services (BASES) Teen Center.

"I'd be happy to share them with families who can't afford them," said BASES director Scott Kelly. "In a year, I may give out 20 to 25 tests, but that's with no publicity. If it was advertised then that number might jump to 70 to 100."

Chinchar was researching drug use rates in different states when he spotted the Courier article online at www.charlevoixcourier.com.

"We're having the same problem out here and we're donating tests to various schools and places that we think are trying to do the right thing," he said. "This is the kind of thing you have to follow up on. You don't just hand something out; you've got to talk with your kids."

Chinchar's drug test differs from other tests on the market in several major ways:

- The test is over-the-counter and FDA approved as accurate for marijuana, cocaine, amphetamines, opiates and methamphetamine.

- The test's results can be laboratory confirmed.

- The test itself is really less important than the packaging in which it comes.

"It's a drug test, but more importantly, it's a conversation starter," Chinchar said of the black box with bright lettering.

What may be the most unique aspect of the test is that it has a magnet affixed to the rear of the roughly five inch by three inch box.

"It's a great way to start a conversation with your kids about drugs," Chinchar said. "Put that on the face of your refrigerator and wait, and your kids will come to you."

Chinchar hopes that, not only will the drug test's presence in a prominent place like on a refrigerator door will stir curiosity in children, but will also act as a deterrent.

"How many times does a kid come home to an empty house?" he said. "Even if the parents aren't around, the box is constantly talking to you because you see it on the refrigerator every day."

Chinchar added, "And, other families will see that box ... and bring it up in conversation and then parents start talking and then they buy one and it almost takes on a life of its own."

While the test is simple to use, Chinchar said, "Our hope is that you will never have to use it."

'Tis the season to be married

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Summer is a popular season for weddings and I would guess that you've been invited to one or two or maybe it is you that will be taking the plunge. As a non-denominational officiant I've had the chance to see a variety of events unfold that were not part of the wedding planners agenda. In the end these unplanned events always add to the memories of the wedding day and provide something to share at future family reunions. My advice for brides and grooms is to keep it simple.

For those of you not married yet, you may disagree, but for those readers currently in wedded bliss you'll understand this information quickly.

I had the pleasure of officiating a Portuguese wedding that took place in a lovely garden adjacent to a beautifully restored Victorian hotel. The manager of the establishment thought it would be nice to have the bride enter the garden from the back entrance of the hotel. What the manager didn't realize was the bride's inability to speak or read English.

The guests were peacefully sitting in the pristine white chairs and you could almost see them sway to the lilt of the harpist announcing the bride's entrance.

They were quickly aroused from their somber state as the bride walked through a door marked "Fire Exit Only-Alarms will Sound."

Well I guess it's always nice to have a few extra guests.

This same wedding followed the Portuguese tradition of signing the marriage license during the ceremony.

The brand new ball point pen I brought did not carry the weight needed to keep the license secure in its setting.

After taking a quick glance to see that everyone and everything was in its place, to my horror I couldn't help but notice that the license was no longer sitting on the table near the flower filled arch.

Something waving to me on a nearby bush caught my attention. There was the license, flopping wildly in the breeze, taunting me as I had to jump up and down trying to grasp it.

To the guests delight it added a little drama and entertainment before the reception.

At another wedding the bride and groom selected the private beach home of the bride's parents in which to exchange their vows.

This lovely residence faced the water and the guests were seated to take in the best view of the sand and lake colored with many shades of blue.

The groom thought it would be fun to arrive by boat.

While the guests patiently waited for what seemed like a very long time and the violinist had played every song she knew by heart, a cell phone beeped in to let us know the boat bringing the groom was experiencing mechanical difficulties. It needed to be towed to shore.

I really need to practice my 'jokes for weddings' and other time fillers if this should occur again.

The message here is this: avoid grand entrances; there is no going back once you see an accident unfolding. What follows next is an interesting little tidbit for those of you planning to attend or be part of a destination wedding on a remote island.

A friend of mine attended a wedding that the bride arranged completely through the Internet.

The photos beckoned them with the wonderful beaming sun, white crested waves and coconut filled palm trees.

The wedding was booked and the small bridal party arrived to their destination at awe of the beauty of their surroundings.

They were directed down a path where they were met by a colorfully dressed officiant who patiently awaited their arrival.

With somberness and smiles they quietly gathered beneath the flowers and palms taking in the sounds of nature that surrounded them.

The ceremony was five minutes in when it was interrupted by the giggling of family and friends.

As they looked around they noticed that the people on the beach were naked.

My advice here: if you pick a destination in a warm climate on an island ask if it's a nudist beach first.

Weddings are a memorable event, whether you are taking it all in as a guest or as the Maid of Honor. The small upsets of the day are rarely noticed.

If you are attending a wedding this summer this will be a chance to relax and enjoy catching up with friends and family.

Individuals soon to be married will be busy making notes on napkins or programs reminding themselves what to add to their own wedding.

For the bride and groom, what's next on the agenda may not be on the wedding planners agenda.

Charlevoix students named to Dean's List at Northwestern Michigan College.

The Charlevoix County students listed below have been named to the Dean's List for Spring Semester 2009 at Northwestern Michigan College: Jebediah Bailey, Megan Cross, Rodney Gusler and Colleen Smith.

The Dean's List recognizes outstanding academic achievement of full-time students who do unusually well in their studies. Published at the end of each term, the list includes the names of those students who have achieved a current grade point average of 3.5 or above out of a possible 4.0.

Beaver Island Community Schools graduate Melissa Bailey recently graduated from Albion College as cum laude on May 9. She received a degree in English with creative writing. Bailey was one of only 34 students to receive a degree with Albion College Honors, by completing special honors institute requirements and writing a senior thesis. The honor of cum laude signifies that Bailey graduated with a cumulative grade point average above 3.5. Bailey is the daughter of Michael and Jayne Bailey of Beaver Island.

Central Michigan University senior Ashly Smith of Boyne City was selected to exhibit her work during the university's annual Posters at the Capitol event.

Smith's project, "H? Line Emission Variability in Be-type Stars," examines dust disks around hot stars and observes the disk dynamics and star-disk interactions in an attempt to gain an understanding of stellar disks in the universe and the creation of planets.

Smith, a Boyne City High School graduate, is the daughter of Linda Smith. She is majoring in physics with a concentration in astronomy and minoring in mathematics at CMU.

Air force honors Charlevoix grad

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix High School graduate Jim Bowman was recently honored after nearly 50 years with the U.S. Air Force.

Raised in Charlevoix, Bowman graduated in 1951 before heading off to college and then eventually a career in military service.

"I left Charlevoix and went to (University of) Michigan where I was on a senior scholarship," he said. "I went to the Air Force Academy when I was 25 and left when I was 74."

Bowman not only played football for the service, but he also spent decades as a coach, athletic administrator and recruiter for the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs.

"I was very honored," he said. "When you stay at a place that many years, you look forward to going to work everyday because of the type of people you worked with."

Bowman added, "They were the kind of people that had integrity and honor and respect."

Bowman was honored not for his nearly half a century in the service, but for his accomplishments on the football field as a coach, scout, physical education teacher and player during the second annual Air Force Athletic Hall of Fame award ceremony in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bowman now has a plaque on the "Walk of Honor" on the fourth floor of the Falcon Athletic Center in Colorado, for his efforts to recruit players for the Air Force's Falcon football team over the years.

Bowman fondly recounted his days as a youth in Charlevoix.

"I caddied at Belvedere for a long time as a young guy and I appreciated that coach Kipke was the caddy master," he said. "I enjoyed being raised in Charlevoix and it was a great place to live and (had) great people."

While Bowman has lived outside Michigan for most of his adult life, he still gets back to see Charlevoix on occasion.

"I got back there about five years ago," he said. "I've always been fond of fishing the area lakes and hunting geese."

Bowman added, "I've got a lot of great memories of people I grew up with there."

MAY

OBITUARIES

Charles Brendan LaBlance: Dec. 4, 1945 - April 8, 2008

Charles Brendan LaBlance, was born Dec. 4, 1945 in Charlevoix, Michigan, and died on April 8, 2008 in Santa Rosa Beach, Fla.

A graveside service is planned at St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix at 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 3, 2009 with Father Jerry Hunko officiating. Brendan is survived by two children, Maro (Jason) Lee and George LaBlance; brother Steve (Becky) LaBlance and sister Georgia (Tom) Boyer.

His parents, George and Edna (Brooks) LaBlance; brothers, John (Glenda) and Tom (Maureen) LaBlance, preceded him in death.

Brendan was living in Santa Rosa Beach, but his love was always Charlevoix and he requested to be buried here - home at last, Bren.

Gerald E. Left: Aug. 5, 1934 - March 26, 2009

Jerry Left, 74, of Charlevoix, and winter resident of Fort Myers, Fla., died suddenly March 26, 2009, at Gulf Coast Medical Center in Fort Myers.

Jerry was born Aug. 5, 1934, in Chicago, Ill., to Gerald D. and Eleanor (Feiereisel) Left. At age 6, the family moved to Charlevoix, where Jerry attended school, graduating in 1952. He served his country in the U.S. Air Force for four years, and was honorably discharged in August 1956.

Jerry attended college at CMU, and was employed as a teacher, boat captain on the Great Lakes and for the county transportation company.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, American Legion, Elks, St. Mary's parish in Charlevoix and in the winter attended Our Lady of Light Church in Fort Myers.

Jerry is survived by his wife of 55 years, Kathleen "Kate" M. (Lawless)

The family will celebrate his life at a funeral Mass 11 a.m. Tuesday, June 2, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix, with the Revs. Jerry Hunko and Jim Gardiner officiating. Visitation will follow the rosary which will be recited at 7 p.m. Monday, June 1, at St. Mary's.

He was an usher and Eucharistic minister. Jerry loved his family and activities with the grandchildren. He enjoyed boating, hunting, and loved his yearly cruise with his wife and friends. He always had a fun story to tell.

A funeral service took place Monday, March 30, in the chapel at Woodsmoke Resort in Fort Myers, where many relatives and friends attended.

In lieu of flowers, memorial gifts may be sent in Jerry's memory to St. Mary's School, 1003 Bridge St., Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Jerry was a man of devotion to his Catholic faith and to his family.

Health program helps unemployed

Subsidies of $50 per month to help unemployed people pay COBRA health insurance premiums are available for people who involuntarily lost their jobs, even if they declined to take COBRA when they left their jobs or they elected COBRA and later discontinued it.

The Northern Health Plan COBRA Support Program, supported by hospitals and health departments across an eight-county region, supplements federal "stimulus package funds" to extend health insurance benefits for families of people laid off after Sept. 1, 2008.

In this stimulus package, the federal government pays 65 percent of eligible individuals' COBRA payments; the Northern Health Plan COBRA Support Program helps them to pay their 35 percent share.

"We recognize many people who are unemployed will lack the financial resources to pay even the reduced share of their COBRA premium. The Northern Health Plan COBRA Support Program supplements the stimulus package and helps families with health insurance costs," said Linda Yaroch, Deputy Health Officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "We urge everyone who is eligible for COBRA to register for the program so they can get the health care services they need."

To be eligible for the program, residents of the Northern Health Plan service area simply complete a short registration form and send documentation to their local health department on a monthly basis that they have made a COBRA payment.

The health department then reimburses up to two adults in the household up to $50 each for up to nine months, as long as the American Recovery & Reinvestment Act of 2009 provides for premium reductions and opportunities to sign up for COBRA. The Northern Health Plan service area includes Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Osego and Alpena, Montmorency, Presque Isle counties.

Northern Health Plan has allocated funding for 250 slots for the COBRA Support Program for an eight-county area in northern Michigan, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Osego in the Health Department of Northwest Michigan Health District and Alpena, Cheboygan, Montmorency, and Presque Isle counties in District Health Department #4 Health District.

The Northern Health Plan is a community partnership of local hospitals and health departments in northern Michigan to help uninsured people gain access to health care. For more information about the Northern Health Plan COBRA Program, call the Health Department of Northwest Michigan at (800) 432-4121.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Osego counties.

City concerts set

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

City officials are excited about this summer's entertainment line-up and optimistic about their power to draw a crowd.

In addition to staples like Venetian Festival and the Street Legends Classic Car Show, East Park will be filled with tunes from R&B to classic Rock and even family music.

"The goal is to truly make the summer concert series a reason for people to come and spend time downtown," said Downtown Development Authority Executive Director Keith Carey. "Previously I think it was considered a perk if you happened to be downtown ... but it made sense for us to ramp up the visibility of the concert series and offer a wide variety of music throughout the summer."

The concert line-up, with entertainment to last from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. unless otherwise specified, is as follows:

- July 5 - Horton Creek country; West Side Soul Surf, R&B and soul.
- July 12 - The Bostrum Brothers, Celtic; Natalia Zukerman Bottleneck, country jazz.
- July 17 - The Fabulous Oldies But Goodies which is co-sponsored by the Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club, oldies—this event will kick off the legends' annual car show in downtown Charlevoix.
- July 19 - The Pub Runners, Irish folk; Jill Jack, folk rock.
- Aug. 2 - Trombones Plus, jazz; Castle Brass, brass band.
- Aug. 9 - Fair Herald, indie rock; The Danny Adler Band, gusha-gusha R&B.
- Aug. 16 - Suzanne & Jim, Americana; Song of the Lakes, Great Lakes world music.
- Aug. 23 - Family Night with Crazy Richard the Mad Juggler from 6 p.m. to 6:25 p.m.; more family entertainment for younger children with Guy Louis from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.
- Aug. 30 - Charlie's Root Fusion, Americana/Rockabilly/Blues; The Hard Lessons, innovative, high-energy rock.

For the second year in a row, Bosman's Mercantile is co-sponsoring the summer concert series.

"I think Keith (Carey) did a nice job of getting a variety of musical interests for the park," said Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "It's our first full summer with everything in full swing, including the final touch of the trout stream and people are already enjoying the water fountain because it's heated."

Kicking off the City Band's concert series will be a night of dedication, music and an ice-cream social when the Charlevoix City Band, directed by Gary Stutzman, plays an evening of music in honor of the new Clarence Odmak Pavilion at 8 p.m., July 7, in East Park.

Odmak, for whom the amphitheater was named, was a Charlevoix fixture serving as the long-time director of the city band and working as the band director for Charlevoix Public Schools.

"He was a violinist, a really fine musician," Stutzman said. "But, he was a person that brought people together of all levels of ability and interest in a common goal of the love of music."

He added, "He left me the legacy to make music and enjoy the music you're making."

The band will be playing some favorites of Odmak's including the Holtz Suite in F and Block M March after a plaque in honor of Odmak is unveiled.

Musicians interested in playing at the dedication ceremony should call Stutzman at (231) 675-4800.

Now, with a finished East Park, visitors to the downtown business district will find amenities including an improved amphitheater, increased seating, new park benches, recycling containers placed around the park, and even a directional kiosk with maps to area hot spots and a listing of events.

Kiosks, expected by mid June, will be placed in Van-Pelt and Hoopskirt alleys in addition to the northwestern corner of East Park, near the giant pine tree.

"We will be locating about a half a dozen bicycle racks around downtown, so we'll be offering more places for people to park their bikes than last year," Carey said.

The six bike racks will be located east of State Street, between Park Avenue and Antrim St., and use of which will be free of charge.

"It's all coming together and I truly believe we're going to have as good a summer or better than last year," Carlson said.

Kiosks, expected by mid June, will be placed in Van-Pelt and Hoopskirt alleys in addition to the northwestern corner of East Park, near the giant pine tree.

"We will be locating about a half a dozen bicycle racks around downtown, so we'll be offering more places for people to park their bikes than last year," Carey said.

The six bike racks will be located east of State Street, between Park Avenue and Antrim St., and use of which will be free of charge.

"It's all coming together and I truly believe we're going to have as good a summer or better than last year," Carlson said.

Now, with a finished East Park, visitors to the downtown business district will find amenities including an improved amphitheater, increased seating, new park benches, recycling containers placed around the park, and even a directional kiosk with maps to area hot spots and a listing of events.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is offering health screenings

Charlevoix Area Hospital is offering walk-in health screenings from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 3.

Health Screens include Cholesterol and blood Glucose levels, Body Mass Index (BMI) score, and a Blood Pressure reading. Cost for the service is $12.

Participants will receive a blood pressure log, a pedometer, and all test results at the time of the screen.

Heath Consultation and educational materials will be tailored to individual results by a Registered Nurse.

The entire visit will take less than 15 minutes. "We had an excellent turnout for our first Wellness Wednesday in May," said Kathy Jacobsen, Community Health Educator for Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"We saw a total of 37 people and their feedback about our program was overwhelmingly positive."

Jacobsen said many insurance companies limit the number of times they will pay for cholesterol testing, usually once per year.

"Most of our participants were very interested in getting healthy and were curious if their cholesterol was on the right track," she said.

"We can give them that answer." Appointments can be made in advance by calling the Office of Community Health Education at 547-8906.

Walk-ins are welcome.

Swine flu update

Local health department officials met with superintendents from throughout the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District recently to provide an update on the latest safety precautions regarding the H1N1 virus, also known as swine flu.

Health Officer Gerry Chase and Medical Director Joshua Meyerson, MD, of the Health Department of Northwest Michigan cited new guidelines from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) recommending schools and other childcare facilities not close in the event of a suspected or confirmed case of H1N1.

The CDC recommendation states, "school closure is not advised for a suspected or confirmed case of novel influenza A (H1N1) and, in general, is not advised unless there is a magnitude of faculty or student absenteeism that interferes with the school's ability to function."

When the H1N1 flu first arose as a concern, school officials collectively through the ISD contacted the local health department to receive guidance. Within one week, the health department officials were invited to a joint meeting with all the ISD superintendents for them to hear first-hand the latest update on the virus and the CDC recommendations.

At the meeting, Meyerson stressed that no cases of H1N1 flu have been reported or confirmed in the ISD service area of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties.

He reviewed the May 5 CDC update on school and childcare facilities response to H1N1.

As a group, the superintendents concur with the CDC and local health department's recommendation to not close schools due to a suspected or confirmed case of H1N1 flu. Other CDC recommendations the schools will follow include:

- Students, faculty or staff with influenza-like illness (fever with a cough or sore throat) should stay home and not attend school or go into the community except to seek medical care for at least seven days even if symptoms resolve sooner.

- Students, faculty and staff who are still sick seven days after they become ill should continue to stay home from school until at least 24 hours after symptoms have resolved.
- Students, faculty and staff who appear to have an influenza-like illness at arrival or become ill during the school day should be isolated promptly in a room separate from other students and sent home.

At this time, the CDC recommends the primary means to reduce spread of influenza in schools focus on early identification of ill students and staff, staying home when ill, and good cough and hand hygiene etiquette.

The superintendents agreed to post throughout their buildings the "Learn the facts about H1N1 (Swine Flu)" posters created by the health department. The schools also learned the safety precautions they are currently taking -- to disinfect desks, door knobs, and other surfaces -- is proactively adequate, according to the health department, and no additional recommendations were offered. Many school superintendents discussed hand-washing procedures in place and that most teachers/staff have alcohol-based disinfecting hand wash in their classrooms.

Cough etiquette has also been the subject of numerous class discussions, the superintendents said.

In addition the superintendents committed to provide regular weekly reports of communicable diseases to the local health department.

Although the CDC and local health department have updated their school closure guidance recommendations, each district will continue to follow their long-established procedures for closing school based on illness or other factors, such as weather.

The superintendents urged parents or community members who may have medical questions about H1N1 to contact their local health care provider.

Questions about school procedures relating to any illness should be directed to the superintendent's office.

In a Manner of Speaking

When children give evidence of having difficulty speaking, it may be an early indication that they have a hearing problem. It is important to pay heed to these problems early on so that they may be properly diagnosed and treated as soon as possible. For instance, a child may have difficulty pronouncing certain sounds or combinations of sounds. With this in mind, parents should be on the lookout for a child who can speak complete words or sentences but consistently leaves out letters or sounds from words. For instance, a child may substitute a sound or letter for one that is more difficult to say, such as substituting a "w" sound for an "r."

P.S. By age 6 to 7 months, a child should be trying to make consonant sounds, especially "b," "d," "m," and "n."

Garden club art contest

COURTESY PHOTO

Charlevoix student artists received awards on Monday, May 11 for their entries in this year's poster contests sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club at the annual Spring Tea. Fifteen students in First through Fifth Grade were recognized for their poster work in the Smoky Bear/Woodsey Owl poster contest and thirty students in Pre-Kindergarten through Sixth Grade were commended for their entries in the "Gardening with a Native Palette" contest. The winning artwork was on display for an impressive crowd of parents, family and friends of the winning students. Pictured (back, from left) are Olivia Bartell, sixth grade Grand Prize Winner for "Gardening with a Native Palette"; Lori Bolt, Art Teacher at St. Mary School; Hunter Randall, Grand Prize Winner and first overall in the state for fifth grade "Woodsey Owl," (front, from left) Sophia Thompson, first overall in the state for second grade "Smoky Bear"; Lauren Kwapias, first overall in state for third grade "Woodsey Owl." Their four posters will be displayed at the Charlevoix Library.

Applications being accepted

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) is accepting applications from students seeking a congressional nomination to the U.S. Air Force Academy, U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

"Each year I am truly impressed with the talented and accomplished young men and women who apply for this prestigious nomination," Stupak said. "I look forward to learning more about the bright and driven young people who are eager not only to improve themselves through this opportunity but also committed to serving our great country."

Stupak reminds high school juniors who will be seniors next school year and students currently enrolled in college that they could be eligible for a service academy nomination. To be eligible for a congressional nomination, applicants must be a legal resident of Michigan's First Congressional District, at least 17 years old and not past his or her 23rd birthday by July 1 of the year of academy entry, unmarried with no dependents, a United States citizen of high moral character, and able to meet high leadership, academic, physical and medical standards.

To assure that nominations to the service academies are based on merit and every applicant has a fair chance to compete for available openings, Stupak uses a Citizens Advisory Committee made up of community representatives from throughout the Michigan's First Congressional District.

The committee reviews candidate application files, interviews the candidates and recommends selections for nominations.

"I greatly value the time and effort the men and women on the Citizens Advisory Committee put into helping select students to represent northern Michigan at our nation's service academies," Stupak said.

To be eligible for an interview, all necessary paperwork must be completed by Oct. 10.

All recommendations are based on a competitive application process.

Application information may be obtained by calling Stupak's Crystal Falls office at (906) 875-3751 or toll free (800) 950-7371.

Additional information can also be found on Stupak's Web site at www.house.gov/stupak by clicking on the "Service Academies" under "Constituent Services" at the top of the home page.

COURTESY PHOTO

The accomplishments of hundreds of high school students enrolled in Career and Technical Education (CTE) programs throughout Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District were recently celebrated. More than 600 students and families attended the annual CTE Recognition Dinner hosted by the ISD. Char-Em ISD supports 40 CTE programs in the 11 public school districts throughout its service area of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties. CTE is an essential component of the total education system and is critical to workforce development, noted Carlin Smith of the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, who served as emcee for the event. Charlevoix High School students Steven Coen (center left) and Justin Friske (center right) look top honors in the ISD-wide Business, Management and Administration stock market challenge. Students started with $100,000 and acted as broker/investors for 12 weeks, with no more than $40,000 that could be invested in any one company. Steven turned his initial investment into $1.6 million, and Justin turned his into $1.4 million. Charlevoix instructors Kirstie Swanson (left) and Jill Erskine presented the students with trophies at the Char-Em ISD CTE Recognition Dinner.

Island's new school complete

BY ELAINE WEST
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

It was truly a community celebration on Saturday, May 23, when a huge crowd gathered to dedicate the new Beaver Island Community School building.

After welcoming remarks from Principal-Superintendent Kathleen McNamara, the island's Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts conducted the Pledge of Allegiance.

A number of individuals gave brief remarks at the ceremony, which all centered on a central theme: Beaver Island's long history of acting on the importance of education for their children, and gratefulness for the support and involvement of the entire community in supporting the nearly $4 million school building project.

Outside the school, a refinished bell from the old McKinley School, which was built on the same site in 1902 and used until the late 1950s, was dedicated.

AMVETS Post 46 members raised the flag on the school's new flagpole and island resident Joe Reed, retired Marine Corps Major, reflected on the meaning of the stars and stripes.

The graduating class of 2009 cut the ribbon on the high school portion of the building and the kindergarten class, garbed in miniature green and white commencement robes, cut the ribbon on the elementary school side.

Tours were conducted and all the students and staff were on hand to answer questions about the new building and hand out commemorative rulers to the guests.

Then all headed out to the new playground for a community picnic.

Rayder golfers swing a win

BY ANDY SNEEDON
NEWS-REVIEW

Home sweet home.

The Charlevoix High School boys' golf made the most of a chance to play on its home course as the Rayders shot 328 to win the Division III district at the Belvedere in Charlevoix. The Rayders outclassed the field, beating runner-up Kalkaska by 33 strokes.

Charlevoix's Ty Jones and Wyatt Drost each shot 78 to share medalist honors with Kalkaska's John Kasza.

Charlevoix advances to the Thursday, May 28, regional at Katke Golf Course on the campus of Ferris State University in Big Rapids.

The performances of Drost and Jones highlighted an outstanding day for the Rayders as all five Charlevoix golfers placed in the top 10 to earn a medal.

Charlevoix's Thomas Rich shot 84 to place sixth, Gunner Whitley shot 88 to tie for eight, and Ryan Wimmer shot 89 to tie for 10th. The Rayders were so dominant that they had the luxury of not counting the fifth-player score, Wimmer's 89.

"It's just really gratifying to see that," said Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth, whose team won its third straight district championship. "It was a fun day. They've worked hard and it's always fun to see a group of kids who work hard succeeding, and as a coach, that's all you can ask for."

The tournament was played in wicked winds that Drenth estimated to register up to 30 mph. But the Rayders appeared unfazed on their home course.

"It's a huge advantage (playing at home)," Drenth said. "Our top two scores this year have been at the Belvedere. They (the players) feel so comfortable in knowing where to hit the ball. We feel very fortunate to be able to play at the Belvedere."

Kalkaska shot 361 to finish a distant second to the Rayders, while Roscommon, 367, was third, followed by Grayling, 374; Benzie Central, 377; Houghton Lake, 379; Manistee, and Mason County Central, 390; Elk Rapids, 406; Boyne City, 414; and Kingsley, 447.

The road gets tougher now at the regional, where only the top three teams advance to the state tournament. At Katke, the Rayders will encounter a strong field that includes Big Rapids, which is ranked No. 1 in the Division III state coaches poll.

"I think we're capable of making it to state," Drenth said. "We're going to have to play well. I'm excited about the opportunity. I know the guys are excited."

Are You Neglecting Your 403(b) Plan?

Ben Muladore
Financial Advisor

Are you a teacher? Or are you employed by a non-profit organization? In either case, you may have a 403(b) retirement plan available to you. Your 403(b) is similar to 401(k) plans offered by companies, yet some evidence suggests that participation in 403(b) plans is lower than that found in 401(k)s. If you're not taking advantage of your 403(b), you may want to reconsider — because your plan can provide a big boost to your retirement savings.

If you're not familiar with a 403(b), you'll want to understand the key benefits:

- Tax-deferred earnings — Your money grows on a tax-deferred basis, which means it can accumulate faster than if it were placed in an investment on which you paid taxes every year.
- Pre-tax contributions — Typically, you fund your 403(b) with pre-tax dollars, so the more you put in, the lower your annual taxable income. (Some 403(b) plans may allow a Roth option, which allows your earnings to grow tax-free, provided you meet certain conditions. However, your contributions are made with after-tax dollars.)

- Variety of investment options — You should have a variety of investment choices with which to fund your 403(b), so you can build a portfolio that is appropriate for your risk tolerance and time horizon.

Given these features, why aren't more people participating in their 403(b) plans? One key reason seems to be that many eligible employees, especially teachers, also are covered by a pension plan — and they think a pension, combined with Social Security, may be enough to meet their retirement income goals.

But that's probably not true. You'll likely need at least 80 percent of your working income during retirement — and that figure could easily rise, depending on your retirement lifestyle. Consequently, you will need to exploit every single avenue of retirement savings — including your 403(b) plan.

In 2009, you can defer up to $16,500 of your salary to a 403(b), plus an additional $5,500 if you're 50 or older. You can put in another $5,000 if you have 15 or more years of service with a qualified organization and you contributed, on average, less than $5,000 a year to your 403(b) plan.

Of course, you may not be able to put in the maximum annual amount to your 403(b) plan. But if your employer matches part of your contributions, you should at least consider contributing enough to earn the match — otherwise, you're walking away from "free money."

While it's often a good idea to contribute to your 403(b), you may find some extra challenges in 2009, because the rules governing 403(b) plans have changed.

Previously, your plan may have allowed you to invest with several 403(b) providers, or "vendors," and you could make tax-free transfers between them. Under new IRS rules, however, you can now move assets from one vendor to another only if both vendors are on your plan's "approved" list. Consequently, many employers will likely reduce the number of 403(b) vendors and investment options, so you'll have to evaluate the new "approved vendor" list to see which vendors would be most fitting for your financial goals.

In any case, if you aren't already contributing to your 403(b), start now. And if you already are participating in your plan, make sure you're getting the most out of it — someday, you'll be glad you did.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

Default has been made in the terms and conditions of a mortgage made August 8, 2006, by Benjamin A. Hamel, a single man, as mortgagee, to First Community Bank, as mortgagee, and recorded on August 22, 2006, at Liber 762, Page 846, Charlevoix County Records.

This mortgage has been modified by modifications of mortgage dated May 8, 2007, and recorded on May 25, 2007, at Liber 804, Page 608, and dated February 20, 2009, and recorded March 4, 2009, at Liber 878, Page 734, both Charlevoix County Records.

The latest modification also added the dower interests of Tamara June Hamel to the lien of the subject mortgage. The entire balance secured by said mortgage having become fully due and payable by reason of the acceleration provisions contained in said mortgage and the promissory note secured thereby; and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice $294,936.45; and no legal or equitable proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt or any part thereof, the power of sale contained in the mortgage having become operative by reason of the default.

Notice is now given that on Friday, June 19, 2009, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., in the main lobby of the Charlevoix County Building, 301 State Street, in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, the premises described in the mortgage, situated in Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows:

UNIT 4, SUMMERHILL, A CONDOMINIUM ACCORDING TO THE MASTER DEED RECORDED IN LIBER 405, PAGES 371 THROUGH 439, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY RECORDS, AS AMENDED, AND DESIGNATED AS CHARLEVOIX COUNTY CONDOMINIUM PLAN NO. 116, TOGETHER WITH RIGHTS IN GENERAL COMMON ELEMENTS AND LIMITED COMMON ELEMENTS AS SET FORTH IN THE ABOVE MASTER DEED AND AS DESCRIBED IN THE PUBLIC ACTS OF 1978, AS AMENDED.

Commonly known as: 01285 Pawling Ridge Dr #500, Boyne Falls, MI 49913.

The redemption period shall be six (6) months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a. In which case the redemption period shall be thirty (30) days from the date of such sale.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik told students they had spent more than 5,000 hours in the high school building since 2005, and that they had grown from teenagers to young adults in that time. He then asked the students to acknowledge the time, effort and hard work put in by their teachers over the years. The students then gave teachers and support staff a standing ovation.

Alleged arsonist charged

When Cory Mylon Haight escaped the 300 Meech St. fire back in April with minor burns, officials say he was victim of his own handiwork.

Haight has been charged with arson of a dwelling, a 20-year felony, for the blaze which destroyed the house in which his wife and children were living.

Haight

"Further that this was an intentionally caused incendiary fire with two areas of origin neither one of them being from the kitchen but instead in the living room."

The 28-year-old Haight pleaded "not guilty" on May 27, via video conference from jail.

Haight, who has been appointed a defense attorney, will be arraigned at 2:45 p.m., June 9 in Charlevoix's 90th District Court.

"I thought the officers did a nice job on quickly resolving this case," said Charlevoix County Chief-Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara. "Arson can be an extensive, long investigation with an inconclusive result, but here the officers were able, within a short time, to determine it was arson."

This most recent charge comes nearly two months after the April 4 fire, from which Haight was arrested when responding officers discovered Haight was violating a personal protection order on his wife by having been in the dwelling.

He had also been wanted for retail fraud charges.

Haight pleaded guilty on April 7, to third-degree retail fraud for his part in a shoplifting incident in Boyne City and for violating the personal protection order.

According to arresting officer, Charlevoix City Policeman Matt Umulis' affidavit, Haight was searched at the scene and two lighters were found.

Haight was asked if one of the lighters was used to start the fire, to which Haight responded that perhaps the microwave had shorted out and started an electrical fire in the kitchen.

Sgt. Dale Hardy, Michigan State Police Fire Investigator, investigated the fire and it is his opinion that the fire was humanly caused and that there were no other accidental causes found," Umulis stated.

Two guilty in gun thefts

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Two of the three men charged in connection with breaking into a Charlevoix home, stealing and later distributing several guns have pleaded guilty.

Joshua Douglas Hoffman, 17, Traverse City, pleaded guilty to third-degree home invasion, a five-year and/or $2,000 felony, and receiving and concealing stolen firearms, a 10-year and/or $5,000 felony.

Antonio Joseph Cepeda-Mulholland, an 18-year-old Charlevoix man, pleaded guilty to first-degree home invasion, a 20-year and/or $5,000 felony.

However, sentencing has been put on hold while the judge in the case considers invoking the Homes Youthful Trainee Act, a law which allows certain individuals between the ages of 17 and 21 to receive a deferred sentence on the condition of good behavior and following terms of probation.

"I am opposing (the) Homes Youth Trainee Act and feel that, due to the seriousness of the crime, these defendants should have a criminal history that reflects the crimes they committed," said Charlevoix County Chief-Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Shaynee Fanara. "There is still a handgun out on the street, unaccounted for, due to these defendants."

The third person alleged to have been connected with the crime in question is 19-year-old Bennie Anthony Cornish of Charlevoix, who has been arraigned on one charge of receiving and concealing firearms, which is a 10-year and/or $5,000 felony; as well as a probation violation for testing positive for marijuana.

Cornish is expected to go to a preliminary examination on Tuesday, June 2.

The case dates back to March 22 when Charlevoix City Police were called by a West Lincoln St. homeowner who found his home and gun safe broken into.

Five handguns were missing—four of which have been retrieved.

The remaining gun, a .357 Colt Python revolver, remains unaccounted for.

Fallen sailor's family honored after 42 years

BENJAMIN GOHS

He died trying to save three boys on April 30, 1967 in Duluth, Minn.

But, despite his heroic feat that fateful day, Coast Guard officer Edgar Allen Culbertson's children were never recognized.

"We were divorced at the time he was stationed in Minnesota," said Culbertson's former wife Jill Picha of Charlevoix. "Casey was 9 and Cristin (Culbertson Alpert) was 6 when he was killed, and if there is no spouse, the award is supposed to go to the son, but it wasn't properly handled and the children were never included."

Boatswain's Mate Culbertson and two other coast guardsmen headed out to the Duluth Ship Canal after a report went out of three missing brothers last seen playing near the break wall by the pier.

During rough seas, Culbertson was washed off the pier. Neither he nor the boys survived.

The boys' bodies were never found.

"They pulled him (Culbertson) in and worked on him for 45 minutes, but they just couldn't bring him back," Picha said.

The incident, known in Duluth as "Black Sunday" would likely have remained unresolved in the minds of the Culbertson children if not for a chance intervenor.

Thanks to the effort of Minnesota police officer and United States Coast Guard reservist Kevin Rofidal, Picha's children were finally presented with awards for their father's sacrifice during a ceremony this April 30 on the pier in Duluth, Minn.—42 years to the day where their father died.

"It was probably about August, last year, I had been drilling with the coast guard on the weekend and on lunch break walking along the pier when I saw this memorial plaque," Rofidal said. "A man walked up to me and started asking me about it and I felt kind of stupid because I didn't know any details. So, I set out to find out more about the incident and it kind of turned into contacting the family."

Rofidal found one of the men who had been on the pier that day with Culbertson and connected him with the Culbertson children.

"They had all these questions about what happened that I couldn't answer," Rofidal said.

Rofidal then arranged to have a ceremony in honor of the children at the pier where Culbertson died.

They received the Coast Guard Medal, a military decoration given for an act of heroism during peace time; the Fraternal Order of Police Medal of Valor, an honor given for a law enforcement officer who dies in the line of duty; the National Law Enforcement Memorial Coin which acknowledges the sacrifice of law enforcement officers and their families in preserving public safety; a United States Coast Guard flag; and the Admiral's Coin from the Coast Guard Ninth District.

"The ceremony and all that was done to recognize our father made us speechless," Casey said. "We were honored for the recognition of our father and all those that came together in planning and made the day special for us."

He added, "It is amazing after 42 years they remember and recognize our father who was a hero."

Picha said only 44 men in U.S. Coast Guard history had received the award when it was bestowed on Culbertson's children.

Culbertson's children accepted the Coast Guard Medal for their father and with it, Picha said, some relief.

"It meant a lot to me because it gave my children

Funds will come from the authority's parking fund. "We're going to request up to $50,000 just so we don't have to come back later if the project were to run over," Carey said.

According to Tony Duerr, owner of Pine River Books which is nearby the gravel lot this move by the authority is a good thing.

"I think any public improvements to the downtown business area, especially those that make it convenient and attractive for customers, is going to be a substantial help to us," he said. Carey also said upgrading the lot from uneven gravel to flat pavement will help with drainage of storm water.

"We also anticipate installing a couple curbs between the lot and alley (Van Pelt) so there is at least some definition between that and the parking area," he said.

While no timeline on construction will be set forth until after the bidding process is complete, Carey said the project could be underway by the end of summer.

"This will promote better and safer vehicle parking with respect to vehicle safety," he said. Carey said at this early stage the best "ballpark" estimate of what it will cost to pave the area will be between $35,000 and

Military like cold shower

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

He calls his book on military life a positive slant with a reality base—and that's just what writer Jerry Newland hopes potential soldiers will find.

A 20-year veteran of the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, Newland wrote his 55-page primer "The Military is Like a Cold Shower" on what to expect and what not to expect from serving Uncle Sam.

"It talks about boot camp ... how difficult marriage can be ... it talks about religion ... and there is a chapter on homosexuality," Newland said.

Newland said, while he would not trade his decades of experience in the military for anything, the service is not for everyone.

"If you're running away from home to avoid some problem, don't run to the service because it's a bad habit to get into when you get into probably the most stressful job in the country," he said. "You need to know why you're joining and what you want to get out of your career."

Newland grew up in Hartford.

"I joined the Navy five days out of high school with no idea of what I was getting into," he said.

Newland then spent his time as a field medic.

My first experiences were helping the first group of POW returnees at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland," he said.

"It was very scary. They were very badly damaged people."

Despite leaving the service with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, Newland said his experiences were overall positive ones.

"The very last chapter is on the process of mourning—dealing with the guilt of taking the life of another; dealing with the loss of a friend in combat," he said. "It covers how most people handle grief and what can people do and what are the warning signs and how to avoid self-medicating."

Newland's book is aimed at a younger audience which includes high school juniors, seniors and college students who are considering enlisting.

Newland's next book signing is from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., June 20 at Round Lake Bookstore in Charlevoix. Books cost $16.95.

Lindi Edger has been named to the Albion College dean's list for the spring 2009 semester.

Students named to the dean's list must achieve a grade point average of 3.5 or above at the completion of the semester. This grade point average must be based on at least three units in graded courses and a minimum of four units completed.

Edger is a junior majoring in psychology.

She is the daughter of Todd and Mary Edger of Charlevoix and a graduate of Charlevoix High School.

•LAKE SUPERIOR STATE UNIVERSITY

The following students have earned the distinction of being included on the Lake Superior State University Dean's List for the Spring 2009 semester. To make the Dean's List, students must achieve a 3.5 grade point average for the semester on a 4.0 scale.

Senior Michael J. Anderson of East Jordan in accounting.

Senior Carrie L. Blanchard of Charlevoix in business administration/management.

Sophomore Rachelle M. Fantozzi of Boyne Falls in computer networking.

Senior Raymond J. Greenleaf of Boyne City in mechanical engineering.

•ANDERSON UNIVERSITY

Nathan K. Turner of Charlevoix has been selected for membership in the Psi Chi National Honor Society for psychology. Turner is a student at Anderson University, Anderson, Ind.

•WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY

Stephanie Dickinson Brooks, a 2002 graduate of Charlevoix High School, recently graduated from Wayne State University's Doctor of Pharmacy program in Detroit.

Prior to transferring to Wayne State, she attended Lake Superior State University for two years.

She plans to enter practice in hospital pharmacy at Saint Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, where she and her husband Allen reside.

Her parents, David and Karen Dickinson of Charlevoix are proud of her achievement.

•4-H SCHOLARSHIPS

Jessica Bills was selected to receive a $500 scholarship from the Charlevoix County 4-H Council.

She plans to study Nursing at Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids. Bills has been involved in the Charlevoix County 4-H Center Club and Hilltop Renegades since 2004, and attributes her love of horses to 4-H.

Her 4-H Project areas have included horses and market livestock sheep.

In 2005 Jessica received the 4-H Michigan State Trail Champion Overall, in 2006 she received the Michigan 4-H Equitation Champion and in 2008 she received the 4-H Market Livestock Lamb Senior Showmanship Reserve Champion at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair.

Earning the $250 scholarship from the Charlevoix County 4-H Council was Beau Fuller.

He has been involved with the 4-H Country Kids Club since 1997, and feels his experiences in 4-H have helped him become a better person. Fuller has held several 4-H offices through his involvement in his 4-H Club and has involvement with Market

Livestock.

He was accepted at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, and will study auto mechanics.

His 4-H Project Areas included market livestock—steers, lamb and swine.

In 2006, Fuller received Reserve Intermediate Showmanship for Market Hog and in 2007 he received Grand Champion for Market Hog, both at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair.

RAYDER GOLF GOING TO STATE

It's on to the state finals for the Charlevoix High School boys' golf team.

Junior Ty Jones and sophomore Wyatt Drost both shot 77 to finish among five players tied for fifth to lead the Rayders to a second-place finish Thursday in the Division III regional on Kane Golf Course on the campus of Ferris State University.

Charlevoix finished with a season-low 320 team score to come in nine shots behind Big Rapids, which is the defending state champion, is ranked No. 1 in the state coaches' poll, and was playing on its home course.

Remus Chappewa Hills shot 341 to finish a distant third.

"We played well," said first-year Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth, whose team's previous low 18-hole score was 322. "The guys really came through. Just a very gratifying day all the way around."

"I'm just so happy for the guys. They've worked so hard; it's really gratifying to see as a coach."

Also for Charlevoix, sophomore Thomas Rich shot 82 to be for 11th, junior Gunnar Whitley shot 84 to be for 17th, and sophomore Ryan Wimmer shot 98.

The Rayders advance to the two-day, 36-hole state tournament at Eagle Crest on the campus of Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. The tournament begins Friday, June 5.

Drenth succeeded longtime mentor Jim Glynn as the Rayders' coach this season, and he said the squad has been aided immensely all season not only by Glynn, but by former Belvedere pro Steve Braun, current Belvedere pro Marty Joy, and Charlevoix Country Club Steven Good.

"Jim Glynn has traveled with us all year," Drenth said. "All four of those guys have been so instrumental in teaching."

"We're going down to Ypsilanti and see what happens. We're really looking forward to it."

PICTURE THIS

Marell Staffel, from Picture This, received honorable mention for her entry in Nelson's Print Framing competition.

Nelson's held their 10th Educational Seminar on Saturday, May 16, where a total of 10 framers took on two judges in the print framing competition. Marell, along with nine other contestants, framed the print of Lori Feldpausch's original plein air painting.

Marell took an original moulding and applied a green wash, using a cream colored outer mat and accented the piece with green inner mats.

Stop by 106 Antrim St., to view her piece.

Library's 100th year

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library have installed a historical photo exhibit depicting Charlevoix in the early 1900s.

The exhibit, located in the Community Meeting Room Foyer of the Charlevoix Public Library, corresponds with the Library's 100th Anniversary of an independent library building in Charlevoix.

The exhibit will be on display until mid-July and then shortly thereafter will be relocated to its permanent location throughout the library.

The Michigan Room Committee of the Charlevoix Public Library spent hours of time researching photos at the Charlevoix Historical Society, which would give people a sense of life in Charlevoix one hundred years ago.

The exhibit was generously funded by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, but could not have been accomplished without the assistance of David Miles, co-director of the Historical Society.

Visit the exhibit during regular library hours:

10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday - Thursday

10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday

1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Sundays

For more information about the library, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org

New Earl Young exhibit

To coincide with the production of our new DVD on "The Life and Works of Earl Young," and the publication of new patron Mike Barton's recent book, "The Mushroom Houses of Charlevoix," the Harsha House is in the final stages of mounting an exhibit on Young and his creations.

Earl Young's importance to Charlevoix has been an established fact for decades.

People have and continue to come from all over the country and abroad to marvel at what he accomplished, and in the process find out how much more Charlevoix has to offer. As visitors take away word of what they have discovered, more and more people are making this town a destination.

Almost every day in the summer sees tour buses heading west for the sole purpose of viewing the Young homes along Park Avenue and Grant Street and in Boulder Park.

This new exhibit features photos from both the DVD and Mike's book, plus some from the Society's archives.

All the buildings displayed will have brief notations regarding address, date of construction, and names by which some of them are known.

The exhibit is intended to summarize Earl Young's life and career, which information is expanded upon in the DVD, then beautifully rendered in full color in the book as the buildings look today from many angles.

We urge all our members to bring their summertime guests to view this unique and intriguing tribute.

The Reverend Nancy Rohde will officiate.

Interment will take place at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38106-1942.

The Winchester Funeral Home is handling the arrangements.

Health and wellness screening

Charlevoix Area Hospital is offering walk-in health screenings from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 3.

Health Screens include: Cholesterol and blood Glucose levels, Body Mass Index (BMI) score, and a Blood Pressure reading.

Cost for the service is $12. Participants will receive a blood pressure log, a pedometer, and all test results at the time of the screen.

Health Consultation and educational materials will be tailored to individual results by a Registered Nurse.

The entire visit will take less than 15 minutes.

"We had an excellent turnout for our first Wellness Wednesday in May," said Kathy Jacobsen, Community Health Educator for Charlevoix Area Hospital. "We saw a total of 37 people and their feedback about our program was overwhelmingly positive."

Jacobsen said many insurance companies limit the number of times they will pay for cholesterol testing, usually once per year.

"Most of our participants" were very interested in getting healthy and were curious if their cholesterol was on the right track," she said. "We can give them that answer." Appointments can be made in advance by calling the Office of Community Health Education at 547-8906.

Walk-ins are welcome.

Summer folk festival

BENJAMIN BONE
EDITOR

It began as an open mic night with a couple acts at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Now, after two winter seasons of performances by musicians of varying genres, organizers will be hosting the first ever summer folk music series in Charlevoix.

"These are going to be family-centered events," said program organizer and host Dwan Abramowski. "Our acts center in on guitars and story telling, and all three acts play a lot of original music."

Will and Ann Rowland will kick off the series at 7 p.m., June 8 in the library's community rooms.

At 7 p.m., July 6, Michael Lee, winner of the 2008 Mid North Michigan Blues Challenge, will play his solo blues and folk style.

At 7 p.m., Aug. 3, Pinky Lee, consisting of Jenny Bousquet and Holly Keller will play their soulful folk style of music.

"I think if you're a teen on up, you'll be able to find music and lyrics you should enjoy," Abramowski said. "It's just exciting to know we can celebrate talent like this in our local community."

He added, "A lot of people just don't realize we have this musical talent here."

Abramowski, whose stage name is Dwan Martin, will also play music from his new CD "Road to Wonderland."

Following each night's performance, there will be an open jam session in the round for any musician interested in playing an instrument or singing.

For more information on this free event, call 547-2651.

More road work coming

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

The list of local road improvement projects slated for this year in Charlevoix County continues to grow as the road commission sent projects totaling more than $1.25 million out for bid.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission approved sending the projects out to bid at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday.

The most costly among the projects could also be the first project funded, in-part, through a county-wide road millage approved by voters in November.

The project would involve reconstructing a two-mile section of River Road in Melrose Township from Bear River Road to Springvale Road at an estimated cost of about $703,000. Melrose Township has agreed to pay for $250,000 of the project. The remainder would be paid for using county-wide road millage money.

Road commission engineer Pat Harmon said the steering committee which was appointed to oversee planning for the road millage funds last week approved moving forward with the project.

Harmon said factors playing into the decision were the very poor condition of the road, the road's function as an emergency detour when accidents prompt a temporary closure of U.S. 131 at or near M-75, and the township's willingness to contribute $250,000 to the project.

He noted the project will take place this year only if the county board of commissioners is willing to loan the road commission the balance of the project's cost (about $453,000) for about two months. That's about how long it will likely be between when the bill for the project is due and when the first road millage funds are collected in December.

The other projects sent out for bid Tuesday include — Re-gravel about 1.03 miles of Marshall Road. The estimated $42,000 cost will be shared between Wilson and Eveline townships.

— Repave 0.8 miles of Addis Road from Old State Road to the end of the pavement. The estimated $120,000 cost will be shared between Melrose and Eveline townships.

— Repave 0.63 miles of Clute Road from Shadow Trails Road west and south. The estimated $111,000 cost will be shared by Melrose and Evangeline Townships.

— Repave .28 miles of Shadow Trails Road in Melrose Township from M-75 to near Clute Road at an estimated cost of $52,000.

— Repave 1.27 miles of Miles Road in South Arm Township from Rogers Road to the county line at an estimated cost of $201,000.

If the bids for all of the above projects are ultimately approved by their respective townships it would bring the amount of money slated to be spent on local road improvements in the county this year to more than $2 million.

Bids for the projects will be opened on June 8.

Rights forum focuses on Wilhelm case

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A public forum billed as a discussion on local law enforcement and civil rights focused mainly on the Austin Wilhelm vandalism case.

Petoskey professor Dale Hull and Wilhelm family friend Vince Chew hosted the June 1 forum at the Charlevoix Public Library in hopes of educating the public on what they feel is happening to the civil rights of young people today.

"I want to talk about two specific problems that I see," Hull said of the charges against Wilhelm, the former Charlevoix high student charged with a felony for allegedly vandalizing school property with paint last year.

Hull discussed the lockdown which occurred in May, 2008, the day painting damage was found at the Charlevoix High School building and trades project house.

"The children could not leave the building. Parents were not contacted to tell them their children could not leave the building," he said. "Police came to the building, and with the help of school officials, every child was made to stand against the wall, show their hands, show their feet, and in some cases remove their clothing and give the clothing to the police."

Hull added, "This didn't happen in Detroit. It didn't happen in L.A. ... It happened in Charlevoix. It could happen in Petoskey. It could happen in Boyne City, unless people like you and me ... make certain that every child has the same rights that you and I have."

Hull said children should have the same protection under the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution—the right to be free from unreasonable search and seizure.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik would not comment in detail citing the ongoing case against Wilhelm, but said the lockdown policy was being reviewed.

"We are reviewing our policies as we do with all our policies on a regular basis," Janik said. "We're trying to find balance between the rights of the students, the rights of law enforcement to investigate a crime that occurs on our campus and the rights of the school district."

Hull went on to say the American Civil Liberties Union sued and won against a Detroit school district for a similar type of lockdown.

Chew added, "I think it is important to interject here that we're talking about lockdowns for the purpose of investigating a crime that occurred in the past."

Hull also discussed the severity of the charges against Wilhelm since it actually cost $298—a misdemeanor, with volunteered labor to clean up the project house. However, the prosecutor in the case has charged Wilhelm for what it would have cost laborers to repair the damage—nearly $4,000.

"The damage was property damage," he said. "The charge against this young man is a felony for which this prosecutor in this county is asking us to send this boy away for five years."

Hull added, "That is not protecting our children—that is putting them at risk."

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema, the one handling this case, had no comment on the forum.

Comments from the nearly 70 people in attendance ranged from calls for the prosecutor to step down, to having him recalled for pursuing the case and even questions about having the school board recalled for their policy on lockdowns.

Hull urged audience members to attend the 7 p.m. June 8 Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education meeting in the Charlevoix Middle School's large group room.

The Reality About Newspapers

In the past two years, the newspaper business has faced unprecedented financial challenges. The economic meltdown and advertising recession have hit our industry hard. But make no mistake about this: newspaper media – print and digital – remains strong and will emerge from the current environment an even stronger multi-platform force.

Here is the reality about newspapers today:

1. Myth: No one reads newspapers anymore.

REALITY: More than 104 million adults read a print newspaper every day, more than 116 million on Sundays. That's more people than watch the Super Bowl (94 million), American Idol (23 million) or that typically watch the late local news (65 million).

2. Myth: Young people no longer read newspapers.

REALITY: 61 percent of 18-24 year olds and 25-34 year olds read a newspaper in an average week and 65 percent of them read a newspaper or visited a newspaper website in the past week.

3. Myth: Newspaper readership is tanking.

REALITY: Average weekday newspaper readership declined a mere 1.8 percent between 2007 and 2008, and about 7 percent since its peak in 2002. Compare that to the 10 percent decline seen in the prime time TV audience in 2007 alone. Meanwhile, newspapers' Web audience has grown nearly 76 percent since 2004, to 73 million unique visitors a month.

4. Myth: Many newspapers are going out of business.

REALITY: Newspapers, as individual businesses, by and large remain profitable enterprises – with operating margins that Wall Street analysts estimate will generally average in the low to mid teens during 2009. While that may be down from historical highs, such margins would be the envy of many other industries today. As consultant John Morton said in a recent American Journalism Review article, "Overall, the beleaguered newspaper industry's financial health has been weakened but remains healthy by most measures. In this environment, that is an achievement."

5. Myth: Newspaper advertising doesn't work.

REALITY: Google's own research shows that 68 percent of consumers researched or purchased products they saw in a newspaper. Google also says that newspaper advertising reinforces online ads: 62 percent are more likely to buy products if they see it in the paper.

6. Myth: There are no creative options in newspapers.

REALITY: Newspaper advertising options have exploded and now include shape and polybag ads, post-it notes, "we prints," shingle spades, scented ads, taste-it ads, glow-in-the-dark, belly bands and temporary tattoos, as well as event and database marketing, behavioral targeting, e-mail blasts, e-newsletters and more.

7. Myth: If newspapers close, you will still be able to get news from other sources.

REALITY: Newspapers make a larger investment in journalism than any other medium. Most of the information you read from "aggregators" and other media originated with newspapers. No amount of effort from local bloggers, non-profit news entities or TV news sources could match the depth and breadth of newspaper-produced content. This is not a portrait of a dying industry. It's illustrative of transformation. Newspapers are reinventing themselves to focus on serving distinct audiences with a variety of products, and delivering those audiences effectively to advertisers across media channels.

Opening NEW East Park!

Saturday Morning, June 20th

NEW East Park opens!

For several years, environmental work has been underway at Resort Township's East Park to address problems left from the old cement plant that used to operate along the Lake Michigan shore.

Now, the work is done and one of America's most beautiful public parks will open.

See the park. Join the fun. Come celebrate this great community achievement.

Free shuttle service will be provided from overflow parking areas at the Bay Harbor Resort. Or, bring your bike and ride the trail from Bay Harbor to the NEW East Park.

Sign up to get more information about the work done at East Park and throughout the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project. Visit: protectingourbay.com

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

2009 presents another year of challenge and excitement for the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. In the midst of tough economic times, the Festival is striving to maintain the array and caliber of Venetian activities. At the same time, enthusiasm and excitement springs anew, as Venetian will again present several new twists and turns as it enters its first full season of staging in the recently completed East Park.

The extent to which the Festival can stay the course will be determined through a combination of belt tightening and a focus upon generating greater revenue. Ultimately, the financial viability of the 2009 Festival and of Venetian Festivals for years to come, remains dependent upon continued generous and extensive financial support of the entire Charlevoix community.

Such support has been sustained since 1989 by the Burgee Club, those individuals, organizations and businesses who faithfully contribute funds, goods and services to Venetian. Burgee Club members have weaved a fabric of life in Charlevoix, by funding our amazing Venetian homecoming celebration. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2008 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

Please take this opportunity to enlist and/or reenlist in the Burgee Club, by forwarding your 2009 donation with the Enrollment Form reflected below, as Venetian 2009 will be shaped by your donations. If you or any of your friends and family have ever enjoyed any of the Venetian activities, please appreciate the fact that your financial support is more timely and critical than ever, and then proceed to celebrate Venetian with gusto!

Rayders take district crown in dramatic fashion

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

Their motto all season long was "to finish strong."

That's exactly what the Charlevoix Rayders did not only once, but twice, Saturday in winning Division III district softball tournament at their own field.

After coming an eight-inning 2-1 victory over East Jordan in a pressure-packed semifinal, Charlevoix overcame a 7-6 deficit in the sixth inning to ship past Harbor Springs, 8-7, in the final to capture its first district title since 1994.

The Rayders, 15-15-1, advance to a Division III regional on Saturday, June 6, at Marcellona. Charlevoix will face Kalkaska, 28-10, in a semifinal game.

"This is unbelievable," fourth-year Charlevoix coach Tony Zimmerman said. "It's been a long, long time. We've been coming up and making some strides for four years and we've been playing well."

"We struggled a little bit in the regular season. We just came through here today. We needed to peak at the right time and we did."

They also needed an extra inning and a little bit of luck to get past East Jordan in the semifinals.

Senior Enrika Faust singled, tripled and scored both runs, including the game-winner in the bottom of the eighth as she raced home following her triple and an overthrow to thrust the Rayders into the final.

"I was a little worried if we could keep the momentum going," Zimmerman said. "I thought we might be a little bit spent and it was the first time we've ever been in that situation."

In the title game against Harbor, Amber Hoffman had two hits including the game-winner. Her one-out bases loaded single drove in Chelsea Hoffman with the winning run.

"Our motto all year was to finish," Zimmerman said. "That's all we had to do. It was fun, but it was nerve-racking. The first one sure does feel awesome."

Madison Zimmerman and Chelsea Hoffman had three hits apiece for Charlevoix in the title game, while Lauren Mielke doubled twice. Faust added a double and a single.

Kristin Mielke earned the win in relief of Hannah Hybl, who left the game because of a back injury. Mielke struck out three and scattered three hits, while Hybl also fanned three.

"I knew there was something bothering (Hybl) in that second game," Zimmerman said. "Kristin came in and struggled at first, but once she found her groove, she was outstanding."

For Harbor, 13-21-1, Megan Mathews struck out six and walked three in taking the loss.

"Give them a lot of credit, they fought hard and they have a nice team, as does East Jordan," Zimmerman said of the Rams. "Both coaches (Meg Kitson, Debbie Hamlin) are fantastic coaches and it was an honor to coach against them."

Hybl struck out 12 and allowed just one hit while walking three in the win over East Jordan.

Shaina Peters took the hard-luck loss as she struck out 10, walked four and allowed just two hits. Peters drove in the Red Devils' lone run.

The Red Devils, who won the Lake Michigan Conference title, close a 22-7 season.

"This was a disappointing loss," East Jordan coach Meg Kitson said. "Our girls tried hard, but could get nothing going. Our bats did not show up. We had a great season, but today just wasn't our day."

Harbor rolled past Inland Lakes, 14-4, in five innings in the other semifinal.

Golf: going to state

It's on to the state finals for the Charlevoix High School boys' golf team.

Junior Ty Jones and sophomore Wyatt Drost both shot 77 to finish among five players tied for fifth to lead the Rayders to a second-place finish Thursday in the Division III regional on Katie Golf Course on the campus of Ferris State University.

Charlevoix finished with a season-low 320 team score to come in nine shots behind Big Rapids, which is the defending state champion, is ranked No. 1 in the state coaches poll, and was playing on its home course.

Remus Chippewa Hills shot 341 to finish a distant third.

"We played well," said first-year Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth, whose team's previous low 18-hole score was 322. "The guys really came through. Just a very gratifying day all the way around."

"I'm just so happy for the guys. They've worked so hard; it's really gratifying to see as a coach."

Also for Charlevoix, sophomore Thomas Rich shot 82 to tie for 11th, junior Gunnar Whitley shot 84 to tie for 17th, and sophomore Ryan Wimmer shot 98.

The Rayders advance to the two-day, 36-hole state tournament at Eagle Crest on the campus of Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. The tournament begins Friday, June 5.

Drenth succeeded long time mentor Jim Glynn as the Rayders' coach this season, and he said the squad has been aided immensely all season not only by Glynn, but by former Belvedere pro Steve Braun, current Belvedere pro Marty Joy, and Charlevoix Country Club Steven Good.

"Jim Glynn has traveled with us all year," Drenth said. "All four of those guys have been so instrumental in teaching."

Second straight district title

A historic day and another trip to the regionals for the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team.

Olivia Catt and Meredith Rich scored two goals apiece Saturday as the Rayders rolled past Boyne City, 8-0, in a Division IV district championship match at Harbor Springs' Ottawa Stadium.

It was Charlevoix's second straight district title and its third in five years. It marked the first time Charlevoix has won back-to-back district crowns in girls' soccer.

The Rayders, 16-3-2 and ranked fifth in the state coaches poll, will play Lake Michigan Conference rival Traverse City Liberty, 15-4-1, in a regional semifinal game on Tuesday, June 2. The game is scheduled for Holton High School, but may be moved to a neutral site closer to Charlevoix and Traverse City.

The Rayders, who are the defending regional champions, defeated the Liberty twice in the regular season, 3-0 and 2-1.

"It makes me a little nervous," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "It's hard to beat a good team three times (in a season) and they're good. It's just going to be a matter of who shows up and if we can put the ball in the net."

Muskegon Western Michigan Christian and Kent City Algoma Christian meet in the other regional semifinal. The championship is slated for 6 p.m. Friday, June 5, at Holton.

Bobbie Molter, Caroline Dupuis, Madison Way and KC McCary also scored for the Rayders on Friday, while Bridget Peters and McCary had two assists apiece, and Catt and Molter had one each.

Tammy Potter posted the shut-out in goal, while Marlie Greene and Taylor Smith played well,

Prep track: Area athletes garner 15 medals

No state champions, but medals aplenty for area athletes Saturday at the Michigan High School Athletic Association state track and field championships.

Petoskey claimed three medals — all in relays — and set a school record in the Division II meet at Zeeland Schools.

Charlevoix came away with a pair of medals at the Division III meet at Comstock Park High School.

And Harbor Springs, Inland Lakes, Ellsworth and Pellston earned a combined 10 medals in the Division IV meet at Grand Rapids Forest Hills Eastern.

Division II
Petoskey's Margaret Liederbach, Molly Touran and Tina Penfold wrapped up their respective outstanding high school careers as each ran a leg on the Northern girls' 3200- and 1600-meter relay teams.

Alexandra Taylor joined that trio as Petoskey finished second in the 3200 relay in 9 minutes, 31.20 seconds. Williamston won the event in 9:29.84.

Liederbach, Touran and Penfold teamed with Kristi Ellis to place third in the 1600 relay in a school-record 4:06.19. Middleville Thornapple-Kellogg won the event in 4:04.93.

The Northern quartet eclipsed the previous school record, 4:07.8, set in 1992 by Stephanie Rae, Bekki Spencer, Kelly Smith and Sarah Graham.

Liederbach, Touran and Penfold earned 10 All-State honors among them in their varsity careers.

Petoskey's Joe Beck, Brian Kenny, Dylan Fettig and Jared Goodrich teamed up to place seventh in the boys' 3200 relay in 8:10.49. Linden won in 8:02.41.

The Northern girls finished with 14 points to tie for 17th place. East Lansing won the state.

Track results

Charlevoix came away with a pair of medals at the Division III state track and field meet at Comstock Park High School.

Eric Buday placed fourth in the boys' 800 and Alyssa Smith was fifth in the girls' long jump.

Bestly finished in 1:44.86. Nick Radonoff of Benzie Central won in 1:44.86.

Smith's best jump was 16 feet, 1 1/2 inches. Rachel Hoffman of Shelby won at 17-3 1/4.

Albion won the boys' meet with 61.5 points, while Allendale and Kent City tied for second with 43. Frankenmuth won the girls' meet with 68 points, while Benzie Central, 48, was runner-up.

title with 36 points, while DeWitt was second with 34. Hamilton won the boys' title with 61 points, while Williamston was second with 36.

Division III
Charlevoix's Eric Buday placed fourth in the boys' 800 and Alyssa Smith placed fifth in the girls' long jump at Comstock Park.

Buday finished in 1:57.30. Nick Radonoff of Benzie Central won in 1:44.86.

Smith's best jump was 16 feet, 1 1/2 inches. Rachel Hoffman of Shelby won at 17-3 1/4.

Albion won the boys' meet with 61.5 points, while Allendale and Kent City tied for second with 43. Frankenmuth won the girls' meet with 68 points, while Benzie Central, 48, was runner-up.

Division IV
Inland Lakes had three medalists in the girls' meet at Forest Hills Eastern, while Harbor Springs claimed two medals and Pellston had one.

Harbor's Caitlin Reeves was a double medalist as she came oh-so-close to winning the 800, but settled for second behind Ana Capotosto of Saugatuck. Capotosto finished in 2:20.60, while Reeves came in at 2:20.62.

"(Reeves) led the entire time but just got nipped at the tape," Harbor coach Emily Kloss said. "She's a state runner-up. She can't be too disappointed. She ended her high school career on a pretty positive note, especially (considering that) she didn't finish out her freshman or sophomore track seasons because of injuries."

Reeves also ran a leg on Harbor's 3200 relay team that finished fourth in 9:55.28. Maddie Buntin, Katie Hoffman and Alivia Murphy joined Reeves in the relay. Fowler won the event in 9:44.80.

The Rams' time was an 18-second PR and the third fastest time ever run by a Harbor 3200 squad, and the fourth place finish matched the best state finish ever for a Harbor team in the relay.

"They ran well," Kloss said. "You get to that level of competition and you rise to the occasion. We're pleased with that."

Pellston's Taylor Friend turned in an excellent performance in placing second in the high jump at 5-4, breaking the school record. Sarah MacCourtney of Rochester Hills Lutheran North won at 5-6.

For Inland Lakes, Brianna Ohlert placed fifth in the pole vault at a school-record 10 feet; Megan Bruniquel was sixth in the 100 hurdles, 16.53; and Becky Rotter was eighth in the 200, 28.72.

Kristie Wieber of Pewamo-Westphalia won the pole vault with a Division IV record 11-3; Luz Sherzer of Battle Creek St. Philip won the 100 hurdles in 15.14, also a Division IV record, and Lindsey Hufnagel of Fowler won the 200 in 26.14.

The Harbor girls finished with 13 points for 21st place, while Pellston and Inland Lakes finished with 8 points each. Potterville won the team title with 51 points, while Fowler was second with 43.

Harbor's Tecumseh Adams placed second in the boys' 1600 in 4:20.68, while Ellsworth's Ashton Fisher was fifth in 4:25.97. Fisher also placed seventh in the 3200 in 9:58.15.

Christian Birky of Saugatuck won the 3200 in 9:32.24, while Larry Julson of Potterville won the 1600 in a Division IV record 4:19.94.

Adams led the 1600 for all but the final half lap of the four-lap race, but was overtaken by Julson in the final 200 meters. It was just the second race Adams has failed to win this season. The other came in an 800, to Charlevoix's Eric Buday, in a Lake Michigan Conference meet.

Adams came down with strep throat and missed five days of training leading in to the meet, Kloss said. He led the 3200 for five laps on Saturday, then pulled up with a leg injury and finished out of the medals.

"He hasn't missed five days in the last how many months," Kloss said. "The kid that beat him is good, very good. I would have loved to have seen Tec on his game and race that kid. It would have been an awesome race."

"He was hard on himself. He had an amazing, stellar season, pretty much perfect. Sometimes you get sick and the timing isn't perfect. Injuries and illness, there's nothing you can do about it. Not the way that he wanted to end his career, but you've got to look back and say he had an amazing career."

Harbor's Kyle Nowels placed eighth in the 110 hurdles in 15.58. Cory Noeker of Pewamo-Westphalia won in 14.35, a Division IV record.

Potterville won the boys' title with 64 points, while Pewamo-Westphalia was second with 37. The Rams finished with 9 points, good for 25th. Ellsworth finished with 6 points.

"We had higher expectations," Kloss said. "We had a good team ... and we won both (girls' and boys') regionals and both conference championships, and it was a good, easy group to work with. You want it to end on a positive note. We've got two state runners-up and I don't think we've ever done that."

"We didn't accomplish what we wanted to (at the state meet), but overall it was a great season."

COURTESY PHOTO

On Monday, May 18 the four winners of the Charlevoix Lions Club's annual youth college scholarships along with the two winners of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf League's college-book scholarships were the honored guests of the club at the noon luncheon meeting at the Weathervane. Each of the six honorees gave short presentations of their future plans. Along with Lions President Ron Moore, Charlevoix School District Superintendent Chet Jenik and CHS Principal, Suzanne Klinger (left) are the six college-bound Charlevoix High School senior winners of the Charlevoix Lions Club annual awards. Winners of the Stewart "Irish" E. Coleman Scholarships are Tamara Potter and Brock Yenglin; The two Don Meggison Community Service Awards Marlie Greene and Michael Heckendorn; The Lions Junior Golf Book Scholarship, Tanner Fisher. Included is T. Robert Rundbald, the second matching golf award winner provided by the Junior Golf League, and Lion Bob Heath representing the Charlevoix County Junior Golf League.

Competition can get messy.

Yet what matters is who's in the lead. The fact is, more adults have read the newspaper on an average weekday, than watched the Super Bowl or World Series."

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS

This firm is a debt collector attempting to collect a debt any information we obtain will be used for that purpose.

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a mortgage made August 6, 2006, by Benjamin A. Hamel, a single man, as mortgagor, to First Community Bank, as mortgagee, and recorded on August 22, 2006, at Liber 762, Page 846, Charlevoix County Records. This mortgage has been modified by modifications of mortgage dated May 8, 2007, and recorded on May 25, 2007, at Liber 804, Page 608, and dated February 20, 2009, and recorded March 4, 2009, at Liber 878, Page 734, both Charlevoix County Records. The latest modification also added the dower interest of Tamara Jane Hamel to the lien of the subject mortgage. The entire balance secured by said mortgage having become fully due and payable by reason of the acceleration provisions contained in said mortgage and the promissory note secured thereby; and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice $294,936.45, and no legal or equitable proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by the mortgage; and the power of sale contained in the mortgage having become operative by reason of the default.

Notice is now given that on Friday, June 19, 2009, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., in the main lobby of the Charlevoix County Building, 301 State Street, in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, the premises described in the mortgage, situated in Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows:

UNIT 4, SUMMERHILL, A CONDOMINIUM APARTMENT TO THE MASTER DEED RECORDED IN LIBER 405, PAGES 371 THROUGH 439, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY RECORDS AND DESIGNATED AS CHARLEVOIX COUNTY CONDOMINIUM PLAN NO. 116, TOGETHER WITH RIGHTS IN GENERAL COMMON ELEMENTS AND LIMITED COMMON ELEMENTS AS SET FORTH IN THE ABOVE MASTER DEED AND AS DESCRIBED IN ACT 59 OF PUBLIC ACTS OF 1978 AS AMENDED, 15 007 570 004 00.

This sale is for the purpose of satisfying the amount due and unpaid on the mortgage, with interest at the rate of 5.25% per year, together with the legal costs and charges of sale, including the attorney fees allowed by law and in the mortgage, and any sums that may be paid by the mortgagee subsequent to the date of this notice to protect its interests in the premises.

The length of the redemption period will be six (6) months from the date of sale unless the property is determined to be abandoned in accordance with Michigan Compiled Law 600.3241a. If determined to be abandoned pursuant to this law, the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of sale or 15 days from the date the required notice of abandonment is posted and mailed, whichever is later.

Trout tourney bigger than ever

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Gas up the boat, grab your pole and get registered now for the city's annual fishing extravaganza.

This year's Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament boasts a newly added walleye division, thousands of dollars in cash and prizes and a kiddie fish-off in East Park's deluxe trout stream.

"We're thrilled to have the trout tournament back in downtown East Park this year," said Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Executive Director Keith Carey. "Due to park construction the last two years the tournament was down at Ferry Beach, which was a good alternative, but I know they really wanted to bring the activity and action back downtown."

Registration for the event is noon to 8 p.m. June 10 and 11 in East Park.

The tournament will run June 12, 13 and 14. Cost to register is $30 for adults, $10 for children ages 6 to 14 and no charge for kids 5 years old and younger, but they still need to register.

Paid registrants will get a trout tournament T-shirt and will be entered into the grand prize drawing.

This year there will be five divisions: Brown trout, lake trout, steelhead, salmon and walleye.

The prizes for steelhead, lake trout and salmon are:

- First place - trophy and $1,000
- Second place - $500
- Third place - $300
- Fourth place - $200
- Fifth place - $100
- Sixth through 10th - $50
- 11th through 20th - $30

The prizes for brown trout and walleye are:

- First place - trophy and $750
- Second place - $375
- Third place - $250
- Fourth place - $125
- Fifth place - $75

Bonus prizes of a special trophy will be awarded for the biggest fish caught on a Michigan Stinger Spoon in the tournament. And, those with the biggest lake trout, salmon, brown trout and steelhead will have their catch mounted by Jeff Lutz's Lasting Memories Taxidermy.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel is also excited the event is coming back to the downtown area.

"We're looking forward to an influx of boaters in the community and highlighting the trout stream with a little fishing tournament for youngsters on Saturday," he said.

Actual fishing in the tournament will begin 5 a.m., June 12 and ends at noon, June 14.

A mandatory meeting of team captains is at 8 p.m., June 11 in the Odmark Pavilion in East Park. Call (231) 330-0867 if you are unable to attend or need more information.

National comedian tops St. Mary fundraiser

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

You may have attended St. Mary School's Northern Lights celebration in the past, but you haven't seen anything like what's on tap this year.

In addition to moving the event from the school's gymnasium to Castle Farms, this year's Northern Lights is featuring nationally renowned comedian Chris Linn.

"We've kicked it up a notch," said St. Mary School Principal Keisha Verseyer.

In addition to the catered beef and salmon dinner, an open bar and live and silent auctions, this year's event will include raffles for men's, women's and kids' packages.

"The women's is a spa get away at Bay Harbor for four ladies. The men's package is fly fishing and golf and the kids' package is a $250 gift card to Boyne USA to be used at Avalanche Bay," Verseyer said. "But, of course, the card can also be used anywhere at Boyne USA."

Dinner/comedy show tickets are $75 per person.

Raffle tickets are $20 for the men's or women's package, and $10 for the kids' package.

Since nearly 20 percent of the school's funding comes from fundraisers like Northern Lights, committee member and parent of four St. Mary students Roger Nesburg said events like this are critical.

"I believe supporting the school is mainly a parent and

Library filters Internet to protect children

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The Charlevoix library has taken measures to prevent children from viewing what it calls "offensive items" online.

The library already had a policy prohibiting viewing of violent and pornographic material, but the federal government's Children's Internet Protection Act of 2000 mandates that libraries hoping for certain grant monies filter their Internet.

"I think (Internet protection act) is one more step that the government is kind of putting their arms around what we do and what we say, and I think we need to be very careful when the government starts telling us what we can and cannot read and can and cannot view," said Charlevoix Public Library Executive Director Valerie Meyerson. "It's a very sticky situation with lots of gray area because we're a public entity responsible for protecting the rights of everybody ... but also protecting children from harmful content."

She added, "So, the board decided this was a positive direction to take to help our patrons and protect the rights of their children."

Previously the library monitored content by having library workers physically watch over patrons using computers.

But, Meyerson said, it was becoming increasingly difficult to monitor all computer users due to the increase in the number of computers and users.

The machine doing the filtering is an external computer system called a Barracuda. It cost $1,200 and will allow library officials to filter specific sites and keywords which could bring up the undesired material.

"Public libraries really stand for freedom of information and the right to read," Meyerson said, adding that an 18-year-old, or older, patron can request to have the filter turned off during their time of use.

"Now that we are filtering the Internet we qualify for federal funding," Meyerson said. "We're going to receive about $3,500 for Internet services and an additional $3,500 for telephone upgrades."

"While the new system will likely eliminate the majority of potential issues, Meyerson said the library's policy on Internet usage remains.

"If someone violates our policy they are given a copy of the policy and asked to read and sign it so they understand what we expect," she said. "A second offense will get the person removed from the library and their privileges suspended for one month. After a third offense, the privileges are suspended (indefinitely) and can only be reinstated by the library board."

Meyerson said her staff has had to ask a few patrons over the years to leave for violating the policy.

"Nothing excessive," she said. "But we have had some issues in the past so that we had to put the policy in place."

Meyerson added, "This new program will keep it so there's less accidental viewing that might offend or upset parents and help protect kids."

OPINIONS yours & ours

Hospice is care, not curse

BY JEFFRAY N. KESSLER
GUEST COLUMNIST

Listening to Jim and Gloria Meredith talk reveals their passionate belief that Hospice has a branding problem, and they are out to do what they can to change it.

Jim has bone cancer. He and his wife of 58 years are dealing with it.

While others might predict a panicked obsession on the inevitability of a ravaging disease, the Merediths are calmly focused on a message they want to share.

"Early on, I happened to mention to a nurse that I thought Hospice was a death curse," Jim said. "Well, she turned out to be a Hospice nurse, and it was just the wrong thing, but really the best thing, I could have said to her, because right then was when my eyes were opened."

The Merediths both admitted to more than one of the common misconceptions that label Hospice organizations and services.

Gloria said, "I knew they did home visits and fundraisers, but that's about it. Thinking about Hospice reminded me of that old book, 'The Scarlet Letter' in a way."

Jim added, "I remember when I was a kid, when someone died or was dying, there would be a black wreath on their door. That describes the image of Hospice I had."

According to Jim, Hospice is about the best, not worst, that life has to offer.

"Hospice, to me, has really been an extension of my life and an improvement to the quality of our lives."

Gloria listened to her husband, and thoughtfully added, "I'd have to say that denial is the other thing that keeps people from getting involved with Hospice early on. It's almost like a competition between denial and Hospice. If denial rules, it impacts the quality of life in bad ways. If Hospice rules, the quality of life is improved in so many ways."

It is not as if the Merediths have had a great deal of time to learn about the advantages of becoming involved with Hospice services.

Their situation has pretty much forced the issue, and they credit their children for what they now know and enjoy.

"It was our kids who spearheaded the move to Hospice after a suggestion from one of the doctors," Jim said. "If not for the kids and the response they got from the local Hospice, I don't know where we'd be today."

Gloria added, "We had so little knowledge of Hospice. We didn't even know that we would qualify, but there again is something that people should know. Once your doctor makes his diagnoses and approves the Hospice program, there is no qualifying.

It's not like food stamps."

Now Hospice care is in full swing for the Merediths. The fact that they became involved early has allowed Hospice to employ its full armada of people and services.

"This is when we can be our best," said Hospice of Northwest Michigan Administrator Margaret Lasater. "Too often, people wait until the very end, and there is very little we can do. It's frustrating for us to know what all could have been done over a period of several months rather than several days."

A nurse visits them two to three days a week. They have enjoyed the efforts of the Hospice social worker and another professional comes in to care for Jim's bathing and hygiene, while there have also been equipment deliveries and transportation assistance.

"It's just love. The whole secret of the equipment and services is the love and all

Foregiveness starts path to healing

In 1990 I left my safe and boring job at the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Washington to join the newly formed management team at a nuclear power plant in Arizona.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

The utility, which operated the world's largest nuclear generating station, had violated so many safety rules that the commission had shut it down and demanded the entire senior management level be replaced.

We clearly understood the urgency of restoring the reactors, which represented a $4.2 billion investment sitting idle in the desert, so we were committed to working together to put into place the management systems and procedures that would earn the trust of the federal regulators that held the key to restarting.

What we would soon learn was that trust was the big issue with more than just the feds. With every task we set our hand to we quickly learned that distrust throughout the organization was the single biggest obstacle to progress.

The operators distrusted the mechanics, who blamed the electricians. The quality inspectors didn't have much faith in either of them.

The contracts group was suspicious of the auditors and accountants, who disliked the purchasing group. The maintenance people didn't trust the engineer's guidance, and the engineers didn't believe the tradesmen would follow procedures.

Security naturally distrusted everybody, and the whole place despised human resources, which was always assumed to be conspiring to cut jobs or cut pay.

When we realized we were all but paralyzed, the senior management team gathered everyone from the foreman level up in a big conference room and began the process of trying to find some common ground on which to build. Within a few minutes we had a room full of grown men and women out of control, all of them shouting, pointing, and blaming.

In the midst of that chaos the new manager of design engineering walked up to the big white board and, without a word, wrote this equation:

Time + Integrity = Trust. Then he sat down.

Gradually the nucleus subsided, and people began to ponder what he'd written. When the room was finally silent, that manager stood and began a masterful process of getting people to see how lack of trust was killing us.

It was the beginning of a restoration process that eventually led to a successful restart.

I've never forgotten the impact of that discussion, and there is hardly a week goes by I don't write that formula on my white board for people who have come into the counseling office warning of fear of showing our hand. We make unfair assumptions about people, and sometimes we even throw the first punch, just to keep from getting hurt.

Rebuilding trust, however it is broken, has to follow the formula. It takes time. Sometimes lots of time. Nothing is restored overnight because the wounded one has to see integrity in action for some extended period to believe real heart-change has occurred in their betrayer.

While time is passing, the wounded one watches closely for the hallmarks of integrity in their betrayer: Sincerity, reliability, predictability, honor and respect.

Nothing about integrity can be contrived, and the schedule can't be forced, but at some point the wounded one has to take a small risk. If their betrayer responds with integrity they'll receive more chances to earn greater trust.

At the heart of that process is forgiveness, a distinctly Christian attribute.

When we choose forgiveness, we are most like God, who uses it as the basis for the salvation He offers. He expects us to extend it to one another just as He extends it to us. He expects us to give lots of second chances, just as He does.

God desires that we should be restored to one another, just as He longs for us to be restored to Him.

The way back begins with the formula. Try it with that special someone you don't trust.

Your American Cancer Society has been an active member of Charlevoix County for several years offering a number of patient and family services, cancer education and prevention opportunities and lifesaving research. We continue our mission in a large part thanks to the help of generous volunteers.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life is a community event in every sense of the word. It is a chance for the community to come together for one common cause.

Being a part of Relay For Life means we are fighting back against cancer. Being a Relay For Life team leader means making life better for cancer survivors, patients and their families.

With the challenges of our day-to-day demands, time has become a premium and many people are finding it more difficult to participate in regular community service.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life offers people a chance to participate in a unique event that takes place over one night but that helps cancer patients and caregivers year-round.

A short-time commitment has results that are far-reaching and long-lasting.

Plans are underway for the Relay For Life of Charlevoix County on Aug. 15 and 16. Now is the time for individ-

Who owns the water you drink?

BY JEFFREY DINE
EDITOR

Unless you have a well in your backyard, you pay for water whenever you get a bottle from the grocery store or turn on the tap to the municipal supply.

However, conservationist Dave Dempsey is adamant that water is not, nor can it become, a commodity.

"Can you imagine a day when the waters of Lake Michigan are bought and sold like a commodity on the New York Stock Exchange?" Dempsey wrote as a lead-in to his upcoming talk on the Great Lakes Compact of 2008 at 6:30 p.m., June 29 at Charlevoix Library.

The compact, an agreement among eight Great Lakes states, prevents water diversion and withdrawals, with few exceptions, from the Great Lakes.

Dempsey's major concern stems from the passage of the compact with an exception which allows containers of water up to 5.7 gallons to be withdrawn from the lakes in quantities of up to 200,000 gallons per day.

Among his decades of serving as an environmental advisor to leaders like Michigan Governor James Blanchard and an appointee of President Bill Clinton to the Great Lakes Fishery Commission, he has authored five books on conservation.

"Many Michiganders have been lulled into complacency by the ratification of the Great Lakes Compact last year," Dempsey said. "That was sold as a prohibition on new exports of Great Lakes water, but it could make things worse. It specifically exempts water removed from the Great Lakes watershed and packaged as a product — like bottled water — from the prohibition."

Dempsey added, "That's dangerous in a century when experts are saying 'water is the new oil.' Growing population and water scarcity are raising the risk that public waters will be privatized."

One local water expert who worked extensively to help pass the compact said it does far more good than harm.

"We are pleased with the compact," said Greta Thomas, policy director for the Tip of the Mitt Watershed. "I think the fears of water being treated as a commodity are well founded, but in the international arena water is considered a product in certain circumstances."

Thomas said the only way to have passed the compact was to make an allowance for water bottling companies to continue withdrawing and selling water from the Great Lakes.

"Because the U.S. is included in international trade agreements like NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) and the WTO (World Trade Organization), you cannot discriminate against a single industry when you're faced with international trade challenges," she said. "If we would have written the compact in a way that somehow discriminated against the bottled water industry ... it would have been subject to being invalid in federal court."

The use of water in products such as growing fruit and vegetables, making cherry jelly and baby food is not considered a diversion under the compact.

However, Thomas said, withdrawal of water by pipeline, boat, tanker truck, canal, aqueduct or other like means is prohibited.

Dempsey's talk will center on the history of the Great Lakes and include excerpts from two of his Great Lakes books.

Dempsey said the main issues facing the Great Lakes include the need for the Great Lakes to remain public bodies of water, stopping invasive species from invading the Great Lakes, reducing pollution and protecting fish and wildlife habitat.

Anyone interested in the Great Lakes is invited to this free event.

Holes in your screens got you menaced by mosquitos and vexed by vermin?

Michael Lutz of Ironton has just what you need.

"I worked with a local window company for a number of years and just decided to start this screen repair business," Lutz said.

"I can re-screen or if it's got a bad frame, I can make new frames."

Lutz mobile business serves residential and commercial interests from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

"I go right to the job site so it saves people time," Lutz said.

He added that, while he has seen similar businesses in Florida, he believes his business is unique to the Charlevoix area.

Lutz said prices vary by the project, but that an average house window re-screen could cost as little as $10 to $12.

Mobile Screen Repair is located at 3677 Washington St.

Unique training for island firemen

BY STEVE ZUCKER PETOSKEY-NEWS

It was a weekend of firsts on Beaver Island as its fire department wrapped up firefighter training school that was the state's first ever to use teleconferencing technology.

Jesse Silva, a captain with the Charlevoix Fire Department and the head of the county's firefighter training program, said many state officials were on hand for the firefighters practical examinations which took place on the island Saturday.

In addition to a written examination, before earning their certification, firefighters must also pass several tests to demonstrate proficiency in the firefighting skills they learned during the class.

But before they can take the test, the firefighters attended 348 hours of classes.

Silva said it took many months of discussions before state fire training authorities would agree to a pilot program that would allow the 19 firefighters on the island to take their classes along with their mainland brethren via a teleconferencing system.

Silva said although the program cost about $40,000 to conduct, it would have cost about $107,000 to train the same number of firefighters if they were required to travel to the mainland for all the classes.

And it's not just the classes that are a logistical problem — it's also the practical tests. The practical tests usually tie up a couple of fire engines for most of the day as the instructors put the class through their paces.

On the mainland this doesn't pose a public safety concern because fire apparatus and firefighters from neighboring departments can fill in should a call come in when the tests are going on.

That's not the case on an island, where there are no neighboring fire departments.

The organizers' answer to this dilemma? Create a second, temporary fire department on the island to respond, should any calls come in while testing is taking place.

To that end two engines (one from Charlevoix and one from Boyne Valley Township) were hauled to the island Friday aboard a Beaver Island Boat Company ferry along with about 22 firefighters from departments all over Northern Michigan to staff them.

Silva said the ad-hoc fire department was on stand-by on the island from about 11 a.m. Friday until about 3 p.m. Saturday.

He said the only response the stand-by crew had during that time was a minor hand injury to one of their own.

Silva said he was very pleased with how well all of the weekend's events unfolded.

He said all 19 students passed their practical exams with flying colors and although they will have to wait several days until their written exams are scored, he's confident most or all will pass that test as well.

He said state officials who observed the weekend's activities seemed pleased with the results of the pilot program and are expected to recommend continuing the program.

Nine of the students are new to the island's fire department, which now numbers 20 firefighters.

Silva said the training is the first to take place on the island since 1994.

Silva said his favorite part of the weekend was a gathering on Friday evening where the firefighters presented chief Tim McDonough with a white chief's helmet for his efforts in bringing the training to the island.

He said there were few dry eyes in the room as McDonough received the helmet.

From the Director's Desk

Dear Friends,

While many businesses gear up for the busy summer season, others continue business as usual. Our businesses as we know them will change and alter to rise to the challenges in a new economy. We must do the same for ourselves as well. Are you up to date on your professional development? Have you created a new partnership with another business? Are you networking?

Your Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce exists to strengthen both our commerce and our community. We provide and participate in many venues to assist you and your business. Attend a Business After Hours, a Biz Breakfast, or join a committee. We can help organize business counseling, or locate a service you need. We've got something for everyone. What can we do to help you?

Charlevoix Farmers Market

Coming soon is the Charlevoix Farmers Market! It will be held every Thursday in downtown East Park from 9am to 1pm. Buy the best and freshest baked goods, fruits, vegetables, flowers, cheese, and much more. Meet friends and neighbors, take home a new recipe, and enjoy yourself on market day. Opening day for the season is scheduled for Thursday, June 25th. We hope to see you there!

Chamber Announces New Legislative Director

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will have a new Director of Government Relations starting Monday. Doug DeYoung will serve the chambers of the Northwest Michigan Regional Chamber Alliance which include: Petoskey, Traverse City, Cadillac, Charlevoix, Gaylord, and Benzie County. DeYoung will serve members of the Charlevoix Chamber with legislative issues and concerns, as well as spearhead advocacy issues that impact the region. Jamie Callahan had previously worked in this capacity. DeYoung most recently served as News Director at WPNB TV 7 & 4.

The Talk of the Town AND Region!

Last month, the place to be on May 14th was Business After Hours sponsored by the Northern Michigan Review & Charlevoix Courier at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Attendees enjoyed an evening of hors d'oeuvres catered by Sadie & Jake's and the company of their colleagues.

If you are still talking about May's Business After Hours, you certainly won't want to miss the June event! On June 18th, the Regional Business After Hours will be hosted at Castle Farms. This means that businesses from Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, and Petoskey Chambers will also be present. It is $5 for Chamber members and $10 for general admission.

It is an excellent opportunity to meet and greet colleagues from the surrounding areas and also to promote your business to region. Sponsorship opportunities are available. If interested, contact the Charlevoix Chamber at 547.2101.

Oh deer

This deer must have heard about Charlevoix Area Hospital's great obstetrics program because it decided to give birth on hospital property over the last weekend. The doe settled in the grass outside of the obstetric department's room-four at dawn on Saturday, June 6. The nurses on duty could not help but gather and watch the amazing site. The mother doe went to the woods on the outer perimeter of the hospital property to deliver her fawn. The morning shift reported seeing mom and baby venturing near the beach later in the day.

Opening NEW East Park!

Saturday Morning, June 20th NEW East Park opens!

For several years, environmental work has been underway at Resort Township's East Park to address problems left from the old cement plant that used to operate along the Lake Michigan shore.

Now, the work is done and one of America's most beautiful public parks will open.

See the park. Join the fun. Come celebrate this great community achievement.

Free shuttle service will be provided from overflow parking areas at the Bay Harbor Resort. Or, bring your bike and ride the trail from Bay Harbor to the NEW East Park.

Sign up to get more information about the work done at East Park and throughout the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project. Visit: protectingourbay.com

SPORTS reviewing the action

Taking a Mulligan: Prep golfers take advantage of a second chance

Day two proved to be a whole lot better.

But in the two-day, 36-hole state high school golf finals, every stroke counts.

Petoskey's Joey Garber shot a second-round 74 Saturday after posting a 78 on Friday to finish in a tie for sixth place in the Division II state tournament on the Meadows on the campus of Grand Valley State University.

Charlevoix's Ty Jones shot the low round of the day, a 73, on Saturday in the Division III tournament at Eagle Crest on the campus of Eastern Michigan University to finish in a tie for eighth place.

Harbor Springs did likewise in the Division IV tournament at Forest Aikens East on the campus of Michigan State University. After shooting a 324 in Friday's first round, the Rams improved by 16 strokes to post a 308 and finish in sixth place, their best finish in the state tournament in decades.

Duke Dyksterhouse, one of four seniors in Harbor's five-man lineup, led the charge, shooting 71 on Saturday as four of the five Rams improved their scores from day one.

"This year were were 72 shots better in the state finals than we were last year," Harbor coach Brian O'Neill said. "The kids earned it. They worked their tails off from the start of the year in March we said we're going to work harder than any team in our area and they did. The kids should be proud."

Division II

Garber's 74 on Saturday gave him a 152 two-day total, tying him for sixth place with Derek Smith of Riverview, Ben Kuiper of Grand Rapids Christian and Matt Sheperd of Pontiac Notre Dame Prep.

Garber's 78 in Friday's first round was his high round of the season.

"When it's all said and done, he's still averaging under par even with a 78 thrown in there," Petoskey coach Chad Loe said. "He was extremely hard on himself. As a golfer you expect the best every time that you walk onto a golf course and sometimes some outside force, be it the weather or the course setup or whatever ... you don't have your best performance and you are disappointed, but it doesn't take away from the fact that we were at the state finals."

Alex Zanette of Orchard Lake St. Mary's defeated Jon Walraven of Flint Kearsley on the fifth hole of a playoff to capture medalist honors. Both finished with a 147 total.

Notre Dame Prep shot 316-318 — 634 to win the team title, while Haslet, 324-313 — 637 placed second. East Lansing, 327-314 — 641, was third. The Northernmen shot 344-335 — 679 to place 14th in the 15-team field.

Petoskey, like Harbor Springs, posted better scores — almost to a player — on the second day than on the first. For the Northernmen, Jamie Braddock shot 88-83 — 171; Ian Haven finished 83-91 — 174; Hunter Pulaski carded 95-90 — 185; and Tyler Goodwin shot 100-88 — 188.

"I think the guys, including Joey, were a little disappointed, but we did make it to the state finals and we're still one of the top teams in the state," Loe said. "It's nothing to shake your head at. Immediately (after Friday's round) we went to the range. We were one of only two teams at the range and we were there the longest and that was because the guys had expectations of how they should have played. That, to me, was a bright spot after day one; the guys wanted to go to the range to chip and putt and work on their game. Joey led the charge in that. He's a great leader by example and maturity."

Division III

Charlevoix's Jones, a junior, bounced back from an opening-round 85 to catapult himself to a top-10 finish. He made six birdies in his Saturday round.

Jacob Rykse of Kalamazoo Christian captured medalist honors when he defeated Taylor Desfontains of Grayling in a playoff. Both shot 76-77 — 153 to finish tied for the top spot.

Jones tied for eighth with Tony Fanola of Monroe St. Mary Catholic Central and Patrick Scheffers of Kalamazoo Christian. Each finished at 158. Jackson Lumen Christi won the team title by shooting 314-320 — 634, while defending champion Big Rapids was second at 321-321 — 642. Kalamazoo Christian, 316-326 — 642, placed third.

The Rayders finished 355-344 — 699 to place 12th in the 15-team field.

Also for Charlevoix, Wyatt Drost shot 85-88 — 173; Gunnar Whitley shot 92-88 — 180; Ryan Wimmer shot 93-96 — 189; and Thomas Ruch shot 95-95 — 190.

All five players will return next season.

"We just got off to a horrible start," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "It was not a great way to finish the season, but the guys have a lot to be proud of. They said they can't wait till next year."

"I really believe, as a coach, you have to go through these experiences. With this under their belts, it's such a valuable experience for them. I really look forward to what we can accomplish next year and in the next couple years."

Division IV

Harbor Springs made an almost unbelievable second-day change, improving by 16 strokes to finish in sixth place. The Rams were one of just two teams in the 15-school Division IV field to shoot a better score, 308, on the second day of the tournament than they did on the first, 324.

"It was amazing," O'Neill said. "I think the first day it was nerves and things. They were confident and comfortable going in, but you've still got to pull the trigger and do it."

"The second day, they were comfortable, had nothing to lose, and we talked with the four seniors that are on the team, we said 'Go out, have fun, and finish strong' which has been our motto all year."

"The guys went out and put up a number that far exceeded what (assistant coach) Joe Breighner and I thought they could do."

Kalamazoo Hackett posted a remarkable 286 in Friday's opening round, counting a 68, a 70, a 72 and a 76. The Fighting Irish led by 13 shots over second-place Traverse City St. Francis, the defending state champion.

"As far as I know that's the lowest single day team score that I can remember," O'Neill said. Hackett posted a 301 on Saturday to finish at 587 and easily win the tournament. White Pigeon, 302-304 — 606, was second, while the Gladiators finished 299-312 — 611 to place third. Harbor finished at 632.

"We didn't get a chance to see Kalamazoo Hackett at all during the season," O'Neill said. "When they came out and threw a 286 up the first day, it was kind of a blow to the system, really. We went down there thinking we had a chance to win and our focus was on St. Francis."

"We just had to try to fight our way up (on Saturday) and climb up the ladder. We called it moving day and the boys moved in a positive direction. It was a very fun atmosphere from start to finish."

Dyksterhouse finished 79-71 — 150, just two shots out of a top-10 finish, while Tyler Parkin shot 78-75 — 153; Peter Breighner shot 82-77 — 159; Alex Green finished 85-86 — 171; and Peter Wendland shot 95-85 — 180.

"The experience part of it is what makes the big difference in the end," said O'Neill, who added he was thrilled with his team's sixth-place finish after it was tied for eighth after Friday's opening round. "Kalamazoo Hackett shot 301 on the second day and we were at 308 and could have easily been in the 200s. Finishing sixth just proves the point — experience was the difference." Inland Lakes junior Brandon Vizina, who qualified as an individual, shot 77-80 — 157. Chase Olsen of White Pigeon defeated Sheldon Keyte of Hackett in a playoff to capture medalist honors. Olsen shot 72-68 — 140, while Keyte shot 68-72 — 140.

Really big fish

Opening day for bass season on Lake Charlevoix was an exciting one for Brian Peters and his 5-year-old son Matthew. They caught both the largest Northern Pike and the largest smallmouth bass they have ever caught. They released each fish back into the lake after admiring them.

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will host "The Hampton Family in Northern Michigan" at 7 p.m. Monday, June 22, at the Charlevoix Public Library's Community Room. Guest speaker will be Mary Beth Soeliner, great granddaughter of Dr. Carlos D. Hampton, first mayor of Harbor Springs, and granddaughter of Will E. Hampton, Editor and owner of The Charlevoix Courier. Will E. Hampton appears in the photograph (back row, right) with his parents, Carlos and Cornelia Hampton, and his older brother, Charles. Mary Beth's grandfather was also Mayor of Charlevoix in 1907, a bicycle racing enthusiast, and wrote the letter that led to the building of the first Carnegie Library in northern Michigan in Charlevoix. She will share documents, pictures, and a variety of memorabilia - some of which was brought by her great grandmother by lumber wagon in war-torn 1865 from Texas to Michigan. The program is free and open to the public. The CCHPS Annual Meeting will follow the program. For more information, visit www.cchps.info or call 582-6326.

St. Mary supporter Amy Plachner is seen here purchasing her chocolate bar for the chocolate raffle during last year's Northern Lights celebration. This year the chocolate raffle has been replaced with raffles for a men's package, a women's package and a children's package offering fishing and golf, a day at the spa and $250 toward the water park at Boyne USA, respectively.

family commitment, but we do ask for the public's help," he said. "Fundraising is just one of those things we must do in education today."

Aside from the great food and fun of socializing with friends, family and community members who simply enjoy supporting the school, Nesbitt also enjoys the school's year in review segment of the evening.

"Parents know their kids are in school, but to see the face in the classroom, to see the face in the recreation area, to see the face doing the daily routine on this Power Point presentation really brings it to life," he said.

St. Mary School teaches pre-kindergarten through sixth grades and had 100 students this past school year.

The Northern Lights event is 6 p.m., June 26 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Support the event that supports Hospice

The annual Hospice of Northwest Michigan Benefit Auction will be 5:30 p.m. on Friday June 19 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

The event features a large variety of hor d'oeuvres, door prizes, beverages, entertainment, a cash bar and silent and verbal auctions—all included in your $40 ticket.

Among the auction items available are: a Mackinaw Bridge tower climb pass for two, hand-crafted items such as table runners and quilts, restaurant and specialty foods, gift certificates, sailing tour, lodging, a kayak, lawn and garden items, paintings by noted artists, hand-crafted furniture and lighting fixtures, and much more.

All proceeds from the auction benefit Hospice of Northwest Michigan, your local Hospice Program that assists patients and their families in times of serious illnesses.

A focus of the Hospice Program is enabling patients to remain in the home during times of serious illness with the help of more than 40 trained, supervised community volunteers working in Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet and Osego Counties.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE
THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE - Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Amy Rebecca Segaves and Larry James Henig, husband and wife as joint tenants, to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc., as nominee for lender and lender's successors and/or assigns. Mortgage, dated December 5, 2006 and recorded December 13, 2006 in Liber 777, Page 589, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. Said mortgage is now held by US Bank National Association, as Trustee for Structured Asset Securities Corporation Trust 2007-EQ1 by assignment. There is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of One Hundred Seventy-Three Thousand Five Hundred Seventy-Nine and 85/100 Dollars ($173,579.85) including interest at 8.25% per annum.

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public venue at the main lobby of Charlevoix County Courthouse in Charlevoix County, Michigan at 11:00 a.m. on JULY 10, 2009.

Said premises are located in the City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Lots 39 and 40, Bailey and Wilson's Addition to the Village of Boyne, City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan as recorded in Liber 1, Page 78, Charlevoix County Records. The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

TO ALL PURCHASERS: The foreclosing mortgage can rescind the sale. In that event, your damages, if any, are limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

Crabcakes, bourguignon and focaccia, oh my.

Not only does the 6th Annual Taste of Charlevoix boast more participating food and beverage vendors than ever, but so, too, have organizers expanded the entertainment line-up.

"We have fudge, soups, a pasta station, ribs, wine beer and everything in between," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Erin Bemis. "This is a great family-oriented activity with live entertainment, all different foods and drinks and many kids' activities and all with the best view in downtown."

This year's event, scheduled from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on June 20 in East Park, also features two premium musical acts: the North Country Strings Band and Yankee Station.

Children's activities include jump houses, face painting, crafts, a dunk tank, a duck pond, balloons and a Camp Daggett activity course.

There is a flat $2 fee for unlimited use of the children's activities.

Tickets to the event are $1 each, with each vendor charging anywhere between one and five tickets.

The Metzgers took over from John and Debbie Rohe, who inherited the event when John Hartwell died.

While the book "Michigan Curiosities" attributes the creation of the parade to Bill Ohle in the late 1970s, John Hartwell was mentioned by both Metzger and Horton Bay General Store owner Chip Lorenger as the force behind the parade.

Metzger cited her husband's health as the primary reason they will no longer be

Opening NEW East Park!

Saturday Morning, June 20th

NEW East Park opens!

For several years, environmental work has been underway at Resort Township's East Park to address problems left from the old cement plant that used to operate along the Lake Michigan shore.

Now, the work is done and one of America's most beautiful public parks will open.

See the park. Join the fun. Come celebrate this great community achievement.

Free shuttle service will be provided from overflow parking areas at the Bay Harbor Resort. Or, bring your bike and ride the trail from Bay Harbor to the NEW East Park.

Sign up to get more information about the work done at East Park and throughout the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project. Visit: protectingourbay.com

Judge recused from whistleblower suit

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Judge Richard M. Pajtas of Charlevoix's 33rd Circuit Court recused himself from the Jim Easley whistleblower case against Charlevoix County after being petitioned by the defendants.

According to court records, Pajtas' reason for granting the motion to recuse himself was because, "The court is familiar with the parties and witnesses."

"As an employee of the Charlevoix County Circuit Court, Judge Pajtas is required to seek approval for budgetary appropriations and salary increase for himself and his staff from the board of commissioners, including defendant (Chris Christensen, District Two commissioner)," the defendants stated in their motion. "In 2007 and 2008, spending freezes were imposed by the board of commissioners and budget cuts and spending freezes may be implemented this year."

They further stated,

"If a spending freeze is implemented this year, Judge Pajtas will be required to appear before the board for itemized approval of any non-operating expenses."

The defendants Charlevoix County and Christensen then cited in their motion four cases against the county where Pajtas recused himself in the past.

They also cited a law which states that judges with more than a minimal interest which could be affected by the proceeding should be disqualified from hearing the case.

"If this court continues to preside over this case, there is more than a (minimal) interest that could be substantially affected by the proceeding."

Easley was fired by a 4-2 vote of commissioners back in February for lack of performance.

Easley's whistleblower case hinges on his claim that he was fired for reporting a fellow employee, who he claims is friends with Christensen, for improperly installing a light switch at the county building.

Easley's legal representation Mary Beth Kur did not return calls by press time.

Christensen declined to comment on the judge's decision citing the ongoing legal battle.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Time for a phragmites redux

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I met last week with Sue Costa—a very appropriate name for someone concerned with shorelines—from that association to discuss the phragmites problem.

We are mostly in agree ment

Among other things we agreed that words are important.

And, like the philosophers say, "First we must define our terms."

To describe a plant as invasive does not mean that it is invading from some other place, only that it is a vigorous competitor, and is capable of crowding out some other vegetation.

In botanical terms "alien" and "exotic" mean essentially the same thing.

But, note how different people respond to those words.

"Alien" has almost exclusively negative connotations.

"Exotic" sounds much more positive.

Both words, when applied to organisms, mean that the plant, animal or person is from another country, or at least some place that is not here.

Some of us would correctly describe objects, people or plants from Michigan's Upper Peninsula as exotic, but few would call them aliens.

About whether the phragmites growing along our shores is alien or not, we concluded that it doesn't make much difference.

The plant is troublesome to property owners wherever it comes from.

If stopping the invasive spread of phragmites is described as control, that's fine.

But, if the goal is eradication, that is not only undesirable, it is impossible.

Eradication means literally to pull something out by the roots, and to eliminate it completely.

Control, on the other hand means, keeping a plant where we would like to have it.

Just as we might control the dandelions in our lawn without expecting their eradication, we can control phragmites.

The Lake Charlevoix Association is developing careful plans for the control of Phragmites on private property.

I applaud their care and concern

If you have concerns about the care of Lake Charlevoix, you might consider joining the Lake Charlevoix Association.

Write to P.O. Box 294, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or email them at www.lakecharlevoix.org.

Meeting and talking about a problem is a great way to come to understanding.

Politicians should pay attention.

Second, in a current case in court, we heard many statements of oversight by the prosecution.

They did not present information in a timely way to the defense as is required by law.

Oversight.

Can we ordinary citizens use this as an excuse to ignore the law?

Destruction of public property is inexcusable.

Out-of-pocket cost to the school system was less than $300.

Destruction of our faith in the judicial system is enormous and not so easily replaced.

Barb and Tim Clagett Charlevoix

My last reason is that you'll have more practice. A lot of skaters, bikers or bladers forget how to do tricks over the winter.

An indoor skatepark would allow skaters, bikers, or bladers to bike, skate or blade all year and not forget tricks. If you're skating, biking or blading all year, you'll have more time to get better at the sport. And the better you get, the better you'll feel about yourself.

In all, I believe an indoor skatepark would benefit all skaters, bikers, or bladers of Charlevoix and help them stay more active year-round. Thank-you for your time.

Editor: Do you enjoy the Venetian Carnival each year?

I do, but I think a major change should be made. That is, that the town should consider moving the location to behind Harbor Industries.

First, there would be a whole lot more room. That means more room for rides, more room for games, and more room for fun.

It would also really make wristband day more worth it.

Obviously, I think the carnival would be a whole lot better if it was behind Harbor Industries.

No shortage of fun this weekend

EDITORIAL

With so much to do in the area this weekend you might be wondering just where you should go.

We say, go everywhere.

Start your weekend early with the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival which begins Wednesday, June 17 with a Rock Band video game tournament at 5 p.m. in the East Jordan Civic Center.

Then, at 5 p.m. on June 18 the carnival starts in downtown with rides and midway games.

From 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, June 19 there will be food and fun with 24 non-profit vendors selling food or hosting kids' games with Dave Cisco on the main stage singing and playing music.

We can't wait for the air-bent rides beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 20 launching from the tourist park and we love the bed race at 3:30 p.m. on Main Street. See the full story on page 11.

Also happening this weekend is the annual Taste of Charlevoix from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 20 along East Park with more than a dozen vendors offering everything from pasta and gourmet coffee to micro-brewed beer and Michigan wines.

History buffs won't want to miss the official Civil War style funeral services on Saturday June 20, for two long-deceased veterans of the American Civil War—one buried in Charlevoix, the other in East Jordan.

The Robert Finch Camp of sons of the Civil War will arrive dressed in Civil War uniforms and perform two services.

The first service is at 11 a.m. in East Jordan's Sunset Hill Cemetery. The second service will be at 2 p.m. the same day in Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery. The public is welcome to both events. See page 9 for the full story.

The fun doesn't stop there.

There is also a softball tournament in the ball fields off Carpenter Street all weekend.

And, those who wish to support one of the area's largest cancer testing fund raisers can attend the Pink Ribbon Ride which begins in Boyne City's Veterans Park. See page 7 for the whole story.

The aforementioned events don't even take into account the numerous beaches, fishing holes, boating areas, restaurants and more that the area has to offer.

All in all we'd say Charlevoix County is a veritable hotbed of family-friendly summertime activities.

So, get out there and enjoy as many of these events as you can—we know we will

Building head chosen

BENJAMIN GOHS EDITOR

Charlevoix County Commissioners unanimously appointed Nelson Fletcher as the head of the county's building and safety department on Wednesday, June 10.

The department has been overseen by interim supervisor and county electrical inspector Robert Hilton in the wake of firing former long-time department head Ken Doty in February.

"I think that Nelson will do a great job for the county," said District Two Commissioner and chairman of the board of commissioners Chris Christensen. "Robbie did a fantastic job, but Nelson seemed to be the best for the county and for the position."

Fletcher, who served several years in the military and nearly 13 years in human resources with Northern Michigan Hospital, has worked for the county building department for 10 years.

"I'm excited ... and looking forward to the challenge," he said. "I hope I can be of service to the county."

Fletcher has lived in the Charlevoix area since 1975.

He has no plans to make any drastic changes until he gets the "lay of the land."

"We'll just be focusing on the work we have," he said. "In the last month, the number of permits has increased dramatically from the previous months."

But, he added, "They're small and medium sized jobs like additions and renovations."

He said he has no plans to make any drastic changes until he gets the "lay of the land."

NO FAITH IN SYSTEM

Editor:

Do we have ignorance, in competence or lack of integrity?

We have had faith in the justice system during our whole lives.

How disappointing it is to lose that faith in our wonderful city of Charlevoix in the last 12 months.

Our officials, who have sworn to uphold the law, boldly preach defiance of the law.

My first reason is that Charlevoix would be more active in the winter.

There could be a kid that likes to skateboard, but doesn't like to snowboard. An indoor skatepark would stop him from being lazy all winter.

Also, an indoor skatepark would add wheel sports to the selection of activities that are available in Charlevoix.

You would be able to skate on rainy days, too.

My next reason is that you could get more exercise. By doing these new sports added to the winter sports, you could lose a lot of weight.

You could get fit, too. By pedaling, pushing, jumping, etc., you could build a lot of muscle.

My last reason is that you'll have more practice. A lot of skaters, bikers or bladers forget how to do tricks over the winter.

An indoor skatepark would allow skaters, bikers, or bladers to bike, skate or blade all year and not forget tricks. If you're skating, biking or blading all year, you'll have more time to get better at the sport. And the better you get, the better you'll feel about yourself.

In all, I believe an indoor skatepark would benefit all skaters, bikers, or bladers of Charlevoix and help them stay more active year-round. Thank-you for your time.

Are you tired of boiling in the hot sun at the Charlevoix skatepark, then waiting all winter for it to open again? Well, this might be your solution.

My second reason is that it would be still in town and close.

For instance, it would still be within walking distance.

It's close to a huge neighborhood so more people would want to come.

Furthermore, it's close to a bank and when some people get around banks ... well, I think we both know what can happen.

Third and lastly, it would be just all-around more convenient.

There would be less traffic downtown during the festival.

Also, since when downtown the carnival helps the businesses that are downtown, then they could open up stands at the carnival.

It would be easier also to get across the bridge since there would be less traffic because the carnival would be downtown.

Obviously, I think the carnival would be a whole lot better if it was behind Harbor Industries.

Chamber, DDA seek town docents

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

You may have heard of a museum docent but a town docent?

That's right, Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority and chamber of commerce are partnering on a plan to place people downtown to tell newcomers all about the petunia province.

"This is something that a lot of resort communities out west have put in place," said downtown development authority director Keith Carey. "The goal of the program is to make everybody feel welcome and appreciated in Charlevoix."

But, organizers of the fledgling Charlevoix Community Host Program need your help. "We are looking for anybody that likes to talk about Charlevoix," Carey said. "The pilot program we will do on a limited basis — eight initial dates that coincide with holidays or significant festivals oc-curing downtown."

While Carey said it would be nice to see folks with extensive knowledge join the program, no experience is necessary. All you need is a winning attitude and a love of Charlevoix. The authority and chamber will supply the training and the bright red T-shirt.

"We're just looking for friendly individuals who like to talk about Charlevoix," he said. "We'll provide an orientation session that the chamber will lead."

Carey added, "We don't expect folks to be a Charlevoix encyclopedia, but we would hope they won't hesitate to direct people to the chamber if they cannot answer a question."

Tentatively the program will offer two shifts per day: first shift from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; second shift from noon to 4 p.m. during events like the Summer Solstice Art Fair and the Venetian Festival.

A maximum of 16 volunteers will be needed unless volunteers offer to work more than one date during the summer season.

Volunteers will be situated downtown, but will be expected to advise patrons on attractions county-wide.

Carey said the program could be extended a few more days depending upon the number of willing volunteers. "I think its success will be determined by how well it is received by visitors and how many folks are willing to help," he said. "Really, it's just formalizing what a lot of folks who spend time in downtown Charlevoix do anyway — greeting individuals whether they know them and if somebody looks confused or looks like they're seeking something, to offer assistance."

Carey said potential volunteers shouldn't be afraid of missing any of their favorite events while participating in the program.

"There's nothing precluding people from going into the shops downtown and browse or enjoy a musical performance in East Park," he said. "Just being available and visible in the bright red shirt with the logo will send the message that we're willing to go that extra mile."

Those interested in a position may contact Carey at 547-3257 or e-mail him at kcarey@cityofcharlevoix.org.

Vander Heide 40th Anniversary

The friends of Sam and Julaine Vander Heide are announcing the celebration of the 40th Wedding Anniversary of the couple at 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on June 21 at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

Sam Vander Heide and Julaine Mansen were married on June 21, 1969 in the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church by the Rev. A. F. Mansen, the bride's father. Sam retired from Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant and Julaine is a retired nurse.

Their children's names are Brett Vander Heide of Lakeland, Fla., and Mike and Heidi Wilkinson, also of Lakeland. They have one grandchild, Owen.

The couple resides at 5095 Castleview Drive in Charlevoix.

Everyone is welcome to come to the Open House at the Church where cake and Ride continues for lost friend

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

For the love of a fallen friend, Sue Morris continues coordinating a fundraiser which helps fight cancer throughout the community.

Though in his seventh year as an annual event, the original organizer of the Charlevoix Emmet County Pink Ribbon Ride never lived to see the first one.

"She died six months before the first ride," Morris said of her friend Kathleen McDonald. "I said I'll do this one time for Kathy and be done, but I believe so much in the cause that right now it's seven years later and I'm still doing it."

The pink ribbon bike ride is part of a larger national effort to raise money for local breast cancer awareness programs and testing.

"A mammogram can cost anywhere from $160 to $200 ... and we were able to help 61 women get a mammogram last year," Morris said. "Twelve of these women needed further tests and four women needed follow-up biopsies and they had those paid—when you're going through this you don't need to worry about how you're going to pay for it."

So far, more than 100 people have signed up for the event, and there is still time to join the various bicycle rides.

Call (231) 536-7066 or e-mail penbryn@charter.net or register the day of the event at 7 a.m., June 20 in Veterans Park in Boyne City.

The rides begin at 7:30 and continue starts through 9 a.m. The cost to ride is $30.

Ride routes include a 42 and 55 mile route and 20 and seven-mile routes.

"There is a lot of national research and awareness, but not a whole lot to do with getting money back in the community," Morris said. "Our biggest goal is to provide mammograms and testing for women who can't afford it."

she added, "We will stick to that goal until they find a cure."

Morris hopes to meet and exceed last year's fundraising total of $28,000.

OBITUARIES

Winifred Mary Claire McDonough: Dec. 20, 1921 - June 8, 2009

Winifred Mary Claire (LaFreniere) McDonough died at her home on Beaver Island, MI on Monday, June 8, 2009.

McDonough

Winifred, "Wini," was born on Beaver Island on Dec. 20, 1921 to Nels and Sophia (Boyle) LaFreniere, the seventh of eight children. She graduated from Beaver Island School and on Sept. 2, 1939 married Lawrence McDonough, who survives. The couple raised their six children on the island and for a number of years ran several businesses before moving to Charlevoix. In 2005 they returned to Beaver Island as full-time residents.

Known for her warm and generous nature, Wini's hospitality was boundless. In the early days of tourism on Beaver Island, Lawrence (then the Captain of the ferry boat) would often bring visitors to their home for dinner, knowing that Wini delighted in meeting people and sharing one of her wonderful meals.

In later years, the couple, who were wed for nearly 70 years, was still noted for their hospitality and the many memories and stories concerning island history they were always happy to share.

Active in the community, Wini helped launch the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, was a member of Holy Cross Catholic Church on the island and St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix, and assisted in the organization of the original Health Clinic on the island.

Wini and Lawrence together operated the Pine Tree Dairy, and Wini operated an island laundromat and thrift shop, worked on countless fund raisers for various island projects, and still had time to host special teas for the island ladies.

She was extremely proud of her family and their accomplishments and had close relationships to her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Along with her parents, Wini was preceded in death by six of her siblings and their spouses: Eva (Lloyd) McDonough, Patrick (Elizabeth) LaFreniere, Archie (Frances) LaFreniere, Veron "Dick" (Jean) LaFreniere, Joseph "Bussy" (Alberta) LaFreniere, and Rita (James) Elms.

Along with her husband, she is survived by her children and their spouses: Gary (Jean) McDonough of North Fort Myers, Fla.; Larry (Kay) McDonough of Grand Rapids; Joe (Tarry) McDonough of Beaver Island; Kevin (Linda) McDonough of Beaver Island; Pam (Brad) Grassmick of Farmington Hills; and Kathy (Tim) Gonyeau of Washington Township, and one sister Helen (LaFreniere) Pike of Beaver Island.

Wini is survived by her grandchildren: Lori, Debbie, Eric, Keri, Dan, Michael, Christine, Shane, Erin, Colleen, Keith, Brian, Timmy, Noel, Marty, Bridget and six great-grandchildren.

On Friday, June 12, Wini was brought home to her final resting place on Beaver Island aboard the Emerald Isle, with her family in attendance.

Visitation on Friday followed at Holy Cross Church, with a rosary said at 7 p.m.

A funeral mass was held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 13 at Holy Cross Church, with Father Patrick Cawley officiating.

Interment was at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Preferred memorials in Wini's name may be made to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center, Holy Cross Altar Society or the Beaver Island Community School's 21st Century Scholarship fund.

What are the chances of having a great-great-grandfather involved in one of the most significant events in history? How about two?

Jane M. (Jackson) Prebble is the great-great granddaughter of George W. Hayner and Newton A. Balch, both of whom served in the American Civil War.

"George W. Hayner in East Jordan had a headstone, but after almost 100 years one could no longer read the inscription," Prebble said. "Newton A. Balch, buried in Brookside, never had a headstone so his grave site was unmarked for almost 100 years."

It took Prebble three years of doing research to get the records on her ancestors.

"Newton served throughout the whole Civil War and he was injured twice: at Chancellorsville and Deep Bottom (Run) Virginia," she said. "Hayner was injured shortly after he went into the Civil War at Harper's Ferry. He was a prisoner of war for about 24 hours, but he was paroled out because he was injured."

Prebble added, "He didn't see much of the Civil War."

Both grandfathers eventually moved to Charlevoix County. Balch went to Boyne Valley and Hayner ended up in East Jordan.

Balch died on March 25, 1915 and Hayner died on Aug. 12, 1911.

The Veterans Affairs Administration provided Prebble with two new headstones for her grandfathers last year.

To properly honor Balch and Hayner, the Robert Finch

Camp #14 out of Traverse City, also known as the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War will perform an authentic Civil War-era soldier's funeral for each.

"We do these to keep alive the memory of what made our country what it is," said Robert Finch Camp #14 secretary/treasurer Neal F. Breugh. "We don't want these soldiers to be forgotten."

The Robert Finch Camp #14 members will arrive in full Civil War-era uniforms with the corresponding flags and accouterments of the day and perform the service at both cemeteries.

"This ceremony is very, very similar, practically adopted from the actual ceremony used by the Grand Army of the Republic (Union) ... during the Civil War," Breugh said. "We will present a knapsack, a canteen and a musket and some symbolic tokens."

The ceremony will feature a camp commander, chaplain, soldiers presenting an evergreen wreath to symbolize love of comrades, a single rose representing purity, and a laurel wreath as a token of affection.

The service also features taps and a rifle salute.

"We are just privileged and honored to show our respects," Breugh said. "We're very excited — the more we do, the more requests seem to be coming in."

The members of the Robert Finch Camp are among 26 similar camps in Michigan. They are direct descendants of Union soldiers.

At 95 years, the Robert Finch Camp is the oldest in Michigan.

The service for Hayner is at 11 a.m., June 20 at Sunset Hill Cemetery in East Jordan. A service for Newton Balch is scheduled for 2 p.m. the same day at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

While Prebble expects numerous family members to attend the event, she said it is open to the public.

"Anyone interested in the Civil War is welcome," she said. "It has been really interesting for me and I hope it is interesting for others."

According to Breugh, complete strangers sometimes show up at the ceremonies.

"We did one out in Brutus and we had a whole flock of Vietnam vets come down on motorcycles in the rain to pay their respects," he said.

OBITUARIES

Winifred Mary Claire McDonough: Dec. 20, 1921 - June 8, 2009

Winifred Mary Claire (LaFreniere) McDonough died at her home on Beaver Island, MI on Monday, June 8, 2009.

Winifred, "Wini," was born on Beaver Island on Dec. 20, 1921 to Nels and Sophia (Boyle) LaFreniere, the seventh of eight children. She graduated from Beaver Island School and on Sept. 2, 1939 married Lawrence McDonough, who survives. The couple raised their six children on the island and for a number of years ran several businesses before moving to Charlevoix. In 2005 they returned to Beaver Island as full time residents.

Known for her warm and generous nature, Wini's hospitality was boundless. In the early days of tourism on Beaver Island, Lawrence (then the Captain of the ferry boat) would often bring visitors to their home for dinner, knowing that Wini delighted in meeting people and sharing one of her wonderful meals.

In later years, the couple, who were wed for nearly 70 years, was still noted for their hospitality and the many memories and stories concerning island history they were always happy to share.

Active in the community, Wini helped launch the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, was a member of Holy Cross Catholic Church on the island and St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix, and assisted in the organization of the original Health Clinic on the island.

Wini and Lawrence together operated the Pine Tree Dairy, and Wini operated an island laundromat and thrift shop, worked on countless fund raisers for various island projects, and still had time to host special teas for the island ladies.

She was extremely proud of her family and their accomplishments and had close relationships to her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Along with her parents, Wini was preceded in death by six of her siblings and their spouses: Eva (Lloyd) McDonough, Patrick (Elizabeth) LaFreniere, Archie (Frances) LaFreniere, Veron "Dick" (Jean) LaFreniere, Joseph "Bussy" (Alberta) LaFreniere, and Rita (James) Elms.

Along with her husband, she is survived by her children and their spouses: Gary (Jean) McDonough of North Fort Myers, Fla.; Larry (Kay) McDonough of Grand Rapids; Joe (Tarry) McDonough of Beaver Island; Kevin (Linda) McDonough of Beaver Island; Pam (Brad) Grassmick of Farmington Hills; and Kathy (Tim) Gonyeau of Washington Township, and one sister Helen (LaFreniere) Pike of Beaver Island.

Wini is survived by her grandchildren: Lori, Debbie, Eric, Keri, Dan, Michael, Christine, Shane, Erin, Colleen, Keith, Brian, Timmy, Noel, Marty, Bridget and six great-grandchildren.

On Friday, June 12, Wini was brought home to her final resting place on Beaver Island aboard the Emerald Isle, with her family in attendance.

Visitation on Friday followed at Holy Cross Church, with a rosary said at 7 p.m.

A funeral mass was held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 13 at Holy Cross Church, with Father Patrick Cawley officiating.

Interment was at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Preferred memorials in Wini's name may be made to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center, Holy Cross Altar Society or the Beaver Island Community School's 21st Century Scholarship fund.

Freedom fest blasts off

ALICE PERRAULT AND STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

Games, fireworks, carnival rides and musical entertainment are just a few of the events that will take place during the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival, which kicks off Wednesday, June 17.

The Freedom Festival, which runs through Sunday, June 21, brings with it a host of activities and is the community's signature event of the year.

"The festival is the pride and joy of the community," East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Mary Faculak.

A main event on Wednesday is a tournament involving the video game Rock Band at 5 p.m. at the East Jordan Civic Center.

On Thursday, June 18, the carnival will start at 5 p.m. This is also Breezeway Cruise Night, where visitors are encouraged to travel the "Breezeway" between East Jordan and Atwood.

Friday, June 19, is one of the most eventful days throughout the festival.

Gretchen Bender, chairperson for the festival's organizing committee, said, "Friday is going to be our biggest night. We have so many events going on, it'll be a blast."

Some of those events include a flea market starting at 9 a.m., and both a block party and youth parade at 6 p.m. on Main Street. The parade will be starting on Main Street and ending in the marina parking lot.

Faculak said for many people, the block party is the highlight of the entire festival.

"It really becomes almost a homecoming party — a town reunion for the whole community," Faculak said. "Many people make a point of coming back to East Jordan for the block party each year."

Bender said the best event of the evening on Friday is the silent auction, which will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Main Street.

"We are giving away lots of items. All the benefits will go toward nonprofit organizations," she added.

On Saturday, June 20, there are many events scheduled as well. Airboat rides take place at 10 a.m. and will be launching from the tourist park. The E.J. Sno-Mobilers Club will host family games at 10 a.m. Later in the day, at 3:30 p.m., there will be a bed race downtown on Main Street. Registration and rules are available at the chamber.

The grand parade will be at 4 p.m., starting on the west side of the bridge heading toward Main Street. The parade will end at Watson Field. One final event on Saturday will be a lip-synch contest at 6 p.m. in Memorial Park. The fireworks will take place downtown at about 10:15 p.m. that night.

On Sunday, June 21, there will be both a Freedom Lovers' breakfast from 7-11 a.m. and the eighth annual flea market at 9 a.m. Both events will take place at the E.J. Sno-Mobilers Club.

Another notable milestone at this year's festival will be the 100th birthday of the landmark EJ&S train engine that resides in Memorial Park.

Members of the East Jordan Lions Club have recently been working on repainting Engine No. 6 in preparation for the festival.

According to festival organizers, the East Jordan & Southern Railroad was originally a logging railroad hauling lumber to the mill on Lake Charlevoix in East Jordan. In 1901 it was incorporated as a common carrier and connected to the Pere Marquette in Bellaire.

When most of the area's tree stands had been logged-out the EJ&S converted into a passenger and freight rail road.

The railroad became well-known for the free rides it offered on Independence Day during which "bandits" would rob the train. The train made its final run on Aug. 12, 1961.

For more information or a complete schedule of Freedom Festival activities visit the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce at www.ejchamber.org or 536-7351.

CHARLEVOIX AREA TROUT TOURNAMENT

G. RANDALL GOSS/NEWS-REVIEW

Dozens of youth turned out for the kids' fishing pond portion of the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament on Saturday, June 13. More than 100 lake trout were planted in East Park's trout pond living habitat feature. For a fee participants were able to keep the fish they caught. All proceeds went to help Pop Warner Football of Charlevoix.

There was no shortage of fish to be caught during the kids' fishing event last weekend. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority provided 120 lake trout in East Park's new trout stream and pond living habitat feature.

Susan Nugent of Linden showed her pup Sophie around East Park on Saturday, June 13. The warm sunny weather and curiosity about the downtown activity with the trout tournament seemed to draw people from all over. Nugent said she came to the park to see the finished product.

David Smith of Charlevoix took time from his busy frolicking in the fountain in East Park to mug for the camera. Smith and his mother Synthea were just two of hundreds of people who enjoyed the park during the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament on June 13.

Pat and Chris Raiston of Elk Rapids enjoyed the unique view of Round Lake from the upper deck of the Harbor Master's building in East Park. The two enjoyed an afternoon of shopping and sightseeing in downtown Charlevoix during trout tournament festivities.

Paul Weston (left) and Tim Boyko spent part of their Saturday afternoon, June 13, discussing how beautiful the new East Park is. The two said they couldn't imagine a better place to relax and converse on a summer day in Charlevoix.

Father and son Phil Skeel (left) and David Skeel were out for a ride and decided to stop and take a look at East Park during the trout tournament on Saturday.

Justin Swartz of Grand Rapids enjoyed one of the first truly summer-like days on Saturday, June 13. The 4-and-a-half-year-old spent the better part of Saturday morning running around East Park's interactive water fountain feature to cool off during the trout tournament festivities also in the park this weekend.

SPORTS reviewing the action

PRER SOCCER

Rayders notch second straight district title, begin regional championship defense Tuesday

HARBOR SPRINGS — A historic day and another trip to the regionals for the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team.

Olivia Catt and Meredith Rich scored two goals apiece Saturday as the Rayders rolled past Boyne City, 8-0, in a Division IV district championship match at Harbor Springs' Ottawa Stadium.

It was Charlevoix's second straight district title and its third in five years. It marked the first time Charlevoix has won back-to-back district crowns in girls' soccer.

The Rayders, 16-3-2 and ranked fifth in the state coaches poll, will play Lake Michigan Conference rival Traverse City Liberty, 15-4-1, in a regional semifinal game on Tuesday, June 2. The game is scheduled for Holton High School, but may be moved to a neutral site closer to Charlevoix and Traverse City.

The Rayders, who are the defending regional champions, defeated the Liberty twice in the regular season, 3-0 and 2-1.

"It makes me a little nervous," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "It's hard to beat a good team three times (in a season) and they're good. It's just going to be a matter of who shows up and if we can put the ball in the net."

Muskegon Western Michigan Christian and Kent City Algoma Christian meet in the other regional semifinal. The championship is slated for 6 p.m. Friday, June 5, at Holton.

Bobbie Molter, Caroline Dupuis, Madison Way and KC McCary also scored for the Rayders on Friday, while Bridget Peters and McCary had two assists apiece, and Catt and Molter had one each.

Tammy Potter posted the shutout in goal, while Marie Greene and Taylor Smith played well, said Madison, who also lauded the sportsmanship of the Ramblers, who finished 5-15.

"(Coach) Mike McShane had his team all lined up, clapping for us when we received our medals," Madison said. "It was really a class act. They showed some great sportsmanship. I think they should commended for that."

Regal Eagle

Brennan Stebe of Charlevoix held his Eagle Scout Court of Honor on Sunday June 7 at Mt. McSaub. Brennan completed his Eagle Project for the City of Charlevoix's Mt. McSaub Recreation Area by building all the rails and boxes used in the "Training Grounds" terrain park. Brennan presented a plaque to Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. and recreation director Ike Boss, recognizing his project. The plaques will be placed in the Lodge. Brennan's project was completed in the fall of 2008. Pictured are (from left) Boss, Stebe and Carlson.

Charlevoix setting for dysfunction, secrets

BENJAMIN GONS
EDITOR

A writer has the freedom to set a novel anywhere in time and space, but she chose Charlevoix.

When author Kristina Riggle sat down to write her story of a dysfunctional family's reunion and their mother's terrible secret, she couldn't think of any place more beautiful to set the story.

"My grandmother grew up in Charlevoix and lives there still," said the granddaughter of Mary Helen Riggle. "I have visited there many, many times and I just love this town."

She added, "I really could have put it anywhere, but I thought, if I'm going to spend this much time thinking of a place to write this book, I might as well pick someplace beautiful."

"Real Life & Liars" centers on a 65-year-old mother named Mirabelle Zelin who has three grown children on their way home for their parents' wedding anniversary.

Riggle finished her first novel after getting out of the journalism business. "I've been interested in writing for as long as I can remember," she said. "What got me seriously writing novels was getting burned out as a newspaper reporter and having my first child." Riggle added, "I wanted to slow down from life as a daily reporter and yet I didn't want to devote my entire existence to the home, so I continued freelancing for my old paper and in between assignments I began writing seriously — that was six years ago."

Riggle, a freelance journalist and mother of two resides in southern Michigan near Grand Rapids.

The official release date of "Real Life & Liars" was June 16.

Riggle will be in Charlevoix to sign books at noon on July 31 at Round Lake Bookstore. "Real Life & Liars" is available at bookstores everywhere. Riggle blogs every Monday at www.thedebutanteshall.com.

The power of prayer, cleaning and writing

The last two weeks of life have taken me on an unexpected journey. Experiencing one grandchild in the hospital was sad but when the other one entered 24 hours later my stress level reached its peak, or so I thought.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Dad soon followed the trend and I was beginning to wonder if my future in medicine might still take hold. Once needles and blood draws entered the picture I quickly thought otherwise. The following few days I was hoping no one would ask, "How are you?" in the general greeting.

Because I wasn't sure how to answer, I wanted to turn my phone off because getting bad news was starting to make my teeth crack. I did leave the phone on and family and friends would call to ask the real question: "How are you?"—we'd talk.

My life is slowly turning back to the daily routine. I know this because sleeping and eating are occurring on a regular basis.

I've stopped my incessant desire to clean and sort while stressed. I feel certain the emergency room floor and counters were spotless by my third day in.

Life is precious, it's good to find your support systems, use them and know that angels do exist both human and spiritual.

I am thankful they were there when I asked for them.

Now while visiting dad in his new digs at the nursing facility I am on my hands and knees swerving my head to and fro scanning the floor like a metal detector at work.

"No," I tell the cheerful young woman in the brightly colored shirt. I am OK. I am just looking for the remote control to the TV.

I took this same position looking on the floor for a pacifier gone astray when caring for twin grandsons just an hour ago.

Next stop, a quick trip to the store—Depends for dad, Pampers for twins.

Blood sugar tests strips for dad's high sugar and test strip's for the twins' low blood sugar.

Not alone is this role as a witness fellow friends doing the same with their parents, in-laws, children or close friends.

We all have some type of situation we are faced with and I've learned to take not a day at a time but one hour at a time.

With each new list I need to make, it feels good to just cross off one or two things.

I take five minutes a day to sit and do nothing and relish every moment of it.

Friends and family are good support when you need a shoulder to cry on or extra hand to help you finish a task.

It's hard for caregivers to ask for help and I am a slow learner in this department.

Friends supporting friends whether it is a kind word, gesture, a listening ear are helpful and it provides a caregiver with the support they need.

Once my own family situation started to settle I took notice of others around me who are dealing with pancreatic cancer, strokes, and multiple sclerosis.

Many of us are at a point in our lives where illness and disease affect our loved ones and though we may feel we are the only ones in this situation we are not.

When stressed out I am reminded that there is a plan not defined by me and I need to let things go.

I never had control of them anyway and I certainly don't now.

If I feel the need to be in charge or fix things I can weed the garden.

So, if you are currently in situation creating sleepless nights be assured there is help if you ask for it.

If your life is set on smooth sailing, then be aware of someone's whose life isn't and try to help out.

Someone had wondered how to keep going when life gets tough.

For me it's prayer, cleaning and writing. When the grandkids are grown and dad has passed, I'll have memories to hold because our lives move too fast.

They are not in the way, I can clean their feet and I'll wash their hair and cut their meat.

So I will continue to calm their fears and keep a Kleenex on hand to wipe their tears.

When they are gone I won't run free, when they are no longer here, I'll cry for me.

Beaver Island: Michigan's pure eco-tourism destination

With the upcoming electric car show (see page 3) and first-ever full marathon later this fall, we thought it would be a good time to learn a little more about Beaver Island.

Steve West

Following is a guest editorial by Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Steve West.

While on Beaver Island, the most remote inhabited island in the Great Lakes, visitors can expect to discover a wealth of natural resources including nature preserves and state land available of walking and exploring.

Approximately 35 percent of the Island, located about 30 miles north of Charlevoix in Northern Lake Michigan, is state forest land.

Most people come to Beaver Island for its abundant nature and solitude and much of what the island offers is free.

With over 100 miles of scenic roads, old two-track trails and beaches, it is ideal for hiking, biking, cross country skiing and snowshoeing.

Pristine woods welcome nature lovers for bird watching and photography, as well as sportsmen looking for hunting and fishing opportunities.

Among the extensive natural activities on Beaver Island, one can find:

• Beaver Island Ecotour: Of

fering a wide variety of tours for outdoor enthusiasts, such as driving and walking tours, inland lake tours, biking tours and hiking and camping trips. Visit sandy beaches, bogs and inland lakes, marshes, cedar swamps and hardwood forests in search of loons, osprey, turtles, salamanders, deer and a variety of flora and fauna for family enjoyment.

• Boat Charters: Explore the outer islands of the archipelago such as High Island, Hog Island and Squaw Island, on half-day or full-day excursions ideal for singles, couples, families and groups. Learn the history of the island lighthouses and former residents as you play a modern day explorer in Northern Lake Michigan.

• Diving: The water surrounding the island contains shipwrecks and other underwater scenery just waiting to be explored. Sign up for scuba instruction, snorkeling, diving classes, cruises or out-island adventures.

• Kayaking: Paddle the clear-blue waters of the Beaver Island archipelago where a variety of outdoor experiences are offered for all ages, including sea kayak trips in the St. James Harbor and on Lake Michigan or naturalist-led kayak eco-tours on the inland lakes. Be on the lookout for loons, eagles, osprey and beaver lodges during the morning or afternoon excursions or take part in a full-moon paddle and learn lunar lore while listening to the nighttime sounds of northern Michigan.

• Diving: The water surrounding the island contains shipwrecks and other underwater scenery just waiting to be explored. Sign up for scuba instruction, snorkeling, diving classes, cruises or out-island adventures.

Visitors will find two established campgrounds on Beaver Island, both owned and operated by the Island Townships and open from April 1 to the end of November.

There are no reservations required at either campground and primitive sites are available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Both campgrounds provide pit toilets and hand pumps, there are no showers at either facility.

Beaver Island is also home to the Central Michigan University biological field station which offers academic classes in biology, other sciences and the arts. Faculty and students utilize the woods and waters surround the Beaver Archipelago as their outdoor classroom for field trips and lectures.

After a day or more of exploring the rustic nooks and crannies of Beaver Island, visitors can find luxurious packages at the local spa and a variety of dining options can be found on the island.

Whether you fly or boat to Beaver Island, getting there is easy with both ferry and flight service from Charlevoix.

Those searching for a truly removed up-north destination will find it on Beaver Island, one of the purest four-season vacation destinations in Michigan.

When it comes to natural escapes, nothing compares to America's Emerald Isle—Beaver Island.

LETTERS to the editor

Attend to be informed

Editor:

As president of the Charlevoix Education Association, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many family, friends, supporters and others that attended the Monday, June 8 school board meeting.

Not only were interested parents and neighbors from Charlevoix in attendance but a very special thank you must be extended to our supporters from East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Boyne Falls, Cheboygan and Harbor Springs.

Those are the schools I know of that were represented, there could be others.

Please know how much your attendance and comments meant to us.

The issues on the agenda are important to the operation of our school system.

Which "side you part your hair on" matters less than the fact that you want to be informed.

You want questions answered and solutions found.

Each time you attend a school board meeting you show your child how important education and the system that delivers it is. You exercise civic responsibility.

Please continue to attend school board meetings, asking questions and supporting your local school system.

The next meeting is at 7 p.m. on July 13. See you there.

Stephanie Carey
President, Charlevoix Education Association.

Say no to boathouse

Editor:

The WATCH (Water and Air Team of Charlevoix) board of directors recommends that you have City Planner, Mike Spencer do a review of the permit application of James and Patricia Anderson for the building project proposed on Dixon Avenue and Round Lake.

We feel that this project did not meet the zoning requirements that were in effect two years ago when this project was brought before the then City Planner, Gary Harsh. We feel Mr. Harsh relayed bad and faulty information to council on the Anderson project and if City Planner Mike Spencer should find that that the project did not meet the city zoning requirements, the permit the Andersons received from Mr. Harsh should be declared invalid and no construction allowed as proposed.

Poppy Sale a success

Editor:

A special Thank You to all who made this year's Poppy Sale a success. You raised almost $1,500.

This money will be used for Veterans and their families. Once a year, the American Legion Auxiliary and the V.F.W. Auxiliary sell poppies for this purpose. Your generous donations are what make this possible.

Also a special thank you to those who so gave up their time to stand at our local stores to sell the poppies and to merchants who let us use their stores.

You are a big part of our success.

Once again, a very special thanks to the volunteers, the public for their donations and the merchants.

To those who helped make these occasions a success, I again "thank-you."

Birdie Whitley
American Legion President.

Celebrate solstice with art

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now 11 years since the first ever Summer Solstice Art Show in Charlevoix, the event is bigger than ever.

Art of all kinds, from sculptures, photography and pottery to jewelry and paintings will be on display and for sale during this two-day event.

"We're happy to be returning to East Park," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Erib Bemis. "There seems to be a heavy focus on photography this year, but some of our perennial favorite sculptors, painters and jewelers will also be there."

The event occurs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 27 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 28.

"I'm going to be selling two of my books along with selected prints of the Charlevoix area," said artist Mike Barton. "The Mushroom Houses of Charlevoix is all about the Earl Young houses—you not only get to see the outside, but the inside of the houses, too."

Barton will also feature his book "Charlevoix the Beautiful," a showcase of Charlevoix's signature sites.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said the Summer Solstice Art Show is just one of many great events in Charlevoix this summer.

"This is a great opportunity to showcase East Park and highlight the overall downtown area while featuring some great artists," he said.

Bemis added, "We have 48 vendors with some great pieces for sale."

For more information on this event, visit www.charlevoix.org.

Boogie-woogie for community health

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The sights and sounds of the World War II era are the setting for this year's Symphony on the Green.

The annual event to raise money for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation will, this year, support community outreach programs on health education.

"This will be our 11th year," said Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation executive director Lyn Jenks. "It will be a night of good music, good friends and a chance to support the hospital."

This year's event will be located in a hangar at Pelican Airways just south of Charlevoix on US 31 on the north side of the road.

Tickets cost $15 each and include entertainment, dinner, cocktails and valet parking.

According to Charlevoix Area Hospital president Bill Jackson, more and more programs are needed in the community to combat activities that limit or shorten peoples' collective lives.

"This event used to be an actual symphony orchestra that presented a concert, but it morphed into more of a social gathering with some music and a presentation," Jenks said. "We've had them at private homes for a last few years, but this year at Pelican Airways should be unique with World War II-era vehicles and vintage planes."

David Chown and the Lookout Cats will provide music for the theme "Swing: Get Down and Boogie-Woogie."

A dance floor will be available for anyone interested in dancing.

While Jenks said funds raised vary from year to year, they generally fall between $20,000 and $30,000.

"This is one of only two special events held each year, so it's very important for us," she said. "And, this year we're going to support our healthy community outreach because we feel it is very important to keep people healthy and keep them out of the hospital."

Funds raised at the event will help with programs which teach children how to stay fit and with the Hospital's new program Wellness Wednesdays which offers numerous health tests for $12.

"We work with elementary schools to screen fifth graders for the presence of cardiovascular risk and cholesterol testing," Jenks said. "We really try to help the parents of any students to manage and mitigate those risks."

Jenks said anyone who loves good food, music and supporting a good cause will enjoy the event.

"There are fewer than 100 tickets left," she said.

To get your tickets to the July 10 event, call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation at 547-8501.

Cyclist makes wishes come true

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A local cyclist has been inspired ride hundreds of miles for charity by two people who benefited from the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

And, although Mary Siegwart said she has only begun biking regularly in the last couple years, she plans to finish the 300-mile Wish A Mile trip to help those who really need it.

"There are hundreds of children that have a wish out there between ages 2-and-a-half and 18," Siegwart said. "If you can imagine a child looking at therapy and shots and doctors and hospitals all the time and having a terminal illness all you do is look at doctors."

She added, "If they can go spend the day at Disney World and not have to experience the pain and deal with the stress, then they will be able to relax and enjoy life for awhile."

Wish A Mile is a three-day bike tour from Traverse City to Chelsea.

While it costs $8,000 to grant one wish, Siegwart only needs to raise $750 to participate in the ride due to the number of riders.

"On this ride alone we want to grant 250 wishes," she said. "There will be 900 riders from all over the state."

According to Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan director of public relations Merideth Allard, the Michigan foundation was created in 1984 and has granted more than 5,600 wishes in its 25 years.

And, more than 400 wishes will be granted by the end of this year. To prepare herself for the ride, Siegwart has been pedaling more and more miles each week.

"I try to put on as many miles a day—about 30 to 40 miles during the week and anywhere from 50 to 75 (miles) on the weekend," she said. "You need to make sure you eat right and carry a lot of water."

Riders will leave Traverse City on July 24 and end with festivities on July 26.

OBITUARIES

Rev. Gerald G. Klooster: Feb. 12, 1957 - June 16, 2009

Rev. Gerald G. Klooster, 52, of Central Lake, died Tuesday, June 16, 2009 from injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident.

He was born Feb. 12, 1957, in Charlevoix, the son of Henry E. "Bud" and Rosa V. (Ross) Klooster.

Rev. Gerald attended most of high school in Charlevoix.

His senior year he went to Central Lake High School, graduating in 1975.

He attended NCMC in Petoskey and obtained his associate degree in Applied Science.

He worked for Lamina Bronze as a Team Leader for over 10 years and in corrections and marine patrol with the sheriff's office.

After several years he received his ministerial degree from S.M.T.I. in Midland.

He was the Pastor of Living Word North in Bellaire for the last five years.

Rev. Gerald spent many years and most of his time ministering to those in need. He went on several mission trips over seas and did some prison ministry too.

Rev. Gerald enjoyed spending time with his family and grandchildren.

He also enjoyed boating and restoring old John Deere lawn tractors.

On April 22, 1978, in Eastport, he married Patti Watson who survives.

Also surviving are his children Bradly (Lynsey) Klooster of Charlevoix, Daron (Brittani) Klooster of Traverse City, and Maricia Klooster of Traverse City; grandchildren Blake and Braydon Klooster of Charlevoix and Dana and Kaden Klooster of Traverse City, his parents Bud and Rosa Klooster of Eastport, his sisters Linda (Everett) Ingalls of East Jordan and Shelly Dorland of Torch Lake Village, and several nephews and nieces.

He was preceded in death by his brothers Gary and Mike Klooster.

Funeral services were held Saturday, June 20, 2009 at the Central Lake High School Gymnasium. Dr. Mark T. Barclay officiated.

Interment followed in South-east Cemetery, Central Lake Township.

Arrangements have been handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Living Word North Church or to the family.

Ralph E. Teague: July 15, 1924 - June 15, 2009

Ralph E. Teague, 84, of Charlevoix, formerly of Davison, Mich. died Monday, June 15, 2009, at the Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be 3 p.m., Sunday, June 28, at the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, the Reverend John David officiating.

Interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Ralph was born July 15,

1924, in Davison, the son of Ralph Edgar and Jessie (Harrison) Teague.

He graduated from Davison High School in 1942, and served in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, stationed in England.

On June 7, 1946, he married Norma Wolf in Saint John's Episcopal Church in Royal Oak.

They made their home in Royal Oak until retiring to Charlevoix in 1987.

Ralph was a member of the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, and the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club.

He is survived by his wife, Norma of Charlevoix; daughters, Brenda Teague of Charlevoix, Laura Teague Ziffra (Mark) of Carpentersville, Ill.; sons, Scott Richard (Susan) Teague of Petoskey, Keith Sidney (Rachel) Teague of East Jordan; grandchildren, Matthew, Heidi, Erin, and Jeffrey; great-grandchildren, Brooke, Lauren, Kate, and Megan; sisters, Carol Kumriffs of Florida, Marjorie Gauntlett of Saline. Ralph's sons, Ralph Edgar III, and Jeffrey Paul, and brother, Sidney preceded him in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to your charity of choice.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling arrangements.

Barbara MacArthur: Died Dec. 14, 2008

Barbara MacArthur, age 85, writer and peace activist, died at home on Dec. 14, 2008, of leukemia.

She is survived by her husband of 58 years, Bruce, and daughters, Laurie MacArthur, Karen Schilling, Marjorie Verge, Nancy Smith, and five grandchildren.

She served on the board of Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom, where she was editor of the Peace Digest, and was a charter member of the Grand Blanc Beautification League, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Flint Environmental Action Team (F.E.A.T.).

She was also an active member of Flint Community Planned Parenthood, the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission, Charlevoix Area Garden Club, Hilton Head for Peace, Women in Black and worked vigorously to establish a national Department of Peace.

In 2007, she was awarded the Michigan Garden Clubs' State Life Membership for her efforts "to educate club members and the public on conservation issues, such as global climate change, energy conservation and wind power," and in 2008, the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom honored her for her "tireless work keeping issues of peace and justice before the public."

Her career included working for the Allied Military Permit Office in Stockholm, Sweden, and as a reporter for the Port Chester Daily Item, Cincinnati Enquirer and the Grand Blanc News until her retirement in 1979.

A memorial service is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday, July 3, 2009, at First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. Interment will take place after the service at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

The family is requesting that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Barbara

G. MacArthur Peace Fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Fixing a leak

Crews from Tri-County Excavating dug up two portions of US31 near Garfield Street on Tuesday, June 23. The work was necessary to fix two leaky pipes which city officials said could have become major leaks if left in disrepair. The job is expected to cost $23,300 and be completed within a day or so.

Melrose — Addis Road wedge and overlay - $71,934.20; Clute Road wedge and overlay - $53,364; River Road reconstruction - $505,981.10; Shadow Trails wedge and overlay - $37,900.

South Arm — Miles Road wedge and overlay - $157,190.60.

Wilson — Jaquay Road reconstruction - $304,168.25; Marshall Road aggregate placement - $34,937.50.

The road commission also plans to perform crack filling projects in Bay, Boyne Valley, Evangeline, Eveline, Hudson, Marion, Melrose, Norwood, South Arm and Wilson townships for $81,602.28.

The preceding dollar figures are the actual bid amounts.

The difference between the estimated and the actual bids shows a savings of $778,441.33 which will go back to the respective townships from which the money came.

Now the road commission must wait for monies from the 2008 Charlevoix County Road Millage before beginning the more than two dozen miles of road repair and reconstruction originally proposed.

"We're waiting on the county board to see if they OK loaning $250,000 to get road projects started," Harmon said. "Then, that money would get paid back when the tax bills go out and they start getting payment."

Commissioners are expected to vote during their 7 p.m., Wednesday, June 24 meeting in council chambers at the county building.

Boyne City gets "Main Street" accreditation

Boyne City Main Street has received the prestigious Master Level designation, the highest level a community can receive through the Michigan Main Street program.

The Michigan Main Street Center @ MSHDA is part of the Authority's efforts to create vibrant communities across the state.

This effort is based on numerous recent studies showing that investing in the downtowns creates vibrant centers where people want to live, work and invest, making the state economically stronger.

The underlying premise of the Main Street Center @ MSHDA is to encourage community economic development through organization, promotion, design and economic restructuring.

To achieve Master Level status a community must reach Main Street accreditation and must have successfully completed services provided to Selected Level Communities. To learn more about what is required of a Main Street Community, visit the MSDHA Web site http://www.michigan.gov/mshda/0,1607,7-141-45746_47326_---,00.html

Stressing over the economy?

Economic turmoil can cause an array of negative health effects—both physical and mental.

Dealing with these troubles can add tremendous stress, which increases the risk for developing depression, substance abuse, anxiety or compulsive behaviors such as over-eating and excessive gambling or spending.

A recent poll conducted by the American Psychological Association found that almost half of all adults said they are increasingly stressed about their ability to provide for their family's basic needs.

It is important to be aware of signs that financial issues may be adversely affecting your well-being. These signs can include persistent sadness, excessive anxiety, lack of sleep/constant fatigue, excessive irritability, anger, difficulty staying focused, and not being able to function well at work, school or home.

Coping techniques include:

- Recognizing the positive aspects in life can help retain hope for the future.
- Strengthening connections with family members and friends.
- Engaging in activities that relieve stress and anxiety.
- Developing new skills for employment.
- Taking charge of your environment.

Coping techniques may ease some stressful symptoms, but some problems can seem too overwhelming to handle, and that's when it is time to seek additional help to get through the tough times.

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration has a resource to help individuals identify and cope with stressful situations stemming from the economy.

This may be viewed online at www.samhsa.gov/economy.

Persons wishing to know more about the agency are encouraged to visit www.norcohmh.org, or to access services call (800) 834-3393.

Grief support program set

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing your job, moving, dealing with a chronic illness, or even losing a pet.

Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from July 7 through Aug. 11th at Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix. The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief, and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitator for this program is Dr. Andrew Sahara of North Country Community Mental Health. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

We would appreciate any one interested in attending these classes to pre-register by calling the hospice office at 547-7448. After the first session the classes will be closed. There is no charge for this program.

For further information, you may call 547-7448, Mondays through Wednesdays, or e-mail info@hospiceenwm.org.

RACERS

Continued from page 1 events," he said. "But, we're going to be up probably more than 300 from last year, and when you figure that most of these people bring their families along with them ... it's good for tourism in northern Michigan."

While Run Charlevoix is a for-profit venture, Suffolk said some of the proceeds will go to help the animal shelters throughout Michigan.

"We have hired the Elks Club, scouts and the boys' and girls' track team," he said. "It's a way for them to help us and raise money for their programs."

Suffolk will also organize a marathon this fall on Beaver Island in addition to his Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot in Ann Arbor.

Suffolk said his runners always enjoy coming to northern Michigan for the race.

"The comments we get from people is that they're just so happy coming in from 33 different states and so impressed with the people in Charlevoix," he said. "Michigan certainly needs the people coming in and spending money at this time."

Are Two Better than One?

Most people with age-related hearing loss in both ears opt for "binaural" hearing instruments. This term refers to wearing a hearing instrument in each ear. Of course, this makes good sense because hearing well in both ears affords the most natural hearing situation. With good hearing in only one ear, the listener is subject to potential problems that may compromise safety and quality of life. For instance, binaural hearing minimizes the impact of

"head shadow" in which poor positioning blocks the ability of a person with one hearing ear to detect sound. Having good hearing in both ears also helps the listener locate sound, which can be a lifesaver in an emergency situation.

PS. Studies show that hearing in ears that don't have needed amplification with a hearing instrument slowly lose their ability to hear due to lack of stimulation.

With hundreds of acres of rolling hills, cool forests and miles of clear clean river and streams, the Jordan Valley is a natural treasure.

To promote the value of this pristine area the Friends of the Jordan is sponsoring its fifth annual photography contest with the theme "The Jordan, Naturally!"

All photographers amateur, professional, young and old, locals and seasonal visitors are encouraged to enter.

Pictures of activities, scenery, flowers, animals and the changing seasons of the Jordan are all eligible and images from all seasons are encouraged. The only requirement is that the pictures are taken in the Jordan River watershed area.

Are Two Better than One?

Most people with age-related hearing loss in both ears opt for "binaural" hearing instruments. This term refers to wearing a hearing instrument in each ear. Of course, this makes good sense because hearing well in both ears affords the most natural hearing situation. With good hearing in only one ear, the listener is subject to potential problems that may compromise safety and quality of life. For instance, binaural hearing minimizes the impact of

"head shadow" in which poor positioning blocks the ability of a person with one hearing ear to detect sound. Having good hearing in both ears also helps the listener locate sound, which can be a lifesaver in an emergency situation.

PS. Studies show that hearing in ears that don't have needed amplification with a hearing instrument slowly lose their ability to hear due to lack of stimulation.

"Young Friends" Summer Nature Program

Margaret Moran of the Friends of the Jordan introduces Maureen Radke of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to John Thompson, the instructor for the new Friends of the Jordan "Young Friends" summer nature program.

Does your youngster enjoy looking under rocks for bugs and tromping through the woods? Is she a budding scientist, nature nut or conservationist?

Does he just spend too much time in front of the tube and needs to get some fresh air and have fun with friends? If so then he or she is just the kid that the Young Friends Summer Nature program was designed to target.

The Friends of the Jordan, through a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, is sponsoring a six-session program which will meet Tuesday and Friday mornings during July at the Jordan River Watershed Center.

The Young Friends will explore the Jordan River, nearby nature trails and visit the Jordan River Fish Hatchery under the guidance of an experienced science teacher, John Thompson of East Jordan.

Designed for students in grades four through eight, the activities are hands-on, experiential and fun.

There is a small fee for the program but scholarship money is available for interested families who request it.

Information on the program and registration forms are available on the Web site www.friendsofthejordan.org or by calling (231) 631-8856.

There is limited availability so early registration is recommended.

Type 0 blood badly needed

The need around the globe for a strong and stable blood supply will be observed June 14 through World Blood Donor Day.

"Blood availability is a universal issue," said Sharon L. Jaksa, CEO of the Great Lakes Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "World Blood Donor Day gives us the opportunity to honor those who donate blood within our communities, and to encourage others to give the gift of life - especially during the summer."

While all blood types are needed during the critical summer months, there is a pressing need for Type O-negative blood. With less than a day supply of Type O-negative blood, the local American Red Cross urges eligible Type O-negative donors to donate. All donors are encouraged to make and keep their blood donation appointment.

According to the World Health Organization, more than 80 million units of blood are donated every year worldwide. Despite those donations, the majority of the world's population does not have access to a safe and adequate blood supply. Just 38 percent of the world's blood supply is collected in developing countries where 82 percent of the global population lives.

"Chances are someone close by needs blood to help save their life," said Jaksa. "In fact, every two seconds, someone in America needs blood."

The first World Blood Donor

Day was held June 14, 1995. Each year, the number of participating countries increases, with activities now being held in the majority of nations around the world.

In 2009, organizers of World Blood Donor Day will focus on improving the safety and sufficiency of blood supplies through achieving 100 percent voluntary donation of blood. In 2006, 54 countries achieved 100 percent voluntary donations, up from 39 in 2002.

For a list of blood drives in your area, visit www.redcross-michigan.org.

How to Donate Blood
To schedule an appointment to donate please call (800) GIVE-LIFE or (800) 448-3543 or visit redcrossmichigan.org for more information. If you are at least 17 years of age, weigh a minimum of 110 pounds and are in good general health, you may be eligible to donate blood. All donors need to present positive identification.

About the American Red Cross

The Great Lakes Region serves 65 counties, and needs to collect about 700 units of blood a day to meet patient needs in about 70 hospitals in the region. In addition to providing blood to our community, the American Red Cross also provides relief to victims of disaster, trains millions in lifesaving skills, serves as a communication link between U.S. military members and their families, and assists victims of international disasters or conflicts.

Declare Your Financial Independence Day

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

As a nation, we celebrate Independence Day next week with fireworks, picnics and parades. And as citizens, it's good to reflect on the many freedoms we enjoy in this country. But as individuals, we define freedom in many different ways — and one of the most important of these could be financial freedom. That's why you may want to take the steps necessary to eventually declare your own Financial Independence Day.

For example, consider the following:

• Pay yourself first. In difficult economic times, it can be hard to set aside money for your future. But if you can afford it, try "paying yourself first" by having some money moved automatically each month from your checking or savings account to an investment. If you never actually "see" the money, you probably won't miss it, and over time, you may be pleased by the growth in your investment. As your salary goes up, consider increasing the amount you automatically invest.

• Invest for growth. Given the most recent recession, it's understandable that many people would shy away from investments whose principal may fluctuate. It's understandable but not necessarily wise — because historically these investments can possibly offer more potential for growth when a recession ends. And you'll likely need this growth if you're going to become financially independent. Although past performance is not an indication of future results, by holding these investments for the long term, you may be able to lower the risk involved, because over time, quality investments tend to overcome "down" periods and trend upward. You can also help control risk by including some fixed-income vehicles, such as bonds and certificates of deposit, in your portfolio.

• Reduce your debts. Debt may be your biggest obstacle to financial independence.

It may take a fair amount of time to get rid of your debts, but consider your current situation and the options available to you, which might include evaluating your largest debts, paying down high-rate credit cards and avoiding new loans whenever possible. For example, mortgage rates are low compared to historical measures, so you might consider refinancing your existing mortgage to lower your monthly payment. This would give you additional cash flow that you could use to pay off credit card debt.

• Help protect your income. If you were to become ill or injured, and could not work for an extended time period, you might jeopardize your family's well-being and your prospects for financial independence. That's why you may want to consider purchasing a disability insurance policy. If you work for a large company, your employer may offer this coverage, but it might not be sufficient, so you may need to add some private coverage. And if you work for a small company or are self-employed, you'll need to find disability coverage on your own. True, it's an added expense — but it's also an investment in your financial future.

Financial freedom, like other types of liberty, does not always come easily. To achieve it, you'll likely have to work hard. But it will be well worth the effort when your own Financial Independence Day does arrive.

Rededication of the graves of two Civil War veterans were staged Saturday, June 20. One, for George W. Hayner, was held in East Jordan at Sunset Hill Cemetery. The other, for Newton A. Balch (left) was held at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix. Balch is pictured here with his wife Lovina sometime in the late 1800s. The ceremonies were conducted by the Robert Finch Camp #14 of Traverse City Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War. Balch's rededication was due to him never having had a headstone. Hayner's headstone had crumbled so that it could no longer be read. The Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Administration donated the funds for both new headstones.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

Ordinance No. 740 of 2009

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND TITLE V, PLANNING AND ZONING, CHAPTER 51, ZONING, MULTIPLE SECTIONS CITED HEREIN.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Amendment of Sections 5.6, 5.10, 5.12 Definitions.

The following definitions are hereby added or amended to read in their entirety as follows:

Fence: A structure of definite height and location intended to serve as a physical barrier to property ingress or egress, a screen for objectionable vista or noise, a marker, or a decorative use.

Ordinary High Water Mark: The line between upland and bottomland which persists through successive changes in water levels, below which the presence and action of the water is common or recurrent that the character of the land is marked distinctly from the upland and is apparent in the soil itself, the configuration of the soil and the vegetation.

On an inland lake which has a level established by law, it means the high established level. On a river or stream, the ordinary high water mark shall be the ten year flood limit line. The ordinary high water mark shall be at elevation 581.5 feet (International Great Lake Datum, IGLD-1985) for Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix.

Retaining Wall: A permanent structure used to secure dirt, sand, rock, or other materials to prevent downslope movement or erosion.

Through Lot: A lot having frontage on two parallel, or approximately parallel, streets.

Yard, Front: A yard extending across the front of a lot between the side lot lines and being the minimum horizontal distance between the street or place line and the main building or any projections thereon. On corner lots the yard shall be parallel to that street frontage upon which the traditional front entrance for persons, i.e., the front door, is located.

SECTION 2. Amendment of Section 5.33(1) and Section 5.43(1) Minimum Lot Area for R1 and R2 Districts.

The following sections are hereby amended to read in their entirety as follows:

5.33 (1) Minimum Lot Area and Width. The minimum lot area and width in this zone shall be twelve thousand (12,000) square feet and one hundred (100) feet respectively. The building and/or structures shall not use more than thirty (30%) percent of the usable lot area, however lots with an area of less than 7000 square feet shall not use more than forty (40%) percent of the usable area. Percentages shall be determined by totaling the building footprint of all structures on the lot excluding eaves and overhangs that are less than two feet. Eaves and overhangs greater than 2 feet shall be included in the percentage of lot coverage.

5.43 (1) Minimum Lot Area and Width. The building and/or structures shall not use more than thirty (30%) percent of the usable lot area, however lots with an area of less than 6000 square feet shall not use more than forty (40%) percent of the usable area. Percentages shall be determined by totaling the building footprint of all structures on the lot excluding eaves and overhangs that are less than two feet. Eaves and overhangs greater than 2 feet shall be included in the percentage of lot coverage.

SECTION 3. Amendment of Section 5.92 (b) Permitted Use Regulations in CBD.

Section 5.92(b) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

Restaurants.

SECTION 4. Repeal of Section

5.176(6) is hereby repealed in its entirety.

SECTION 5. Amendment of Section 5.183 Through Lots.

Section 5.183 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5.183 Through Lots. In any district, a through lot, as defined, shall have a front yard, as hereinafter provided for its particular district, on all frontages along each street lot line. Through lots are prohibited on any new developments, except where one frontage is a private road. Front yards on through lots in existence shall be located on the side of traditional front entrance of the home. Through lots located on Block 5 of Newman's Addition and Block 21 of Mason's Addition shall have frontage on Bellevue Avenue due to topographical disadvantages.

SECTION 6. Amendments to Section 5.188(1), (3) and (4) - Development Plan.

Section 5.188(1) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

(1) No building shall be erected or structurally altered, nor shall any grading take place in any zone district, except R-1 and R-2, nor shall any change in use as defined by use regulation which requires an increase in parking spaces within the various zone districts be permitted in any portion of the premises, until such a time as a Development Plan has been approved by the City Council after review and recommendation by the City Planning Commission. Change of use shall also include a re-institution of any use discontinued for a period of three (3) years or more.

The site plan shall expire unless substantial construction of an approved site plan improvement has begun within 365 days of approval. Thirty days prior to expiration of an approved final site plan, an applicant may make application to the Planning Commission for a one year extension of the site plan at no fee. The Planning Commission may grant the requested extension up to an additional one year, if it finds good cause for the extension and that the zoning regulations governing the site plan approval have not changed since the approval.

If a building permit has been obtained as provided, the development plan approval shall be deemed expired if, at any time prior to completion of the project, work on the project ceases for twelve (12) months or any twelve (12) month period otherwise elapses when substantial progress is not made toward completing the project.

SECTION 7. Amendment of Section 5.188(3) Fence, Walls and Screen Regulations.

Section 5.188(3) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

(3) These 3 copies of the development plan shall be submitted to the Zoning Administrator and shall contain the following information. The zoning administrator may waive the requirements in select cases.

The applicant shall provide to the Zoning Administrator electronic copies of any documents generated for development plan review process on CD or via e-mail in the appropriate electronic format, including but not limited to AutoCad, AutoMap, ESRI, etc., pdf, or jpeg formats. The City acknowledges that these documents are for internal use only and may not be distributed to the public unless required by the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA).

General requirement of overall development plan submission shall consist of a set of drawings shown at a scale of not less than one (1) inch equals fifty (50) feet on a standard sheet size of twenty-four (24) inches by thirty-six (36) inches. A scale of one (1) inch equals one hundred (100) feet when conditions warrant or do not allow the use of the standard sheet size at a scale of one (1) inch equals fifty (50) feet may be permitted. Architectural elevations and floor plan details shall be drawn to a minimum scale of one-eighth (1/8) inch equals one (1) foot.

SECTION 8. Addition of Section 5.262(3) Procedure for Special Use Permits.

Section 5.262(3) is hereby added and shall read in its entirety as follows:

(3) Applicants that obtain approval from the Planning Commission must then follow Section 5.188 for development plan review if the special use results in an increase in the number of parking spaces required as defined by Article VI.

SECTION 10. Amendment of Section 5.286(4)(a) Variance General Standards.

Section 5.286(4)(a) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

(a) The need for the requested variance is due to unique circumstances or physical conditions of the property involved, such as narrowness, shallowness, shape, water, area, or topography and is not due to the applicant's personal or economic situation.

SECTION 11. Severability.

No other portion, paragraph or phase of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan shall be affected by this Ordinance except as to the above sections, and in the event any portion, section or subsection of this Ordinance shall be held invalid for any reason, such invalidation shall not be construed to affect the validity of any other part or portion of this ordinance or of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan.

SECTION 12. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment by the City Council.

ADOPTED this 15th day of June, A.D. 2009.

Ordinance No. 740-2009 was adopted on the 15th day of June, 2009, by the Charlevoix City Council as follows:

Child life jackets free to borrow

This year, Irish Boat Shop in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix is helping to keep kids safe while on the water by participating in the Boat U.S. Foundation Life Jacket Loaner Program for Kids. This program, made possible by the Boat U.S. Foundation for Boating Safety and Clean Water, allows boaters to borrow a child's lifejacket for the day or the weekend at no charge.

Visit Irish Boat Shop between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sundays at 13000 Stover Road in Charlevoix and sign out a life jacket for an infant, child, or youth for the day or the weekend.

Return jackets when done.

Irish Boat Shop was awarded a kit of 12 life jackets at each location, making it possible to help countless children stay safe on the water this summer. Call 547-9967 for more information.

Quarter million road loan OKd

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners unanimously approved a $255,000 loan to begin work on River Road in Melrose Township.

Despite protest by outspoken Boyne City-Charlevoix Road advocate Connie Saltonstall, the board voted to fund the short-term loan to reconstruct nearly two miles of River Road from Bear River Road to Springvale Road.

"The current steering committee, with the premise of saving money, has determined road funding and work based on the participation of township money and road projects," Saltonstall said. "Saving money is a good thing but ... they have eliminated townships that do not have the available funds or projects."

She added, "That was not the intent of the road millage. There was support for the millage because many townships could not afford to do roadwork."

Saltonstall's concern stems from what she believes is an appearance of bias since some road steering committee members—appointed to recommend how road millage money should be spent—have current or prior connections with local townships.

Steering committee members include Eveline Vronsdan, former Norwood Township Board member Dennis Way, former Supervisor of Melrose Township Mike Webster, Supervisor of Chandler Township Dennis Howard and Ken Allen from the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County—the group calling for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road to be fixed.

Commissioners did not respond and no discussion preceded the 5-0 vote—board chair Chris Christensen was absent.

Melrose Township Supervisor Vern Goodwin said the move will help the road's nearly 950 travelers a day. "It's in terrible shape," he said. "There are parts of it where you can only do 10 mph or the front end of your truck will fall off."

Steering committee spokesman Vronsdan could not be reached for comment by press time.

Road Commission will now use the loan to reconstruct the road.

Once money from the Charlevoix County Road Millage begins to be collected later this December, the loan will be repaid.

Passed in November of last year, the 1-mil, 15-year levy is expected to fund nearly $2 million a year for road improvements throughout the Board split on land bank

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Unable to agree on its value and seeking to learn more, Charlevoix County Commissioners tabled discussion on whether to create a land bank.

Under Michigan Law, counties may apply for and create a land bank in their area which would then allow them to buy and sell foreclosed properties.

"Basically what it's designed for is blight properties that come back on the tax roll that we can clean up, resell or use for different various things—for undesirable parcels that are too small to build on, for landlocked parcels," said Charlevoix County Treasurer Marilyn Cousineau. "Last year I had six of them on Beaver Island that are landlocked and I have a feeling I'll get them back in another three years."

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt (R-District Three) expressed concern that the county would go after eyesore properties even if the landowner had paid taxes. However, Cousineau said that is not legal.

"We can only get property back that is taken (for delinquent taxes) in foreclosure," she said. "We wouldn't be dealing with anything else."

Cousineau added, "The alternative is they just go to auction like they always do—it would be to keep things as they are."

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt (R-District Five) was against the move.

"I don't think the county should be in the land business," he said. "If we can investigate this more, I would appreciate it."

Commissioner Shirley Roloff (R-District Six) also called for more time for the commissioners to discuss the matter.

"We seem to have trouble taking care of what's on our plates now and I can see this being another big chore," Trapp said. "How do we pay for all this?"

Cousineau said the program will pay for itself once the county begins selling property at a profit.

"The land bank can sell them to the adjoining proper owners for a small amount of money to get them back on the tax rolls so they'll stay there and so taxes will get paid," she said. "If we get back any buildings that should be condemned, we can get rid of them ... clean up the property and fix them up."

The funding for the bank would come, not only from potential profitable sales, but also a limited tax recapture.

"After those properties are sold—for five years—the land bank would get 50 percent of the taxes that would come off that property," Cousineau said.

The commissioners will likely discuss the matter further at their 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 8 meeting.

Open for the season

The snack bars at both Ferry and Lake Michigan beaches are now open for the season.

The Beach House at Lake Michigan Beach is open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day, and serves wraps, salads, panini, burgers, fries and nachos. "The reason we're working it is my daughter and her friends needed a job," said Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "We found out nobody else had applied to operate the snack bar this season so we decided to go for it."

The snack bar at Ferry Beach is open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day. The concession stand is being operated by Becky Doan, wife of Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan.

The Doans, too, applied to run the stand after no one else attempted to do so. Ferry Beach offers ice cream, pop, water, iced-tea, hot-dogs, chips and burgers. Pictured in front of the Beach House are Grace Glenn, Lexie Eagle, Adam Hagen, Shauna Spenceley and Sydney Carlson.

Emmet-Charlevoix fair alive and well

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Earlier this year the state announced cuts to local fairs—and that's when the phone calls started coming in.

But, say fair officials, despite a relatively significant chunk of funding missing, the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair will go on.

"There is going to be a fine fair, as a matter of fact," said Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair manager Angus Shaw. "Everything is going to be here that has been here in years past."

She added, "And, we are hoping for the support of the community because we used to get support from the Michigan Department of Agriculture that is no longer available."

While there was a decrease in funding, Shaw said, the confusion seemed to be on exactly what was cut.

Costs include the ribbons and cash prizes the fair awards for various categories, according to Shaw.

"We used to get ... $15,000. It was a matching grant to cover tents and port-a-potties and improvements," she said. "My port-a-potties alone run between $5,000 and $6,000."

In previous years the state reimbursed the fair up to 62 percent of the cost of the ribbons and cash prizes.

The fair paid $35,000 in prize money last year.

"We were not supposed to be on the chopping block until 2010, but because of the dire straits of the economy in Michigan, we were affected this year," she said. "We were not expecting that ... and it gave us no time to prepare."

In order to continue funding the ribbons and prizes, the fair board decided to cut the award amounts in half instead of eliminating them altogether.

Shaw said the best way to support the fair is to simply show up and buy a ticket to a grandstand event.

"The fair office always takes donations to help with the cost of ribbons," she added.

A fundraiser to help support this year's fair is the engraved brick paver program.

For $40 you can have up to three lines engraved on a four-inch by eight-inch patio brick. For $80 you can have five lines on an eight-inch by eight-inch brick.

The pavers will be placed in the memorial garden walkway.

Additional help this year has come from the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners which upped their usual $10,000 contribution to $15,000.

"It's very important for the young kids interested in participating in the (4H) programs," said Charlevoix County Commissioner and fair board member Shirleen Tripp (R-District One). "We would probably survive without it, but we've given up so much—we spend so much on the kids that we don't have choices on through the courts ... and all those avenues. The fair supports the kids that are doing productive projects."

This year's fair is scheduled from Aug. 22 through Aug. 30 and will offer a rodeo, auto-cross, demolition derby and animal shows at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

There will also be a karaoke contest with a $10 entry fee. But, Shaw said, much of the entertainment is at no cost.

"You can't go anywhere for $3 and no parking fee and have a whole day's fun," Shaw said. "We do allow coolers and a family that wants to bring a picnic lunch and not spend money at the concession stands can do that."

She added, "We try to make it affordable for families to have a good time."

Those 12 and younger enter at no cost.

Call 347-1010 or visit <http://www.emmet.mi.us/fair/> for more information.

It was like a mini-family reunion, of three generations, as they were joined there by Pam and Mike Smith of Redford, Paul and Amy Hardy of Alabama, and of course, Peggy and Keith McGeorge were already there. The newborns were twins, a boy and a girl, Eli and Amelia, born to Kasha McGeorge Brackett and husband Dan, a son, Clark, born to Collins and Steph McGeorge, and another son, Gabriel, born to Patrick and Angel Varnum. The weather was so hot while they were celebrating with water balloons and water pistols; it was a cooling relief to get shot!

Hope to be seeing lots of you at the All School Reunion from 1-3 on Friday, July 3, at Veteran's Memorial Park. Old pictures to share or just see who's all there!

Playing with fire, July 4 tradition

The Fourth of July brings to my mind the ring of sparks falling on my outstretched arm.

Christine Gwilt

I remember summer evenings gathered on the lawn with my cousins and my friends, waiting for the metal stems of sparklers that fizzed like cartoon bomb fuses.

The grownups doled out the sparklers one at a time. We were allowed to hold the tips to the flame of uncle Don's Zippo lighter until they caught in a thrilling resplendent burst. We suffered the singeing fallout with stoic grace. It was sanctioned anarchy and it was worth it.

For one day of the year we were allowed to run with sharp flaming objects.

No one cautioned that we'd put someone's eye out and they didn't seem to mind that we shrieked and waved the sizzling sticks over our flammable hair. It was a noisy celebration.

My favorite Fourth of July diversions were the tiny pellets called Snakes. They came in a box illustrated with a black, tongue-flicking serpent, and they blossomed into an undulating marvel, leaving a sinewy, oddly sturdy ash.

"Don't light those blankety-blank things in the driveway," uncle Jack warned us.

He actually said "blankety-blank" in an effort to clean up his language in front of us kids. The Snakes left blackened pockmarks on the concrete and Uncle Jack was what my mom called house-proud.

So we'd sit on the curb and a designated adult would light them in the street.

The volume of charcoal-gray ash produced by the little pill was entrancing. They didn't make any noise, aside from a soft serpentine hiss, but for me that was a plus. Unfurling a roll of ammo from my Annie Oakley cap gun and hanging the individual rounds with a rock was as far as my tepid fascination with explosions ever took me.

Meanwhile, in a small Wisconsin town, the boy who would grow up and marry me was observing Independence Day with considerably more verve. In his clan, an arsenal of bottle rockets, pinwheels, Black Cat firecrackers and cherry bombs served as gateway pyrotechnics to the more serious stuff. In Michael's family of six boys and one nervous girl, the festivities didn't really begin until the ringing in their ears reduced communication to sign language.

Perhaps in a subliminal effort to thin out the herd, adult supervision consisted of handing over a box of kitchen matches with a warning to be careful. One memorable year, the festivities came to an aborted and ignoble end when the neighbor's roof ignited.

Early in our marriage, Michael and I drove to his hometown to attend the family's July Fourth jamboree. We fueled up on bratwurst, beer and cheese curds—all of the traditional Dairy State party fare—before my brother-in-law, Steve, began unloading boxes of fireworks from his garage. He'd been stockpiling for the occasion and had amassed an impressive collection.

As the eldest, and still the acknowledged ringleader, Steve ran the show. His three older sons, grappled with their uncles and cousins for proximity to the source of the mayhem. The cherry bombs bursting in air

Health services misconceptions

Editor:
There's a lot of confusion about other countries' government run plans compared to our system.

A scientific study in Health Affairs, the Policy Journal of Health Sphere, comparing the quality of health in the US with Canada, England, New Zealand and Australia, found the U.S. lagging behind in treatment.

Noting other studies have found the U.S. falls in the bottom quartile of these developed nations for life expectancy and infant mortality, the writers compared survival rates in several major disease categories, including stroke, asthma, transplants, and cancers.

"It is difficult to conclude that it (the US) is getting good value for its medical care dollar," the scientists concluded.

Another recent study compared health data and what we spend on health care per person in the US with other major industrialized countries. Our cost are higher in each case yet our life expectancy is slightly lower in each case.

In the US the average per person annual medical costs are $6,402, a combination of insurance payments and government coverage with consumers averaging $842 out-of-pocket. Health care costs are 15.3 percent of our GDP.

Life expectancy is 78.1 years.

In Great Britain, with government run and tax-funded health care, the average spending per year is $2,723, with consumers out-of-pocket spending at $352 on supplemental insurance, drugs and direct payments to doctors.

Health spending is 8.3 percent of the GDP. Life expectancy is 79 years.

In France, where the government provides universal coverage, the average spending per person is $3,374, with consumer's spending $233 out-of-pocket for private coverage. Health care spending is 11.1 percent of the GDP.

Life expectancy is 80.3 years.

The facts are similar in The Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, and Japan. In each country life expectancy exceeds that of the US and health care spending is a smaller percentage of the GDP.

A 2007 study prepared for the United States Congress also found that while people spend more on health care in the US, studies of quality of care does not reflect the greater costs.

It is time for real reform. Fear of a government component is not based on facts.

A good source for Canadian opinions on their system is at www.huffingtonpost.com/billmann/americans-whove-used-cana_b_215256.html.

We need to speak out and urge Congress to pass real health care reform.

More seating needed

Editor:

Do you ever get to Shanahan Field to watch a soccer game and there is nowhere to sit?

Well I know that happens to my family a lot.

That is why I think that we need more seating at Shanahan Field!

For example, if there was more seating parents wouldn't have to pack chairs. Most people don't have time before games to pack up chairs. Some people might not have room in their cars for chairs! I know that when I am at my Grandpa's house I ride my bike there!

At my house there are a few little kids and it is very hard to prepare all of that stuff!

Also if we had more seating at Shanahan Field, more people could come.

What happens if a family member can't come because there is not enough seating and they don't have chairs?

I know that I do better in soccer when I have family there to cheer me on! I figured out that 50 percent of the kids in the world do better in soccer if they have someone there to cheer them on!

Lastly, if we had more seating at Shanahan Field, then people wouldn't have to stand up.

Everybody gets tired when they stand up for too long!

What happens if we don't have chairs? Well we would have to stand up! It can get really crowded with all of those people standing up!

In conclusion, just think of all the great things that could come from this! Nobody would have to stand, we wouldn't have to pack chairs, and more people could come! This could be great!

Clean cemetery

Editor:

I was at the Charlevoix Cemetery Sunday to water plants.

The place looked like a mess. The grass wasn't cut nice and there was no trimming done. No clean up either.

Plants were dry due to lack of water.

The Catholic Cemetery didn't look too bad.

But I've seen both look a heck of a lot better.

I donated to ground sprinklers and I haven't seen them around either since the first summer. I took them out there. Lots in there are expensive and I think all people that have them deserve better.

East Park sure looks well kept.

Imbalance of nature

Roger Knutson

What is going on?
The wretched excess, the temporary imbalance of nature.

The substance covering the street beneath the trees is a product of the literally millions of aphids or plant lice that are currently feeding on the tender young leaves.

These insects suck out the sugary sap of the tree and what falls to the street is what is left over after it has passed through their tiny digestive tract. The product is euphemistically called "honeydew."

But we all know it is aphid excrement.

If you are a young aphid you need a balanced diet to grow and thrive.

The pure plant sap you are sucking out of the tree has a lot of sugar and not much protein.

To get the protein you need you must consume a great deal of plant sap, and most of it just passes right on through.

I have no idea which particular kind of aphid this is, but they live on all sorts of broadleaf trees.

There are about 2,000 kinds of aphids in the world and at least a few dozen of them live in Michigan.

What almost all of them have in common is an enormous capacity for reproduction.

Nearly all the aphids this time of year are females who live about one month and produce from 80-100 live, tiny offspring each.

Each of these is also a female who, after a week or so, can begin to produce her own 80-100 offspring.

If you do the arithmetic, the arrival of a single aphid on a tree can quickly result in millions.

And, the sticky streets or yards or cars below the trees are the result.

Should we be spraying the trees? No. Such outbreaks are not predictable and do little harm to the trees, even though we may have to wash the car more frequently this year.

The aphids are great food for ladybugs, spiders and some small birds.

Temporary imbalances like the aphids, the web worms that are abundant this year, and even the lake flies that sometimes blanket our shores and stores, are to be expected. Nature is almost often a wildly extravagant operation.

Where there is some serious economic import to such extravagance we might consider controlling it in some sensitive way.

But we should never be surprised when some creature or plant temporarily exceeds our wishes.

The balance of nature is mostly a poetic idea with little correspondence in the non-poetic world.

Community diner hits the spot

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Front Porch café in Ellsworth is not so different from any small town eatery, except that it is.

When the previous incarnation of the café closed in February of 2008 and the grocery and deli followed suit two weeks later, the bait shop set up a table and invited folks in for coffee. But, in January, the bait shop closed. With unemployment looming at around 16 percent in the county, the idea of reopening the restaurant may have seemed like a less-than-good idea, but turning a profit wasn't really the objective—this is a community project.

"This place belongs to the community, not to any one church," said Bob Felton, an outreach facilitator with the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. "If the church is serious, they have to go to the community as opposed to the community coming to them."

The non-profit diner has become the heartbeat of the town of 500 or so residents. It's a place to gather, catch up on the news and solve the world's problems over a cup of coffee and a slice of homemade pie.

Part of Felton's work involves making connections between the church and the community and he recognized the need to revive the spirit of the town and provide a gathering place. In a joint effort with four other area churches, the Front Porch opened for business.

Felton stressed that the project is in the interest of unifying the community, and not limited to church members.

The restaurant is non-denominational and the prices reflect only the cost of covering ongoing daily expenses.

Nothing on the menu exceeds $5: a hamburger with homemade mashed potatoes and gravy is $4.95, and breakfast is served anytime.

"There are only four paid employees," said Felton. "Everyone else volunteers."

Organizers say the café is more than an answer to the recent spate of businesses that have closed in town.

The staff may be short on pay, but Felton said they're long on talent.

Chef Jan Rasmussen turns out pies with towering caramel-colored tips of meringue.

Louise Klooster bakes cookies and cinnamon rolls.

Klooster uses the cinnamon roll recipe handed down from her husband's Aunt Agnes.

John and Agnes Klooster opened the original Front Porch in 1954.

"This place is allowing me to live a dream I never thought I'd have," Klooster said.

And, that may be the attitude that makes this diner special. The staff and volunteers say there's no place they'd rather be, and they're happy you've stopped by.

Booths line one wall below a collection of vintage posters displayed on a high shelf.

The spotless dining area is a model of friendly efficiency.

Ron Toussaint rides his Harley from Wolverine a couple of times a week to sit at the counter and order the Front Porch Special: two eggs, two pieces of sausage or bacon, American fries and toast.

Whether a day-tripper or a local volunteer showing up on their day off, every patron is greeted and fed like family.

Weekly specials at the Front Porch include lunch for seniors every Thursday, paid by donation, and a family fellowship dinner on alternate Wednesdays that's sponsored by area churches.

During the summer, the café serves dinner with a nod to more sophisticated cuisine on the fourth Saturday of every month.

And, on the third Saturday of each month from September through May, "The Back Porch Coffee Shop" brings in artists and also provides an open mic for local poets and musicians.

"I think we've been wildly successful," Felton said. "This is the place to come."

The Front Porch is open for breakfast and lunch.

Although the kitchen closes at 2 p.m., the back door is left open and a pot of coffee is on for any late afternoon guests.

"We just ask that they turn off the coffee pot and lock up when they leave," said Felton.

On a warm summer morning, the streets of Ellsworth are quiet and nearly deserted.

But, the parking lot of the Front Porch gives a good indication of where everyone might be.

Public hearing on One Water Street

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Boyer City developer Glenn Catt may get $1.7 million in tax credits to clean up a contaminated building site, but not before the public has its say.

A hearing on Catt's request to tap into Brownfield development funds, which would reimburse him for clean-up costs on his One Water Street site, is scheduled for 5:30 p.m., July 7 in Boyer City Commission chambers.

"The Charlevoix County Commission established the BRA (Brownfield Redevelopment Authority) to promote the safe reuse and redevelopment of environmentally impaired properties in Charlevoix County," Sheri Rhoads of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance told county commissioners recently. "The Charlevoix County BRA (Brownfield Redevelopment Authority) can do projects anywhere in Charlevoix County and the first one will be in Boyer City."

If Catt is granted his request, the current taxes on the property will remain the same until construction begins—nearly $500,000 per year.

The six-year Brownfield tax capture is estimated to generate nearly $1.7 million.

The clean-up would be extensive, Catt said, because the property in question was once used as a railroad roundhouse, a shingle mill and a commercial boat dock.

"As the project is constructed and taxes start to come in on the new development the BRA (Brownfield Redevelopment Authority) can capture the new taxes and use it to reimburse the developer to help pay for clean-up costs," Rhoads said.

"After the developer is reimbursed the tax capture ends and all the new taxes on this new big thing goes to the taxing authorities."

Rhoads said the benefit to using qualifying Brownfield sites for development is the ability to turn low-value properties into high-value properties.

Catt could only be reimbursed for pre-approved clean-up activities.

"The state wants to see local skin in the game as well so to capture the state taxes they want to see local taxes captured as well," Rhoads said.

"But, the taxes that are captured ... is only specific to that parcel."

She added, "This is one parcel in the DDA (downtown development authority) district."

If Catt's plan were to fail, he would not receive any reimbursement for clean-up costs.

The $12 million proposed One Water Street project consists of rental space for retail businesses, high-end hotel rooms and dock space.

"The biggest thing for me going forward ... you could either maximize your profit or minimize your risk," he said. "I'd rather minimize my risk. My goal is not to have any vacant storefronts."

emitted a mean little crack, like a gunshot.

When Steve produced a six-foot length of PVC pipe intended to launch something with a name so sinister that I've blocked it from my memory, I escaped into the house.

Sitting alone on the couch was Steve's youngest son, Alex. "Don't you like fireworks?" I asked him.

He shrugged, avoiding eye contact with the stranger who'd married his uncle Mike.

A staccato eruption that could have been the soundtrack for Armageddon issued from the back yard. The ensuing screams were gleeful, and I relaxed a little before the next volley made me cover my ears.

"They're kind of scary to me," I said.

"Yeah."

"But your dad knows what he's doing. They'll be safe."

I wasn't sure if this was true. They seemed to be operating with alarming impunity. Why didn't somebody in the neighborhood call the police?

"Do you like any fireworks?" I asked him.

"Sparklers."

"Me too." I settled down at the opposite end of the couch with this simpatico kid.

"Did you ever have any Snakes? They're awesome."

Bomber pilot back in skies after 67 years

BY STEVE WEST
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

On Dec. 7, 1941 Paul Neumann, now 87, was enjoying being an ROTC student at the University of Michigan. The Army Air Corps had offered students the chance to join and finish college before they officially began service, so Neumann signed on. Three months later he was called up anyway.

After basic flight training and advanced bomber training the new Second Lieutenant was assigned to be the pilot of a B-24 Liberator bomber.

He and his crew were sent to Alaska's Aleutians Islands. While stationed in Alaska Neumann often flew B-25s like the Yankee Warrior during instrument flight training missions.

Neumann and his crew flew combat missions from the frigid Aleutians against Japanese naval targets in the Kurile Islands in the northern aspect of the Japanese chain of home islands. They were attacked often by Japanese fighter planes and damaged on several occasions. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his WWII service.

The B-25 Yankee Warrior is seen taking off from the municipal airport on Beaver Island. The plane was part of a historic visit to the island wherein a former B-24 bomber pilot had the chance to take a ride nearly 68 years after first taking over as a pilot.

"I like to say I dropped the last bombs of World War II," said Neumann.

He remained in the reserves after the war and enjoyed flying AT6 trainers, "all over Michigan."

He also returned to the University of Michigan and graduated.

He was recalled to duty during the Korean War in 1950, with what was then the new United States Air Force.

He served in Montana and left the Air Force Reserves after the Korean War.

Neumann owned and operated a successful employee pension plan business before retiring. He owns a seasonal home on Beaver Island.

On June 26 through 28, the Yankee Warrior B-25 visited Beaver Island, offering tours of the historic aircraft and flights over the archipelago.

Neumann was honored on a special VIP flight on June 27. The plane's crew presented him with a commemorative medal honoring his service in World War II.

If a parade is canceled but everyone still shows up, is it still not a parade?

That's what Horton Bay General Store owners plan to find out with their July 4 non-parade event at noon on July 4 in front of their store.

"We're just going to sit on the front porch and have a beer and wave at cars that go by," said Claudia Lorenger, co-owner of the store.

The Horton Bay Parade was canceled this year after long time organizers Sue and Bob Metzger stepped down from their role.

"People are a little unhappy about it (no parade) but I actually feel pretty good about it," Lorenger said. "We weren't getting much help and finances are a little rough for everybody this year, so we're probably going to do it every other year until things get better."

Local resident Ron Willey said he won't let the lack of a parade prevent him from entertaining the crowd.

"At about noon a little group of people with instruments will be playing music in front of the general store," he said. "The last few times we marched and kind of posed as the ghost of Sousa and people got a kick out of it."

General store worker Tony Matthews said it will be the ghost of the parade.

"We pride ourselves on being different," he said. "It's Horton Bay, so we've got to do something weird."

So far, Lorenger said, nearly 45 people have indicated they will attend the non-parade.

"If it isn't screwy, it isn't Horton Bay," she said.

The public is welcome to bring lawn chairs and beverages and attend the non-event.

Music starts at noon and the non parade at 1 p.m.

Kids to play music in garden

At 6 p.m. on Tuesday July 14, the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., will host an art opening to view and experience their new addition to the Children's Garden.

Three interactive, outdoor instruments will be unveiled in the Children's Garden: an Acrophone, a Lithophone, and a Xylophone.

At Tinkertunes Music Studios, owned by Tom Kaufmann, the goal is to share the joy of making music and to provide opportunities for a musically enriching experience that will begin a lifetime of appreciation.

"Music educators have known for decades that we learn music in much the same way we learn language," Kaufmann said. "By giving a child an opportunity to start learning at a very young age, music becomes a child's 'native tongue.' Recent studies have demonstrated that music lessons for preschoolers can enhance their spatial intelligence, and increase their ability to grasp abstract mathematical concepts."

Tinkertunes, located in Traverse City, is a music teaching facility which has provided private lessons in piano, and Educational Music Programs since 1995.

The three instruments in stalled at the Charlevoix Library are made from three different types of material, so children will hear how the material can change the sound.

Litho is Greek for stone, and phone is sound, so a lithophone is a musical instrument made from stone.

The library's lithophone is made from recycled abandoned granite countertops and is tuned to the key of C, A=440.

Lithophones are one of the most ancient instruments, and in China the sound of stone is as elemental as metal or wood.

In Viet Nam a stone instrument called a "dan da" was found that is believed to be over 9,000 years old.

Western civilization didn't use stone for music until the 1840's.

The Library's other two instruments are also made from recycled materials and have very different sounds.

The xylophone is made from scrap lumber and the acrophone is made from PVC piping.

To come and try out the new musical additions to Grandma Geri's Children's Garden at the Charlevoix Public Library, stop by for the gala opening ceremony or during regular business hours.

For more information about this or other events at the library, call 237-7350 or visit the Web site at www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Here the Charlevoix Library's lithophone is under construction. This will be among several musical instruments to be stationed outdoors in the children's garden feature at the library.

Friday Night Fireworks

The two costliest (and non-revenue generating) events of the annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival are concerts and fireworks. Since the Venetian Festival is not a City event (although it could not be staged without the generous support of the City), and Venetian revenue generating opportunities are limited, concert and fireworks expenses are primarily funded through private contributions. An extensive fundraising campaign is launched annually by the volunteer based Venetian organization. Charlevoix has responded, year after year, with necessary financial support through the "Venetian Burgee Club," the community wing of Venetian sponsorship which now consists of approximately 300 individuals, organizations and businesses.

In light of such generous financial support, the volunteer organizers of Venetian have performed their labor of love for the community for the past 11 years, through the countless hours necessary to stage a world class festival. Although there is much community pride in the fact that the caliber of Venetian is equal to that of the National Cherry Festival, there are significant differences. Venetian has remained true to its roots as a homecoming celebration geared to friends, families and visitors with a common bond, our beloved town of Charlevoix. The Venetian Festival is also staged without full time paid staff, at one-tenth the expense of the Cherry Festival. The Cherry Festival additionally charges admission to the Open Space, while East Park remains free of charge for all to enjoy.

As a result of the limited revenue generating opportunities, the Venetian Board has called the question several times in the past few years as to whether the community wished to eliminate or maintain the Friday night fireworks display over Lake Charlevoix. Each time the overwhelming sentiment was to maintain the Friday fireworks, and the community continued to step forward with the necessary financial support to fund the fireworks.

In the midst of our current tough economic times, the Venetian Board is again required to call the question as to whether to stage the Friday night fireworks display in 2009. This question will ultimately be answered by whether sufficient financial contributions are received to fund the Friday fireworks. Since some Venetian donors have been unable to maintain their level of support in the current economy, additional supporters are needed, here and now, to join the ranks of those who are able and willing to maintain or increase their customary level of support.

In the meantime, the Festival is moving forward to obtain approval, on a tentative basis, for a Friday night fireworks display. Any such Friday night display could also be reduced in length and still be staged, if sufficient contributions are received. The Venetian Board will not, however, proceed with Friday fireworks unless it is able to maintain the sensational quality of past Friday night displays.

If you wish to maintain the 2009 Friday night fireworks display over Lake Charlevoix, please register your vote through your financial contribution accompanied by the attached Burgee Club enrollment form. Donations of all amounts are appreciated and necessary.

Giving resources back to our community is rewarding and is the true spirit of Venetian. We remain hopeful for a positive response, so that Charlevoix may again enjoy another sensational Friday night fireworks display and the heartwarming sense of community pride in a job well done.

Greener living at Iron Horse Farms

BY CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

These days it seems everybody is going green—green homes, green schools, green hotels—all buildings constructed and designed to reduce the overall impact on the environment.

Iron Horse Farms on Wilson Lake near Ellsworth is taking the concept of green development even further with its new lake front development, comprised of three century-old farmsteads.

"Iron Horse Farms is a place where you can return in time and be the best you can be," said Mark Gebhard, one of the partners of Iron Horse Farms. "At Iron Horse Farms we plan to do what our grandparents did and treat the land properly."

Billed as a horse and land lovers dream, the green conscious, equestrian, waterfront community boasts 50 home sites, 26 of which rest peacefully along 9,000 feet of sparkling northern Michigan shoreline.

Gebhard invited families to, "come out and be protected ... walk, ride horses, snowshoe, kayak, cross-country ski, ice skate, fish, swim, canoe and hike."

The community plans to encourage ecologically-friendly development and low impact, green construction by requesting builders use non-toxic materials and reduce the impact on the natural environment.

The community will be free of motorcycle and motorized recreational vehicles in order to preserve the natural integrity of the land and protect its residents.

The newly completed community barn and stables incorporate green concepts as well, including skylights and ventilation systems through out, specifically designed to reduce energy usage and make optimal use of natural light and airflow.

The 24,000-square-foot facility—approximately half the size of a football field—utilizes geothermal technology to keep the barn warm in the winter and cool in the summer.

For people who want to see Iron Horse Farms, there will be a Kicking Out Cancer barn party from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. on July 18 at the farm.

Tickets cost $3, and proceeds will benefit Charlevoix Area Hospital's Circle of Strength. The event is geared toward families and outdoor enthusiasts of all ages.

Activities include a petting zoo for children, hay rides, art displays, a silent auction and live music.

Local restaurants will offer tastings, and guests will be free to explore and discover the property and all it has to offer.

Home sites are still available.

Evenings with Otis

Otis Pottery is celebrating this July 4 weekend with its 12th Annual Open House. Visitors are welcome to come all weekend long to view new pottery as well as an exhibition of two-dimensional art by Daniel Roache. Pottery owners David and June Otis have always enjoyed music as well as art, and twelve years ago they decided to start hosting Chamber Music concerts in their studio to merge the two interests. The art display is all day Friday and Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. At 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday there will be chamber music concerts with a third event at 4 p.m. on Sunday performed by the Northern Michigan Flute Choir. Otis Pottery is located one mile south of the Ironport Ferry on M-66 North. For more information, call (231) 536-7856 or visit www.otispottery.net for a map and directions. Pictured are Andrew, David and June Otis.

Charlevoix physician receives 50 year pin

MARCI SINGER
NEWS-REVIEW

Dr. John Lignell, a physician who has been in family practice in Charlevoix since July of 1963, recently received his 50 year pin from the Michigan State Medical Society.

"When I moved here there were just three other doctors," the 75-year-old said. "I came up in the winter of '63 in a snow storm. My wife at the time bawled. She couldn't believe I'd leave Detroit to move to a town with 300 people."

Billie Wright, a patient for the past 44 years who started seeing Lignell just three months after he started practicing in Charlevoix, said she liked him when she first saw him and has been seeing him ever since.

"If he's puzzled over what's happening or if it's beyond what he thinks he can handle, he sends you to someone else," the 68-year-old said. "He also comes and checks on his patients no matter who's taking care of them."

Wright said Lignell is a good Christian man and doctor who has done a lot for the community including her.

"I had to have surgery but my insurance wouldn't cover him being in operating room with me because he wasn't a surgeon. He came in with me anyway even though he didn't get paid and he saw me every day afterward until I got home. He does that for all of his patients. A lot of people respect him," she said.

When Lignell arrived, he said it was evident that the area needed a doctor. There are six times as many doctors now as there were when Lignell started and in the course of his practice, he's outlived the building he started in.

"I moved into a building that had offices for four doctors in 1967. When I left there two weeks ago, I was last doctor to leave out of that building. Several doctors came and went. I was the lone survivor. I was there the day it opened and I was there the day it closed," he said.

What Lignell said he's learned most in his years of practice is the change in treatment of medical problems — and he's still learning.

"Treatment has changed quite a bit. Years ago, if you came in with a heart attack, you'd be in the hospital for several days. Today they have pulmonary bypass and stents. Technology has also changed. With the use of imaging including CAT scans and MRI, it's easier to both diagnose and treat ailments," Lignell said.

As far as his practice, Lignell said he's enjoyed it through the years and continues to enjoy it.

"Helping people is why I started practicing," he said. "I enjoy people and I enjoy helping them."

Another reason Lignell chose to become a family physician? His father.

"My dad was a family doctor in Detroit," he said. "I used to go around with him when he made house calls. My dad was a huge reason in helping me decide to practice medicine. In fact, in sixth grade, I wrote an essay about wanting to be a doctor just like my dad."

The father of four adult children and grandfather of 10, all of whom he is very proud of, Lignell said one of his best hobbies is traveling to visit members of his family.

"My other greatest hobby is singing," he said. "Right now I sing with the Little Traverse Choral Society in Petoskey and am a member of both the Charlevoix and the Bay View Men's Glee Clubs."

With 46 years of practice behind him, Lignell said he has no plans to retire soon.

"One reason I'm not retiring right now is that I don't know what I'd do with all this extra time, but I also love helping people," he said. "There are good people in this community who like to stay healthy and I like to keep them that way. I've seen a lot of families, have delivered a lot of babies and have made a bond with lots of families. That's another reason why I'm not retiring soon."

A second request for a road loan in recent months by advocates for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road reconstruction was not addressed during the meeting.

Come to Charlevoix Area Hospital's "Wellness Wednesday," a walk-in health screen that takes place monthly on the first Wednesday of each month.

The next screen is from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 1 in Classroom A.

Health Screens include cholesterol and blood glucose levels, body mass index (BMI) score, and a blood pressure reading.

Cost for the service is $12. Participants will receive a blood pressure log, a pedometer, and all test results at the time of the screen.

Health Consultation and educational materials will be tailored to individual results by a Registered Nurse.

The entire visit will take less than 15 minutes. Appointments can be made in advance by calling the Office of Community Health Education at 547-8906. Walk-ins are welcome.

FAMILY AND LASER DENTISTRY

Lakeview
DENTISTRY OF CHARLEVOIX

If you consider yourself somewhat of an anxious dental patient and are seeking extreme safety and comfort, you need to consider Lakeview Dentistry. We have incorporated laser dentistry techniques into our practices and treatments.

Here are some of the major benefits associated with laser dentistry:

- Procedures performed using soft tissue dental lasers may not require sutures (stitches).
- Certain laser dentistry procedures do not require anesthesia.
- Laser dentistry minimizes bleeding because the high-energy light beam aids in the clotting (coagulation) of exposed blood vessels, thus inhibiting blood loss.
- Bacterial infections are minimized because the high-energy beam sterilizes the area being worked on.
- Damage to surrounding tissue is minimized.
- Wounds heal faster and tissues can be regenerated.

Thunder and waves in Boyne City

Bringing speed, excitement and smiles to northern Michigan, the Sixth Annual Boyne Thunder Poker Run returns July 10 and 11 to in Boyne City.

This unique boating exhibition showcases more than 35 high performance boats, some sporting several thousand horsepower and speeds of more than 160 mph.

These water rockets will be roaring through the waters of Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan on a 90-mile excursion.

Being a poker run, a card will be given to each boat at each of their five stops, and the boaters will play their cards at the end of the day, with the best hands winning prizes.

Of course the Boyne Thunder Poker Run, as it always has, benefits Camp Quality, a non-profit organization that provides special experiences and support for children with cancer and their families. With more than $140,000 raised for Camp Quality since the event's inception, Boyne Thunder has become a staple of the community that people look forward to every year.

Card stops during the boaters' journey across gorgeous Lake Michigan include Harbor Springs, Beaver Island and Bay Harbor. Along with the race, the weekend's festivities include a champagne cruise for people to get an up-close view of the speedsters, dinner in Veteran's Park on the lake as well as boat and car displays and music and fun into the evening in downtown Boyne City.

The pairing of Boyne Thunder with Camp Quality is truly what makes this event special.

The goal of Camp Quality is to let children with cancer be children again, facilitate experiences and friendships and provide confidence for these special children and their families in a way that matters. Through donations like the one being made by Boyne Thunder, Camp Quality is able to provide these things.

For more information about this great event, visit our Boyne Thunder Web site at www.boyneThunder.com.

You can also contact our Boyne Thunder office at (231) 582-9009, Chris Parks at (231) 675-5241 or e-mail mainstreet@boyneThunder.com.

Junior baseball wrap-up

CHRIS PARKS
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

As summer swings into high gear, more area youths than ever have taken to the baseball and softball diamonds, swinging for the fences and dreaming of making that game-saving catch.

With recreational leagues in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, hundreds of children and teenagers across northern Michigan have had the opportunity to participate this year.

"We're at an all-time high in participation," said Brian Cerna, member of the recreational league board and coach in the 11 to 12 division. "We used to only have minors and majors (divisions), but now we've broken into three age groups."

Age groups run from 7 to 10 years up to 13 and 14 years and focus on different stages of player development, from early exposure to the game for younger players, to more skill focused play for advanced participants.

And while regular season play has concluded, All-Star tournaments pitting the top players in each town against other town's best have begun, starting last weekend.

One reason for the spike, Cerna pointed out, may be the league's decision to use replica uniforms of professional teams instead of generic uniforms.

"Kids get an opportunity to be on a different team every year and collect different teams," he said.

This is also the first year in Charlevoix there have been two little league softball teams: one in the 11 to 12 years division and the other 13 to 14 years.

In East Jordan, player turnout has been increasing steadily in recent years as well.

According to Nikki Skrocki, member of East Jordan's league board, they have experienced an increase of more than 40 players this year compared to last.

"The success the past four years has contributed to the interest in the sport," she said. "It's a win-win, the more increase (in players) and interest, the better the player development."

East Jordan and Boyne City will be participating in the All-Star tournament as well.

Teams are selected by a coach vote of the best players on each team, and each age group participating will have teams of 11 to 14 players.

According to Skrocki, after player selection the newly formed teams practice for a couple of weeks before beginning the tournament.

Like Charlevoix, East Jordan also has organized leagues for girls' softball. The softball teams compete against teams from other cities during their regular season, unlike the majority of boys' baseball teams because of fewer participants in the immediate area.

Along with Charlevoix and East Jordan, Boyne City experienced another successful regular season of recreational league baseball and softball as well.

With nearly 300 participants, the league has maintained a consistent amount of players for the past few years according to Al Aown, Boyne City's chief of umpires, vice-president of both the major and junior boys' divisions and board member.

Aown said this year the decision was made to divide the league differently, which resulted in more teams.

Decreasing the 11 to 12 years division but increasing the 9 to 10 years division maintained the same amount of players, but produced more teams, and ultimately more competition.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the summer baseball and softball leagues for the youths that participate, coaches said, is that they have fun and gain experience.

According to board members from all three cities, all the leagues were quite competitive this year, insuring players always had a chance to win.

"Typically, it's right down to the last game," Cerna said about the regular season. "It's very competitive." He also added Charlevoix leagues utilize a draft system so teams are evenly balanced to ensure no one team dominates a league.

Aown also said the Boyne City leagues have been competitive and balanced this year, something that has become the standard over the years.

"I think (the competition) is pretty consistent year to year," he said.

Aown also cited the amount of games they play within their own divisions for the balance in competition.

East Jordan league president Ruby Dipzinski also said all the teams in her league were evenly matched.

Puzzling over P-stones

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

It all started when Matt and Lisa Claffin were enjoying a cozy night at home with their sons, Jacob, 5 and Nathan, 3. Matt was working on a puzzle and Lisa and the boys were poring over the family's collection of Petoskey stones.

"A Petoskey stone jigsaw puzzle would be cool," Lisa said. It was an observation that has quickly developed into an enterprise.

Matt and Lisa put the idea into production, aptly naming their new venture "Puzzles That Rock."

"We searched the Web looking for something similar," Lisa said. "There wasn't anything like it."

Calling in the talents of friends—a local photographer and a graphic designer to help realize their concept for the product and packaging—the idea was soon ready for production. They researched various options available for rendering the photo into jigsaw pieces.

"One of the first places we looked at charged $60 per puzzle," Lisa said. "We had to find a way to make the price point realistic."

They eventually located a company in Indiana that could do the job for a reasonable fee.

"We've pre-sold 70 cases," said Matt.

This was on the strength of the prototype kept on display in their small specialty grocery store Sonny's Ironton Market on M-66, just west of the Ironton Ferry.

The first run of the finished product is due for delivery. The name Petoskey is said to have been derived from a wealthy fur trader, Petovegay, who married an Ottawa Indian princess.

The name means "Rising Sun" or "Rays of Dawn." And, "Rising Sun" is the first in a titled series of puzzles that the couple plans to release over the next few years.

The photographic image is of an artfully arranged bounty of the coveted fossils.

The photo captures the honeycombed design and subtle diversity of color and pattern

Still searching for the fountain of youth

Editor:
I was so pleased to see that our city recognized the need to have family-friendly activities when designing the new park/marina...more specifically, the interactive fountain.

I must admit, when I first saw children playing in it I was shocked to see that it was allowed, as it seemed to go against Charlevoix's stereotypical, ever-emergent, uptight reputation.

Then, when attempting to take my 2-year-old son to play in it last night after work, I was hit with the reality that my initial response was more accurate.

He, along with about eight other disappointed children, stared at grates in the concrete waiting for a bubble of water to emerge signaling the start of the fountain; or as my son calls it, the volcano.

After questioning a few other baffled parents, I spotted a sign hanging from a rope.

According to the sign, children are only allowed to play in the fountain from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This, for most of us tax-paying, blue-collar locals is when we are working to support our families; hence, our children cannot enjoy the fountain during these times.

I read further to discover that the fountain is closed from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. out of respect for our marina guests.

Apparently, the sound of children's laughter and excitement is disrespectful at this specific time of the day...the same time of day when we should not be encouraging our marina guests to be sitting idle in their boats, but rather be out dining in our area restaurants, supporting our community.

The signage stated that the fountain then goes into display mode from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., where once again the ropes go up, and children are not allowed to play.

How heartbreaking it is to see the potential that this fountain could have in the community, but doesn't, due to the apparent inconvenience it poses...the inconvenience of happy children Sarah Sheaffer Charlevoix

Indoor ice rink

Editor:
Do you need something to do in the winter? Charlevoix should have an indoor ice rink! Then nobody would have to be bored in the winter.

Every one could participate in all the activities an indoor ice rink in Charlevoix promotes!

For instance, it might be too far for you to drive to one of the closest rinks, in Petoskey or Gaylord. See, Gaylord is about 36 miles away, and Petoskey is about 19 miles away from the town of Charlevoix.

So maybe you cannot afford gas money or just want to spend your money on something else.

Another problem with driving to either of these places is that you might not have enough time to get there and you would be late or not have enough time to get there in the first place.

Furthermore, an indoor ice rink in Charlevoix would help people to be active in the winter. Sports such as hockey are pretty popular in Northern Michigan. Figure Skating would also be profitable. Other things like Drop-in, leagues, open skate, classes, and learn to skate would help as well.

Finally, the last reason Charlevoix should have an indoor ice rink is leagues, so people could come and play an organized sport. In support of this, it would be good for kids to play sports such as hockey or figure skating.

Also, if a kid needs something to do after school, an ice rink would be the perfect option. Let's see, hockey, not only is it good exercise, but people of all ages can play.

There are leagues for kids, mates, squirts, pee-wees, bantams, and high school. Also there is men's league where people over a certain age go and play hockey. Figure skating, people have trainers and they teach them how to figure skate.

If it's a good experience and if for any reason you can't leave Charlevoix to skate then you completely miss out.

This and all of the reasons above, is why Charlevoix needs an indoor ice rink!

inherent in the stones.

The 550-piece puzzle is made from recycled cardboard and soy-based paint.

The puzzles retail for $18.99 each.

Matt and Lisa have already augmented their line of puzzles by adding bookmarks, postcards, greeting cards and prints featuring the same "Rising Sun" image.

One card displays the photo on the front and the printed message inside is "You Rock."

Lisa grew up in Northern Michigan and has been an avid rock collector for as long as she can remember.

Matt, originally from New Hampshire, met Lisa when they were both spending a summer in Maine, working with troubled teens.

WHEN: July 4, 2009

WHERE: Charlevoix Township Fire Hall, US 131 S., Charlevoix, MI

WHAT: Rededication ceremony of the FIRST WORLD'S LARGEST CHERRY PIE, made in May 1976, listed among the top twenty National Bicentennial events. There will be a ribbon cutting ceremony and at 2:00 p.m. a flag raising ceremony with the US flag which the site has never had before along with a Fireman's flag for those who died while on duty. We especially will enjoy honoring Connor Currier of Troop 1812, Mackinaw Island Governor's Honor Guard and Troop 11 of Charlevoix sponsored by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club for 70 years, who chose to completely refurbish this site as his Eagle Scout Project for the B.S.A.

We would like to thank Dave Phillips, Jack Malpeli and John Haggard, just to name a few along with the entire Charlevoix Community for all your support. Without all of you this would not have been possible.

Fountain of youth fracas

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

It may not have caused a geyser of tears, but some area residents are upset over operation of Charlevoix's Fountain of Youth.

The interactive water fountain in Charlevoix's East Park was supposed to be for children to play in on hot summer days, but some parents say the fountain has been shut off when they arrive.

"I was down there with family and friends and the hours said 5 p.m. to 11 p.m., we were down there for 10 minutes at about 8:10 p.m., and by 8:30 p.m. it was turned off," said Jani Miller. "We

79th Venetian Festival expands days, activitiesBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Whether you're looking forward to old favorites like the carnival and fireworks, or new events like the Aqua-palooza party at Ferry Beach, the 79th Annual Venetian Festival has it all.

In addition to increasing the number of days this Venetian Week, there are also some new events and musical acts on the roster.

"The biggest new twist this year is the Venetian Beach Bash at Ferry Beach," said Venetian Festival Board President Dan Barron. "The Venetian board chose to parlay that venue by adding a concert performance on the pier at Ferry Beach."

In addition to boaters, waders in the water surrounding the pier, there will be musical performances by the band DeHurri cane out of Chicago.

The event will kick off at 3:30 p.m. and last until 7 p.m. on Saturday, July 18.

Parties are welcome to bring their beverages of choice by land or sea, and a concession stand will be on-site for hungry patrons.

"It's basically going to be an on-the-water party," said Irish Boat Shop Vice-president Jack Hodge. "Aqua-palooza is the world's largest on-water celebration, and it goes on for a couple weeks in July all across the country."

Irish is helping organize the event since they decided to sponsor the band.

"Anybody who wants to party and anybody who enjoys reggae, calypso-style music should come out for a good, fun time for all," he added.

For more information on the Aqua-palooza, visit www.aquapalooza.com.

A mainstay of Venetian week is Kid's Day.

"We've found that Lake Michigan beach has been a fantastic venue for kid's day," Barron said.

He added, "Not only will kids day return to Lake Michigan, but we will also see the return of the elephant Baby Laura."

Kid's Day is from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, July 23.

Free activities include, but are not limited to, Ragamuffin Theatre performances.

Kookie the Clown, petting zoo, bubble land, sack races, hoola-hoop contests, bean bag toss, face painting, free popcorn and balloon.

Paid activities are $8 for a wristband and include a ride on Laura the elephant, pony rides, craft-making, inflatable play area, Mongo the mechanical bull and the Rayder jump house.

Kid's Day also extends to See VENETIAN, page 21

Feindt Award winner

Samantha Higdon, (third from left) a 2009 graduate of East Jordan High School, was named the winner of this year's Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship offered by the Charlevoix Area Zonta. The Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship is awarded to a female high school senior who plans to pursue a math or science-related major in college. The scholarship recipient is chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields, excluding the medical field. Higdon was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because she best exemplified the spirit of, and requisites for, the scholarship. She will be attending the Michigan Technological University in the fall to pursue an Environmental Science/Biology major. She has taken advanced science and math courses and attended a Biology college course on Beaver Island and attended a science class in Boyne City when there were no other science courses offered at her school. She also has participated in numerous community and school-sponsored volunteer projects and events. Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women. The Mary Feindt Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta. Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in early spring, 2010.

No DQ for Wynkoop judge

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix's 90th District Judge Richard May remains on the violation of public trust case despite attempts to have him removed.

An opinion issued by Traverse City Judge Philip E. Rodgers Jr. on June 25, denied accused Wayne Wynkoop who filed motions to have May disqualified for apparent bias in favor of the special prosecutor on the case.

"The defendant is required to show actual bias. The defendant has failed to meet his burden," Rodgers stated. "Furthermore, this case is set for a jury trial. Judge May will not be the fact finder. He will not be assessing the credibility of witnesses."

He added, "As in any jury trial, the jurors will be instructed to absolutely disregard any impression they may have regarding the judge's personal opinions about the case."

Wynkoop filed the first motion to have May disqualified back on May 12.

Wynkoop's motion argued the charges that he violated the public trust by selling gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission, which later used the gravel to work on at least one road in Norwood Township where he was supervisor, were unconstitutional selective prosecution.

Wynkoop claimed his political enemies instigated the matter.

He also questioned whether May could, without bias, oversee a case where his colleague

Charlevoix 33rd Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas may be called as a witness.

Pajtas is a neighbor to Wynkoop and husband to an opponent of Wynkoop's long-disputed limestone quarry.

Wynkoop also claimed May and the special prosecutor presented an "unseemly public display of solidarity" during the May 12.

According to Wynkoop, the prosecutor approached the bench and shook hands with May.

According to May's affidavit on the matter, his mother had recently died and the prosecutor was offering condolences.

The charges of violating the public trust stem from 2007, when Wynkoop was still Norwood's supervisor.

In March, 2007, Wynkoop bid to sell gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission contingent upon his receiving a special use permit to operate his mine.

On May 21, 2007, Wynkoop recused himself from voting on a measure to approve road work on Lakeshore Road in Norwood Township citing a possible conflict of interest on the gravel.

Wynkoop received his special use permit to operate his gravel mine on July 9, 2007.

Wynkoop then sold $21,606.80 worth of road gravel to the Charlevoix County Road Commission, some of which was used on Lakeshore Road.

The 90-day, $500 misdemeanor charge came after a complaint was made by the lawyer for the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety—a group which opposes Wynkoop's sand and gravel operation Norwood Limestone Mine LLC.

Judge May will next hear Wynkoop's motion to quash the complaint at 1:30 p.m., July 16 in Charlevoix's District Court.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Where do we go from here?

A question I've asked myself lately since hearing and reading about death notices on TV and on line.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Maybe it's because I've reached an age in my life where comments like "who died" and "what's the weather report" are common place.

Is it me or did June seem like a month in which we lost a lot of people to cancer and other medical reasons?

Summer is a time to be living life to its fullest.

I want to die doing something I enjoy doing.

Sleeping is a top choice followed by napping.

Unfortunately I have a few fears about leaving the present world that I haven't come to grips with yet. I'd really miss a good glass of wine and the hugs from family and friends I dearly love.

I'd miss the firsts in each grandchild's life and the sound of them laughing.

I like to focus on living and enjoy each day as it comes.

Problems eventually work themselves out and bad days make you appreciate the good ones all the more.

Whenever another well known person is reported to have died, my visits with patients in the hospital and my own experiences with family quickly come to mind.

Though the thought of death is not appealing, I need to remind myself that when our souls leave our body there is peace, contentment and the ability to see things clearly as our lives pass by like a slide show.

I say this with conviction after speaking with a myriad of medical personnel who on a daily basis have witnessed a soul leaving a body and recalling what someone said once they had been medically dead and returned to life moments later.

I've listened to nurses discuss their seeing a blue colored light emanating from someone's chest when the patient has died.

I've read numerous comments about deceased family members greeting a person who is dying but for whatever reason the patient returns to life and recalls information of their own passing in detail.

I've met with mediums that mention feeling, hearing and sometimes seeing the presence of those that have passed.

It should bring some peace of mind listening to others share their personal story of family and friends who have faced a near death experience.

What is this next journey like?

Is there a heaven, a hell, a purgatory or limbo?

Sometimes I feel like those places are right here on earth.

Again, I need to make a note to myself that our presence here on earth is a mere blink of an eye time wise and we will all face a time when we will come in the presence with a greater being and review the good, the bad and the ugly.

When God has decided our time on the parking meter will no longer take another nickel we ask for forgiveness and spend our time trying to help those left behind.

It's nothing to fear.

If it is my time to find this light so many talk about, maybe I can continue working in the next life as an angel helping those that have lost their way.

I never was one who could sit still for long and I know there is probably a do list waiting for me in the after life.

Our future beyond this threshold depends in part on the way in which we have lived this life.

Information has been compiled describing hell as well as heaven recorded by individuals who have had near death experiences. Interview after interview concluded with a consensus that once someone was declared dead, these individuals found their senses intact, their bodies feeling healthy and whole.

They also felt frustration. They spoke but were not heard and were unable to experience the feeling of touch.

These individuals also discussed the ability to travel to other places just by thinking about where they would like to be.

Knowing this information can bring about a change in your behavior and hopefully reduce any of your fears of dying or dealing with the loss of someone you care so much about. If you are interested in reading more on this topic, Dr. Melvin Morse, a pediatrician wrote "Closer to the Light" after interviewing his young clients who honestly spoke only as a child could about their near death experiences.

Another excellent author on this topic is Dr. Kenneth Ring, a well respected psychiatrist who can settle the mind of any skeptic with his clear factual information.

Until my next article; enjoy life, each and every moment in this world and in the next.

Merely adequate not good enough

I spent about 30 years in the nuclear power industry, and for much of that time my job was to find and fix problems before they turned into accidents.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

The work was equal measures of nuclear safety, quality assurance, and risk mitigation, and my effectiveness was often measured in terms of what did not go wrong.

The most frustrating part of my job was trying to convince people that it was worth their time and trouble to prevent an obvious problem.

There just seems to some part of the human condition that is willing to plod along doing nothing to prevent something that's likely to happen.

We are a people willing to take risks we don't have to take, and we are prone to pretend the risk is much less than it really is.

I remember one power plant, for example, that had two identical water systems, systems A and B.

Each system was a maze of pumps and pipes running to and fro in a big room, and each system had dozens of valves for operators to open or close to send water all over the plant.

The problem: nothing was labeled or marked. That meant no one really knew for certain whether they were operating the right pump or twisting the right valve.

I saw this piping puzzle as an accident waiting to happen, but while plant management agreed a mistake was possible they insisted it was highly unlikely. They used three of the most common excuses for not doing what needs to be done: nothing has ever gone wrong before; we've always done it that way; and that won't happen to me.

Two weeks later an operator got mixed up in the unmarked maze, and opened the wrong valve. A lot of water poured into a place it should never have gone.

At times like that you realize nobody wants to hear "I told you so."

You can also see throughout our personal lives this odd reluctance to prevent problems by avoiding what we know to be risky behavior.

Despite the documented perils of tobacco use, for example, last year Americans lit up $40 billion worth.

Smokers shell out big bucks per pack knowing that sooner or later they'll suffer heart attack, cardio-vascular damage, emphysema, stroke or cancer.

And despite the certain benefits of wearing safety belts and strapping kids into car seats, it takes the threat of a state police ticket to move people to click it

Government, which is supposed to be of, by, and for the people, doesn't have any better track record. Historically, regulations and controls are only put in place after an accident. We get serious about fixing aged bridges or replacing old gas lines only after they fall down or blow up. We only think about regulating banks and financial institutions after the economy tanks.

And as for private industry, we see that airlines get highly motivated to make the recommended upgrades to their fleet only after one drops out of the sky, and toy makers somehow never get around to checking on what Chinese manufacturers put into toys until after our kids get sick.

In college we called the idea of doing just well enough to squeak by "2.5 and survive." It was a statement that a person was striving for mediocrity and had no intention of doing their best to invest in themselves or their own future. The intentionally underperforming "2.5 and survive" student had given up on doing their best or achieving their full potential.

Apathy causes particular problems when people apply the "2.5 and survive" mentality to relationships.

People who are slow to invest in themselves are even more reluctant to invest in others, and relationships erode. As the level of caring investment falls, the risk of failure goes up. Still, people are willing to accept the risk that

How is it that so many backward thinking individuals get elected to the Charlevoix City Council or County Commission?

There are board members on the County Commission who don't seem to understand what a land bank is or how it operates.

There are people in elected positions who continually ask for "further study" until it's studied to death and either becomes so much more expensive it cannot be done or is off the table because the time-frame has expired.

There are many projects in Charlevoix County that were over-studied but eventually done; late but done. Each one has become a boon for the area. Two that easily come to mind are the Community Pool, which now needs more space and the re Three cheers for Venetian cently completed East Park and Band Shell. Congratulations on accomplishing them.

Fie on you for the incessant delays. Come on, get up to date. Look forward, not backward. Progress is a good thing. And, before asking for more study, learn what it is a Commissioner is supposed to know and know it before being faced with a decision.

an avoidable problem might devastate their marriage, their family, their work or their church.

We followers of Jesus Christ often demonstrate the same attitude when it comes to our faith and the way we live our lives. It reflects how even we who profess Jesus as savior sometimes avoid taking Him as lord over our lives.

Rather than working to develop the best possible relationship with Heaven we adopt a posture of minimal compliance, of putting forth the absolute least amount of effort to barely get by. We forget that one day we will be held accountable for the actions we take and the words that come out of our mouths.

When we stop seeking Him we begin to merely go through the motions of trusting, obeying, forgiving, and praying. When we settle for merely getting by we never realize the full blessing of our relationship with Jesus.

Three cheers for Venetian

It's coming

Can you feel it?
It's almost here.

Whether you're into Ferris wheels and dart games, music acts and cocktails on the waterfront or parades and sporting events, the Charlevoix Venetian Festival truly has it all.

And, frankly, we cannot wait for the 79th Venetian Festival to begin.

Among this year's line-up of returning favorite bands and first-time national headliners, you will find the Beach Bash down at Ferry Beach with live entertainment right on the water. Bring your boat and pack your cooler for this unique event which kicks off the Venetian Festival a full day earlier than in years past.

Not to mention—but we're going to anyway—the huge line-up of sports from basketball and soccer to the ever-growing Ryan Shay elite mile foot race down Bridge Street.

This year the Venetian Board has worked with the city to offer Venetian Vision, where you and your family not only get to watch a classic family-friendly film on the high-tech big screen in the new East Park pavilion, but you also get to vote on which movie gets played.

Go to www.charlevoixcourier.com to cast your vote for one of the following: E.T. The Extraterrestrial, Indiana Jones and the Raiders of the Lost Ark, Ghostbusters or Grease.

We're voting for Ghostbusters.

Then there are the many events on Kids' Day, Thursday, July 23 down at Lake Michigan Beach.

Returning this year is Laura the Elephant along with all the Kids' Day favorites—many of which are free.

We just cannot thank the Venetian Board and the hundreds of volunteers enough for making this spectacle of community spirit and main street magic come alive.

Not only are most of the Venetian events free of charge, but this nearly quarter-of-a-million-dollar week-long event is funded by private donations.

Aside from the premium musical acts seen throughout the week, the other really big expenses are the Friday and Saturday night fireworks displays.

Right now the Venetian Board says the Friday night fireworks are tentative based on financial contributions.

Hey, we understand that many of us have had a rough year. And, we're not asking anyone in dire straits to cough up any cash.

But, if you are one of the fortunate ones who can afford to give $10, $20, $50, $100 or more to help preserve one of the truly great fireworks displays in the nation this Venetian Friday, July 24, we ask that you do so.

Not only is the Venetian Festival and its many amenities a cause of joy for locals and visitors alike, but it's one of the main reasons Charlevoix continues to be a four-season tourist destination.

The bright lights and big festival attracts folks from all over the world. And, once they see how beautiful Charlevoix is, they tend to stick around, and keep coming back.

For whatever reason you decide to support the Venetian Festival—be it fun or fiscal—we urge you to do so.

See you in the park.

From Ukraine, with art oh BOIX!

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

When Ukrainian-born Alla Johnson talks about art, her passion overrides the concern that she may not be using precisely the right words.

"I can do oils. I can do watercolor, collage, batik—it doesn't matter for me," she said. "If I feel something, I just do it."

Johnson is a member of The Jordan River Arts Council and The Charlevoix Circle of Arts. The Circle of Arts group meets weekly at various outdoor locations for Plein Air painting and the chance to discuss and critique each other's work.

The term "Plein (pronounced 'plain') Air Painting" refers to a tradition of painting landscapes in real time, in the environment itself.

"Plein Air painting means open air. It is like Impressionism," Johnson explained. "You must be outside and paint something quickly before something moves, or the light is different. Before it changes."

An avid disciple of her craft, Johnson began drawing and painting as a child in Poltava, Ukraine.

She met her husband, Mark, through mutual friends when he visited Poltava, and the couple married in the fall of 2006.

She moved with him to his home in Charlevoix and has continued to produce a prolific body of work since her arrival in Michigan.

Johnson is usually working on at least one project.

The canvas currently resting on the easel in her home studio depicts the suggestion of three large, vibrant flowers.

"The good mood creates inspiration, and inspiration is a miracle," she said as she produced a detailed pencil sketch of the painting in progress from a stack on her worktable. "I draw it out first. That is the way I was taught."

Johnson's home is another outlet for her creative talent. Sunflowers splash the doors of kitchen cabinets, the powder room mirror is framed in a colorful mosaic and textural flowers sprout from the baseboards and climb the wall.

"I do painting on fabrics, too," she said, offering a photo of a scarf decorated with entwined flowers and butterflies. "For 10 years in Ukraine, I worked with pre-school and elementary school kids. Their artworks went to a lot of children's exhibitions. My students became winners very often and I was very happy and proud for them."

Johnson recalled that art and music were considered an important part of the Ukrainian student's curriculum. "There was always a concert or preparing for shows and programs. Always something was going on," she said.

Several of Johnson's paintings are currently on display at The Crooked Tree Art Center and The Charlevoix Circle of Arts, as well as The Blue Heron Gallery in Elk Rapids and Evergreen Gallery in Traverse City.

One of her recent works is a rendering in oils of Castle Farms that was purchased by the venue's owner.

"I like to do them all," she said of her favorite medium. "With watercolors, it's a masterpiece when it looks fresh. It seems so easy—just water and paint—but it's difficult to control."

Johnson said adapting to life in a new country has been an interesting challenge.

When Johnson's friends from home visit, they bring special ingredients for native dishes that are difficult or impossible to find in Northern Michigan.

And, she just got her first driver's license a year ago.

"I always took the bus in Ukraine," she said. "Here everything is so different. Different language, different food, different friends..." She paused and searched for the words to describe her thoughts. The ones she chose made her laugh. "I feel like a baby—2 and-a-half years old."

But, the changes in her life did not arrive without a premonition.

"I had a dream 15 years ago," she said. "It was so real. A voice tells me 'You will live in America, but not now.'"

SPRING ARBOR UNIVERSITY

Rebecca Dionne of East Jordan and Ellen MacDonald of Charlevoix received master of art/counseling degrees from Spring Arbor University during commencement exercises on Saturday, May 16.

Huh?

It used to be that a parent or grandparent would be the one most likely to say "huh?" during a conversation with a (grand)child. Nowadays, the tables seem to have turned. According to a recent poll commissioned by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), high school students are more likely than adults to say "what?" or "huh?" during normal conversation. Just as telling, the youngsters are more likely than their elders to say that they need to turn up the volume, as well as experience ringing in their ears. Taken together, these are three of four symptoms of hearing loss. Most hearing experts blame listening to loud music with earphones for the increase in hearing loss among youngsters.

P.S. Teens are less likely to admit to having a hearing loss until a hearing test provides them with clear proof.

Flowers, artists, trains at garden walk

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club invites everyone with a penchant for plantings to attend their Eleventh Annual Garden Walk from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, July 15.

The event showcases the floral displays of three in-town homes, one working farm and the commercial gardens of Bolt Studio and Castle Farms.

The theme for this year's walk is "A Palette of Charlevoix Gardens."

"We'll have an artist in every garden doing plein air paintings," Jackie Krutsh said.

Krutsh and Karen Benning are co-chairs of this year's walk.

"Two of the gardens we'll visit feature running model trains, including one on the lake," said Krutsh.

Tickets may be purchased prior to the date for $10, or for $12 on the day of the walk.

Call 237-4294 for ticket information.

In conjunction with the walk, "A Royal Luncheon" is scheduled in the afternoon from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Castle Farms.

Tickets for the luncheon are $25 and available only by advance purchase.

Co-chairing the luncheon are Charlevoix Area Garden Club members Joyce Reznick and Pat Sessler.

Luncheon tickets may be purchased at Castle Farms Gift Shop, or by calling 237-0028.

Charlevoix baseball looking strong

Charlevoix's 11 and 12-year-old baseball players won all three games against Boyne City, Traverse City and East Jordan in recent play.

"We won our pool with a 3-0 record," said assistant coach Allen Telgenhof.

Boyne City, Traverse City and East Jordan all finished 1-2.

Boyne will move on as the 2nd place team due to the tie-breaker.

Game was against Boyne City, which lost 2-1.

"Shane Sutherland pitched a complete game two-hitter, walking three and striking out nine," Telgenhof said. "Nate Moon had two hits and scored both Charlevoix runs."

Logan Eckhardt singled for Charlevoix.

Ethan Campbell doubled in Boyne's run.

Cory Redman threw three shutout innings for Boyne City.

In game two, it was Charlevoix 6, Traverse City East 5.

Sutherland drove in the winning run with a walk-off two-run double in the bottom of the sixth to cap a tremendous Charlevoix comeback.

Traverse City led 5-0 after four innings.

Charlevoix scored three in the bottom of the fifth on a Noah Certa single, Austin Putman walk, Sutherland RBI single, Moon fielders choice and two Traverse City passed balls.

In the sixth with one out, Justin Pearl walked, Certa reached on an error and Putman drilled an RBI single to set up Sutherland's blast.

Moon picked up the pitching victory in relief of Eckhardt.

In game three, it was Charlevoix 12, East Jordan 2.

Ryan Joy, Moon and Putman combined on a five inning mercy rule no-hitter.

Sutherland singled, tripled, scored four runs and had two RBI.

Putman had two hits and scored three runs.

Moon singled, doubled and drove in five runs.

Luke Klinger had an RBI double.

Eckhardt singled and walked twice.

The 3 on 3 basketball team events begin with a 3 on 3 basketball tournament scheduled for Saturday July 18.

The "Basketball Beach Hash" moves to a new location and earlier date than in the past.

Ferry Avenue Beach is the new site and playing prior to Venetian Week is the new date. Sport manager, Boogie Carlson feels the new site gives much more room for both participants and spectators and the early date gives them a backup date of Sunday in case of rain.

The two full courts provide excellent facilities and the paved parking lots accommodated all the additional courts needed and the additional benefit of having the lake to cool off and the beach to provide more fun for the family, will provide for an excellent event.

Official registration forms are available at the City Recreation office. Additional information may be received at (231) 675-4561.

Soccer — on Tuesday July 21, with finals scheduled for Wednesday July 22.

There will be 3 on 3 soccer at Shanahan Field as in the past.

Both boys and girls brackets will be designed for all ages through adult.

Entry forms can be secured at the City Recreation office. The event is managed by Carol Madison and Tom Colan.

For more information call 348-3317 or 675-3122.

Co-ed volleyball — A tournament for co-ed beach volleyball teams will be held at the Ferry Avenue Beach sand courts Saturday afternoon, July 25 after the street parade.

Teams must play three female and three male players. Official registration forms are available at the City Hall Recreation department or at 1 p.m. at the courts. For more information contact Chris Seymour at 547-6513.

Team croquet — This is a two-person event that has been very popular both for spectators and participants.

It is scheduled for 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 21 and is held at East Park.

There are several flights, with the first being the service club matches where local groups against each other.

One of the hottest competitions finds the two fire departments—City of Charlevoix vs. the Charlevoix Township—squaring off with the winner having the right to have their trucks first in the popular street parade.

Then there is the open flight which has both adults and youth playing for the Venetian crown.

The Charlevoix version of "cottage croquette" has a few wrinkles that make the game fun for participation and spectator alike. Contestants may just show up at East Park to participate.

Call Dave Fowler at 547-9314 for more information.

Sailing — The annual Venetian Cup Sailing Regatta is indeed a team sport.

Each of the nearly 100 sail boats making up this popular event train a team of deckhands that provide a spectacular sight on Lake Charlevoix Wednesday evening, July 22.

Fleets featuring several different sizes and makes of boats are handicapped so that all racers have an equal chance to become the Venetian Cup winner.

Entry forms and more information may be obtained at the city recreation department.

For more information call Rod Tinney at 536-3447.

Whether you appear as a games participant or as a spectator fan, there is a variety of events and a week jammed with exciting sporting events.

Look for a review of individual sports in next week's Venetian sports preview.

Pool school

Over the last few weeks staff members from the Charlevoix Area Community Pool have presented Water Safety talks to area schools. Staff members have visited Charlevoix Elementary, Charlevoix Middle and Lincoln Elementary of Petoskey. The Water Safety talks focused on: Swimming in a Supervised Area, How to put on a Life Jacket, The H.E.L.P. and Huddle positions and Boating Safety. Pool Director, Al Gooch shows Charlevoix Elementary students that four or five men drown to every one woman.

Are You on Track toward Your Financial Objectives?

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

It's been almost two years since turmoil began in the financial markets. And during that time, your own financial picture, along with that of virtually every other investor, has probably changed. Still, you can do a lot to get back on track toward the future you've envisioned — and you can start today.

What moves should you make? Here are a few to consider:

- Assess your current situation. You're well aware of the change in your portfolio's value over the past two years, and you may well have already made some adjustments. But if you're going to position yourself properly for the future, you need to review your entire financial situation: your savings, spending, investments, insurance and income needs. Only then can you chart the course that's right for you.

- Re-evaluate your goals. Since you are already reviewing your financial picture, now is a good time to also re-examine your goals. Would you like to help pay for a child's college education? Do you know when you plan to retire? When you do retire, what sort of lifestyle do you envision? If you haven't already done so, identify your goals and try to put a price tag on them.

- Review your strategy for reaching your goals. Once you know about how much money your goals may require, you'll need to review your savings and investment strategies to determine if they are likely to provide sufficient funds. You'll need to look at your investment mix to see if it's providing the right combination of growth and income opportunities. At the same time, you'll want to analyze your feelings about investment risk. Before the market decline, many investors believed they were more comfortable with risk than they actually were. Because different investments carry different levels of risk, it's essential that you know your risk tolerance and factor it into your investment decisions.

- Start making necessary changes. To attain the goals you've identified, you may well need to make some changes. For example, during the most recent bear market, the value of your growth-oriented investments likely fell considerably, which means these investments may now make up a smaller percentage of your portfolio, relative to income-oriented vehicles. Yet to achieve your long-term objectives, you may need a good amount of exposure to investments that have the potential to provide growth, such as stocks. Consequently, you may need to rebalance your portfolio, possibly with the help of a professional financial advisor — someone who knows your goals, risk tolerance, family situation and other key factors.

- Be flexible. After you've identified your goals and revised your investment strategy accordingly, you have taken some important steps — but you're still not done. None of us can predict what will happen in our lives, and as we've seen, the financial markets are equally unpredictable. So you will need to be flexible with your investment moves and prepared to make changes as necessary.

In short, establish an investment strategy that's right for your needs and follow it as best you can, but be prepared to adjust your path as time goes by. By staying diligent, you can help yourself advance toward your important goals — in all economic environments.

Cool boats, hot cars in East Jordan

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The South Arm Classic Boat and Car Show will present their fourth annual summer celebration of vintage watercraft, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, July 11, at the Memorial Park in East Jordan.

The waterfront event showcases a range of venerable vessels and draws collectors, restoration buffs and enthusiasts statewide to participate in a day devoted to classic boats and cars.

"The first year that we held the event, we only had six boats," said show director Darrin Podskalny. "This year we expect to have almost 50. I think everyone who attends enjoys the beautiful setting we have here on Lake Charlevoix."

Podskalny participated as an exhibitor in boat shows before organizing the South Arm Classic four years ago.

Admission for spectators is free.

The show features premiere homes in the legacy of aquatic recreation, such as Garwood, Thompson, Arista Craft, Lyman, Century, Chris Craft and more.

There will also be kayaks, canoes, antique outboards and riverboats on display. Boats will be presented on dry land and in the water.

Podskalny appreciates classic watercraft, especially boats made in Michigan.

"When you see an old Skipper-Craft or Wondercraft, it ties in with a lot of old memories of growing up in the area," he said.

Among the many traditional fiberglass boats and wooden runabouts scheduled to participate is the last Century Resorter to roll off the line when that model ceased production in 1962.

Chris Smith from Holland will attend with his Chris Craft Sea Skiff.

Smith is the grandson of Chris Craft's founder Christopher Columbus Smith, and he will be on hand to sign copies of his book, "Chris Smith: A Collection of Short Stories."

There will be live musical entertainment in the park's band pavilion and the Lion's Club will host a barbecue. Cottage and marine crafts and merchandise will be available.

The family-friendly festivities include a special booth for children, offering kids the opportunity to build their own boat.

Vintage cars will also be represented.

Recognition for the captain's choice and people's choice are awarded to the boats judged best in show.

Bucks for the band

President Armand Drapeau of the Jordan Valley Community Band accepts a $900 grant for the 2008-2009 season presented by Maureen Radke of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. These monies have been used to provide blinders and music protectors for each player in addition to supplementing the director's stipend and two $150 scholarships for area students to attend Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp. The Jordan Valley Community Band, composed of musicians of all ages from the surrounding area, performs two concerts a year at the East Jordan Community Auditorium in December and May. During the summer, the band will be performing in the Bendshell in East Jordan on Thursday nights throughout July. Performances begin at 7:30 p.m. If you play an instrument and wish to participate in the band and/or wish further information, please contact President Armand Drapeau at 536-2938.

Executives on loan for United Way

Hoping to mobilize the power of the business community to benefit the community as a whole, Char-Em United Way is starting a Loaned Executive Program.

Employees from local businesses, people in transition between jobs, as well as retirees, are encouraged to apply to the program.

Loaned Executives lend their expertise and energy to assist United Way staff in communicating the needs of the community to the giving public.

They receive thorough training that includes local resources, public speaking, leadership, sales, and communication.

The Loaned Executives then meet with local businesses, civic and service clubs, and small groups of donors in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties to promote the United Way Campaign.

A group of past loaned executives from other United Ways is helping develop a program for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

"I know how valuable the experience can be for a young employee," says Scott MacKenzie, CEUW's Campaign Co-Chair. "As a Loaned Executive to the United Way in Greensboro NC, I gained communication and leadership skills and learned a great deal about community needs and resources. It's an experience I would recommend for people seeking to build their skills and networks."

Businesses find that, by providing a Loaned Executive to the United Way, they improve their corporate image and positively impact community life. In addition, the employee gains skills that translate back to the workplace.

"We want to stress that this program is not just for 'Executives' per se," says Bob Noll, a retiree from UPS. "The Loaned Executive Program provides great experience for front line employees being groomed for more responsibility. In addition, I would encourage retirees hoping to keep their skills and interests sharp to volunteer in this role."

A half day training for Loaned Executives will be held in early August. Following that, the "LEs" will make contacts with local businesses and other groups to engage their support for United Way.

It is expected that the commitment will take 2-4 hours per week from mid August through October, but more limited availability will be considered.

For more information or an application form, contact Martha Lancaster at United Way at 231-487-1006 or martha@charunitedway.org. The next meeting of the Loaned Executive Steering Committee will be held Wednesday July 8 at 9:30 a.m. at the United Way office.

79th Venetian Festival expands days, activities

the downtown carnival with $15 armbands—which offer the bearer unlimited rides—or $1 per ticket.

Another new event this year is "Venetian Vision" the evening of Monday, July 20, in East Park.

"We were excited to find that the performance pavilion includes the audio/video component to provide a drive-in-type movie venue," Barron said. "There's no better place than Venetian to debut movies in East Park."

Be sure to cast your vote for which family-friendly movie you would like to see played on the big screen of the new Clarence Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park.

The choices are:

- E.T. The Extraterrestrial
- Ghostbusters
- Raiders of the Lost Ark
- Grease

Cast your vote by going to www.charlevoixcounier.com. This year's line-up of Venetian Games is unsurpassed.

"We feel that the organization and participation in Venetian Games remains rock solid and we anticipate an event greater participation and turnout in the foot races and elite Ryan Shay Mile, which are now staged on Saturday morning prior to the street parade," Barron said.

Returning this year will be the Venetian Tiki Tent during the week-long Rhythms of Venetian concert series.

"We're looking forward to the debut of the Tiki tent stage which will facilitate nonstop entertainment in East Park throughout each evening as the performances will occur one hour prior to the feature acts, and during concert breaks," Barron said.

Once again the Tiki tent will offer a view of the harbor and adult beverages including beer, wine and wine-cooler-type drinks. From the Venetian Tiki Tent you will hear musical acts ranging from classic rock to Motown hits to country superstars.

Both acts have hit songs in the top 20.

"On Thursday (July 23) Mitch Ryder will perform at Venetian for the first time," Barron said. "His 1960s Detroit rock-n-roll led the way for such high-energy Detroit rockers as Ted Nugent and Bob Seger."

The Countours will again grace the Rhythms of Venetian stage again to sing their Motown favorites. They last performed at Venetian in 2002.

The festival will be punctuated by one of the nation's biggest and best fireworks shows on Friday (tentatively scheduled) and Saturday evenings.

"We will be having another sensational harbor fireworks show on Saturday evening," Barron said. "Round Lake Harbor serves as a perfect pyrotechnic amphitheater facilitating one of the most unique and intense displays in the country."

He added, "Due to financial concerns, the Friday evening 'Night Sky' fireworks display over Lake Charlevoix has been planned on a tentative basis only. The festival is prepared to confirm and proceed with the Friday night fireworks if sufficient financial contributions are received."

For much, much more on the festival, be sure to get our copy of the 79th Annual Venetian Festival guide in future editions of the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review.

"Venetian excitement's in the air and we're ready and raring to go," Barron said.

"This is Barron's 11th season of overseeing and working to make the festival a success. "I just feel it's a great way for me to give my resources back to this fantastic town," he said.

Federal aid: Boon or Band-Aid?
Stimulus funds save schools, for nowBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Local school districts may be breathing a collective sigh of relief now that stimulus funds have been approved.

However, officials warn the $370-per-pupil cuts narrowly averted this last budget year could still loom over the 2009-2010 budget year.

"It's a very frustrating situation, not only for us, but nearly every school district as we look forward," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools

Chet Janik.

Charlevoix Public Schools and Northwest Academy in Charlevoix were both notified last Friday, July 10 that they would be receiving the stimulus funds.

According to Charlevoix Public Schools Business Manager Shawn Biddle, with a general enrollment of 1,188 last year, Charlevoix Public Schools would have lost $442,939 if they had not applied and been approved for the stimulus funds.

"We should be getting ours on Wednesday (July 15)," Biddle said.

Northwest Academy School Administrator John Bailey said his school, too, would have suffered without the funding from the federal government.

"We're going to be OK," he said. "The word was that we were approved and should receive our funding Friday or soon after."

With 101 students, Northwest would have lost nearly $37,370 from their 2008-2009 budget.

"I hope all the schools know about this. I've talked to a few superintendents who were not sure if their schools had applied," Bailey said.

The deadline to apply for the funding is July 31.

Though there has been talk about what next year's potential cuts could be, Janik said the entire process is a guessing game.

"It changes constantly," he said. "In January they said the deficit was going to be $34 million. In April it was $210 million and by the end of May they were saying it was going to be over $400 million."

Janik added, "In fairness, I don't think six to nine months ago anyone would have predicted the situation we're in now."

The real question Janik and Bailey have now is: "How much, if any, will the state cut next year?"

"All the information from the State of Michigan is there is no good news on the horizon, and to anticipate a similar situation for the 2009-2010 year," Janik said.

Bailey said he, too, has heard rumblings from the state about the potential for cuts in next year's foundation allowance—the amount of money allotted per student to the schools.

"We have no idea how much money we're going to get next year, but six weeks ago I was told it was going to be a $260 reduction for this year and a like amount for next year, so I'm guessing it's going to be at least another $370-a-student."

Nine maids a vying

The nine young women vying for this year's title of Venetian Queen are in for some tough competition.

Miss Charlevoix 2009 candidates must be 16 to 22 years old, have a primary residence in Charlevoix or have graduated from the Charlevoix School District, be single, never have been married and have no children.

Candidates for this year's Miss Charlevoix crown are Celina Wanek, Taylor Storm, Hillary Lutz, Francesca Sardum, Erica Moses, Tammy Potter, Krista Pischner, Megan Klooster and Brooke Nemchak.

Megan, daughter of Nathan and Joy Klooster, will be a senior at Charlevoix High School this coming school year.

"I hope to go to college, hopefully Michigan State, to go into nursing or interior design," said the Charlevoix High School Band member, Sunday school teacher and softball player.

"It would just be an honor to represent Charlevoix in any way possible," Klooster said.

Tammy Potter is the daughter of Barry and Lisa Potter. She graduated this year from Charlevoix High School.

"I'm planning on going to Alma College and pursuing an elementary education degree," she said. "I'll also be playing volleyball and basketball." Potter added, "I really like Charlevoix as a community and I'd really like to represent it."

Celina Wanek is the daughter of Thomas and Becky

Wanek.

She plans on attending college in the Pacific Northwest and hopes to receive a degree in international studies and possibly follow that by joining UNICEF of peace corps.

Taylor Storm is the daughter of David and Debbie Storm.

Taylor plans on attending a four-year school studying pre-dental.

"I want to make the most of my senior year and do really well in all my sports," she said. "My biggest goal really is to get into a good school; possibly Grand Valley State, Oakland, or grand valley and focus on my studies."

Storm added, "I had never really thought about dentistry but I did my concen-

State, Libert negotiating over Le Griffon

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The battle between maritime explorers and the State of Michigan over the identity of what some believe is 330-year-old French ship Le Griffon is up for negotiation.

The latest legal wrangling in this five-year-long case over the ship came on June 25 when U.S. District Judge Robert Holmes Bell granted the State's motion to postpone a decision on who has constructive possession of the wreckage site in question.

"It appearing that the parties are in the process of resolving some of the issues in this action ... the court will grant the motion and will adjourn the hearing on intervenors' motion for summary judgment until (1:15 p.m. on Oct. 15)," Holmes wrote.

Though the two have been previously at odds over what could be the ship that sank in 1679 in Lake Michigan, State of Michigan officials sent Great Lakes Exploration an undisclosed proposal in recent months to apparently settle the matter.

"They sent us a proposal and we sent them a counter proposal," said Great Lakes Exploration Group historian Richard Gross. "We don't know how far apart we are until we see their response to our response."

Great Lakes Exploration Group head Steve Libert has always maintained that a public-private partnership will be the best way to investigate the site.

"I believe the postponement for GLEG and the State of Michigan to work out a positive, cooperative, working relationship without the determination of the court will benefit both parties," he said.

Despite his hope for this latest development, Libert took issue with recent Associated Press reports that the state of Michigan was working with France on the negotiations.

The state's actual assertion in papers filed June 17 in U.S. District Court were, "The State of Michigan and France have had preliminary discussions regarding possible settlement of the issue of ownership ... Also, the state, France and plaintiff Great Lakes Exploration Group ... have exchanged drafts of a proposal to conduct a phase II investigation of the defendant shipwreck for the purpose of determining its identity."

According to French officials, they are neither negotiating with the state or participating in the investigation at this point.

"France ... had only one meeting with the technical departments of the State of Michigan," stated Aurelien Lechevalier, chief of staff, protocol, decorations at the French Embassy in Washington D.C. in an e-mailed response to questions. "I think it's excessive to say that France has a role in the negotiations which are ongoing between Great Lakes and the State of Michigan. France is not participating actively in the negotiations."

Despite repeated attempts to contact officials from the Michigan Attorney General's office, calls were not returned by press time.

"France has international rights on the shipwreck of Le Griffon. France has proved to the Department of State and the federal judge by transferring specific historical documents that ... la Salle's expedition to Lake Michigan in 1679 was both a commercial enterprise and an official—though discreet—mission sent by King Louis XIV to establish settlements around the Great Lakes and along the Mississippi River," Emmanuel Lenain, spokesman, press counselor for the French Embassy in Washington, D.C. stated in an e-mailed response to questions. "France has never abandoned its rights on Le Griffon; it would never have done so. According to international law, France possesses the property rights on Le Griffon and its artifacts."

Currently, scientists for Great Lakes Exploration are putting together a plan on how the future investigation and identification of the wreckage will be undertaken should they win the right to study the site.

Lenain said a French team could be available to participate in a joint identification effort if and when the time is right.

If Great Lakes Exploration and the State of Michigan can agree to cooperate on the matter, Lenain said France would be happy to work with federal and local agencies to preserve Le Griffon's place in American history as France's as asserted "rights are officially recognized and protected."

"There is no will and resources to bring Le Griffon back to France," he wrote. "Le Griffon belongs to the French-American history and friendship and hopefully one day the American and international public will have the opportunity to admire it in an American Museum."

Meanwhile, Libert said recent surveys of the wreckage area show promise.

"The June 10 sub-bottom survey indicated something massive below the suspected bow sprit," he said. "We are all very excited and anticipate the final report soon."

The ship in question was built in the late 1600s by Rene Robert Cavalier Sieur de La Salle, a man instrumental in the Louisiana Purchase.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Letters that make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Thoughtful plants

The words "community" and "communication" derive from a root word that means roughly "sharing."

Certainly some sort of communication is necessary if there is to be a viable community, whether a human one or one made up of the plants and animals in a particular place.

We can pretty clearly understand the communication that supports a human community, but how plants and animals communicate is less clear.

Animals are like us and have the capacity for movement, producing sound, and often visual signals. But how do plants communicate, either with one another or even with themselves?

Most of plant communication is chemical, much like our and other animals' sense of smell is basically chemical. Plants that are being eaten by some sort of insect begin producing chemicals that waft around to other plants of the same kind or even to non-relatives. The chemicals induce the formation of insect repellent materials by any downwind plants.

Many messages involve only internal communication by single plants. We all recognize when we need a haircut or a manicure, but how do plants know?

Our local trees know. Many of our street side maples are in the process of discarding some of their leaves.

In the exuberance of last fall and this spring, some, maybe even most, of those trees developed a large number of embryonic leaves.

The realities of summer, with droughts and insects, suggest to the Maples that not all those leaves are necessary or desirable.

Some fraction of what are perfectly healthy leaves are positively discarded by the trees, who then face summer with closer to the "right" number of leaves.

How do the trees know which leaves or just how many? They lack any sort of nervous system like that of animals, yet they manage to let one part of the tree know what is needed by the other parts.

Some plants have internal mechanisms for measuring the size of the plant.

Consider it a sort of weight control mechanism.

Our local Jack-in-the-Pulpit doesn't begin producing seeds until the tuber from which it grows is of a certain size.

Some of the messages about size can be remarkably precise. A Western relative of our Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Western Skunk Cabbage, will not bloom until its below-ground rhizome is 17 milimeters in diameter. No matter how old the plant is, the message of how large it is must be communicated before blooming can begin.

Lacking nerves, the plants must be generating internal chemical signals, but we do not yet know the nature of those chemicals.

We are only beginning to learn how and to what extent plants communicate.

Since they live as parts of communities, it should come as no surprise that they do communicate.

We won't hear or likely see their messages, but we can be sure they are there.

Guano on my house

Pasture onto the deck in my back yard. I took the morning's first sip of coffee before setting the cup down in front of my favorite chair. I cranked the patio umbrella halfway open and a bat fell out onto the glass-topped table.

"Aaaaammmeee!" I said, recoiling inside of the drooping canvas.

I probably wouldn't have realized it was a bat if I hadn't seen my head hadn't been tucked underneath the umbrella as I wound it open.

The rodent grenade missed me by inches and dropped like the opposite of manna, with a soft plop. It was roughly the size of one-half of an Almond Joy candy bar and it appeared to be deceased.

At first I wasn't sure what it was, and I didn't particularly want to know. Reluctant to employ scrutiny, I let it register in my peripheral vision. Brown, furry and grossly subdued equals dead mouse. That was all the information I needed. I headed for the house to find a vacuum remover and settled on two sections of yesterday's paper.

How did a mouse get up inside the umbrella? I thought. Did I squash it when I closed the thing last night, or did it climb in later? What kind of mouse scales glass and wrought iron to hang out anyway? A rabid crazy one, that's what. And why does unpleasant phenomena always seem to occur when I'm sleep-addled and least equipped to deal with it?

Experience has taught me that when faced with disposing of a body, it's best to be quick and not give it too much thought. The heebie-jeebies can escalate into the whammies and before you know it, you're contemplating all manner of dire solutions, including arson.

I took a few practice scoops with the folded paper, keeping the subject in soft focus. It couldn't weigh much. I could shovel it up and then what? I returned to the house for a wastebasket with a plastic liner. Okay.

Juxtaposing the creased classifieds with the sports section, I teased them together under the unfortunate beast. "Eek," it said, and spread one sticky black wing in protest.

"EFFFFF!" I responded, suddenly aware of what I was dealing with. I abandoned the project and retreated a few steps to reconsider.

I'm afraid of bats. It has a little to do with Dracula and a lot more to do with close-up photographs I've seen of their feral fanged faces captured in mid-scream. The way they use the tips of their wings like diabolical crutches and their nose - Dear God, their nose!

It's a phobia, and there is nothing that can be done to chide a phobic into rational thought. Logic is lost on someone rotating within a fear cycle. We tend to be irrational when confronted by our worst nightmare. It's the nature of the beast.

My dilemma squirmed a little and tucked the jostly limb back in, obviously perturbed by the interruption of its REM repose. It was lethargic, which would work in my favor.

Before I could chicken out, I laddied it into the newspaper trough and headed for the railing, stuttering "ugh, ugh, ugh" and moving as if I were walking on hot coals.

The cargo writhed fretfully and I had time to imagine that it might rally on instinct and make a break for it.

As it rose, I would, of course, run right into it and it would cling to my face like a life preserver before I crashed through the railing and plummeted, probably not to my death, but certainly to my extreme discomfort, a bat muffled my screams.

I reached the rail without incident and dropped my nightmare over the side. I watched with a combination of revulsion and relief as it spread its wings and floated to the ground in a lazy spiral, where it would wait, I supposed, for nightfall.

It would wait, breathing through the horrible slits, flexing the leathery membranes connected to its appendages. It would be hale and hearty by sundown, but my shirt, to be sure, would be forever diminished.

LETTERS to the editor

Big thanks

Editor,

A big thanks to the Charlevoix city cemetery crew that tends to the maintenance and up-keep of St. Mary's Catholic cemetery. It's a pleasure going there several times a week to water the flower planters on our family graves. I especially want to thank Bob McGhee, the cemetery sexton, for his kindness and all the time he spent with me reviewing our cemetery plots. Also Mrs. Klooster at City Hall. We are very fortunate to have people such as these employed by our city.

Nancy Northup

The class of 1989 held their 20th class reunion on June 27th at Veteran's Memorial Park Pavilion. Approximately 143 classmates, family and former teachers attended.

Brian Ledahl and Nate Clark both traveled the farthest from California to join their classmates. The class wishes to thank everyone involved in making this event a huge success. This was the first reunion for the class of 89 but it won't be the last.

IST Lt Aaron Sulak of the United States Army was home on a 2-week leave, visiting his mother, Nancy Donaldson and family here. A 2002 graduate of Boyne City High School, Aaron continued his education at Grand Valley State, which included the Officer's Training Program. Returning to duty at Fort Leonardwood, GA, he will be deployed to Iraq.

Friends from the BC1HS class of 1958 met for dinner at Brann's Steakhouse in Grand Rapids on Wednesday, June 24. The whole gang was present after a long winter and busy spring. Present was Bob & Kathy Christensen, Fred & Kns (Rouse) Shassberg, Jerry & Nancy Green, Carol (Reinhardt) Heffington, Nelda (Kindy) Stanley, and Paul & Judy (Gunderson) BCHS class of 1960 Cobb. It was good to see everybody again. Next month's dinner will be at the Corner Bar in Rockford on July 22.

If you're in the area, join us for one of the world famous Corner Bar hot dogs!

Merle and Mary Carson attended the graduation party of their twin grandchildren in Grand Blanc, Morgan Ryan Pantillo, on June 20. They also had a great time on Sunday at daughter Karen's, enjoying a Fathers Day BBQ & a pool party. They stayed till Monday to get a visit in with Grandson, Chris Lang before he returned to Charleston, S.C.

Louise and Debbie Matejko are excited that their daughter Angela and her family are moving back to Boyne City from Georgia next Monday.

CWO Kevin Crandall has been home from Iraq for a well-deserved two-week visit with his family.

Charlotte Gregory of Arkansas, cousin Florence Griffin of Scottsville, Alabama, and brother Art Clark of Pellston, were visitors this past week of Leona Burrows at Deer Meadows.

The Hallman's of Boyne City went to Starved Rock, 80 miles west of Chicago, to join other families from Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio, Boyne Falls, Petoskey and St. Joseph, Michigan, for fun time family reunion.

A warm "Welcome Neighbor" goes out to Steve Sage who moved into Deer Meadows over the weekend. The same sentiments go out to Walter Charon, a new resident at Litzenger Place.

Edna May happily hosted the annual Northup family reunion potluck picnic party on the beautiful 4 of July. All 5 of her children, grandchildren, great grand's, a niece, her husband, son in law and their grandchildren and family pets, and friends all came in from Germany, Florida, Ohio, Indiana, Midland, Sterling Heights, Alto, Clare, Marshall, Boyne Falls and Boyne City.

Two brothers told the same rare sight story that happened early that morning.

Both brothers had spotted a wolf at the edge of the woods, right where a deer had been just before that.

Hopefully, the deer got away, as they both shot back into the woods. Many were able to stay for the awesome fireworks display seen from the deck. A "Best" in a long time family day it was!

The BCHS All School Reunion on July 3 was a great success.

In spite of Friday's cooler weather and the huge crowds at the carnival and flea market, many faithful alumni gathered at the pavilion.

Midie White Ackland represented the class of 1939 and it was Wayne Avery of Kansas City, MO for the class of 1990. It is good to see this event growing each year, thanks to Ann Parks, Bunny Garlock and the rest of the committee.

Paula and Wayne Avery was here from Kansas City, Mo. visiting with parents Bill and Jeanette Avery and sister Deana for the holiday weekend.

Wayne arrived the weekend before, in time to run in the Charlevoix Marathon, and then also ran in the Boyne City 4th of July Run.

Scott Sutliff and Dan Baer of Berkeley, Calif., was here for a couple of weeks over the fourth visiting his parents, the Oral Sutliff's.

On Sunday, July 5, the Sutliff's hosted a cookout for 25 or more family and friends.

Everyone enjoyed the great weather, and some cousins met their cousins they had not seen since they were young kids—

How time flies.

Both sons, Gary and David Gimm of Lansing, their families and friends, about 14 people altogether, spent the wonderful fourth of July with mom and grandma Jean Gimm.

The monsters are coming...to a theater near you

What would you do if Frankenstein, the Mummy and Wolfman moved into your neighborhood?

Charlevoix's amateur movie-making group hopes you'll come out and see when they unveil their second feature-length movie for two showings during Venetian Week.

"This story is about a group of monsters that move into the neighborhood and find they're not exactly welcome," said co-producer Matt Smith.

The comedy, entitled "Monsterhood," follows the troupe's self-described campy sendoff of action movie spoofs with a new take on 1950s horror movies.

"We got inspiration from the Monster Squad movie and just wanted to do something with the classic monsters," Smith said.

Fans of Dracula, don't despair, he plays one of the bad

George Scholey as "William" in the local film maker's new movie "Monsterhood."

guys. "He (Dracula) plays a bumbling bad guy who is trying to catch up with Frankenstein because in one of the original Dracula movies he was created to be his ultimate killing machine and he wants him back," said director of photography and editing George Scholey who also plays a retired marine named William who desperately wants the monsters out of his 1950s Charlevoix neighborhood.

Monsterhood utilizes a smaller cast of characters, but Scholey said the movie required more work due to the special effects.

"Mine probably took an hour," said Smith of his make-up and latex pieces called "appliances." "Getting the appliance on is fine, but makeup itself took quite a bit because you have to work it into the hairline and blend it well."

The cast includes The Mummy, Kevin Evans; Frankie/Dr. Frankenstein, Keith Patrick; Wolfie, Matt "Boots" Smith; Drac, Ben

Macks; Larry, Scott Barta; Zoe, Kaitlin Loviska; Sheriff, Mike Patrick; Deputy Daniels, John Heise; Henry, Jim Sheppard; Francine, Laura Borths; Buzz, Nate Bartlett; and Beatrice played by Jessica Dominic.

The movie will be shown at 2 p.m. on Saturday July 25 and Sunday July 26 at Charlevoix Cinema III. Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for children younger than 12.

See a teaser of the movie at <http://www.myspace.com/monsterhood>.

Smith said the cast and crew couldn't have made the movie without help from a local home interior store where the bulk of the interior scenes were shot.

"Absolutely this movie wouldn't have been made without Bartlett's," he said. "We were thinking how we were going to set up like 1950s homes and you can't just go use somebody's house and decorate it and keep it like that for two months."

The movie was written by Macks who plays Drac the vampire.

Past perfection

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
PAST PERFECT

When Jerry Balch saw an ad for the body of a 1955 Chevy Bel Air on a Midland flea market bulletin board in 2002, he was interested enough to drive down to Grand Rapids to take a look.

"It was just the body - that's it," he said. "And it was painted red."

But Balch had a history with that particular make and model.

"I had another '55 Bel Air 30 years ago," he said. "I drag raced it just about every Sunday in Kalava."

The renovation promised to be a lengthy project, but Balch was smitten. His wife Joanie encouraged him to buy it, and that decided the matter.

It took five years to restore the shell to a mid-century masterpiece. Balch dismantled, sanded down to the metal and primed all of the pieces individually.

A lot more sanding was required to bring back a showroom shine to the original stainless steel bumpers. The flashy two-tone paint is a deep fedora pearl and cream.

"That cream is an original '55 color," said Balch. "The other is a 2001 Chevy truck color called Storm Grey."

Other than the body, everything else on the car is new.

The model's original bench seat was replaced with leather-wrapped buckets and Balch installed a Billet steering wheel on an idditi steering column and LED lights. But the headlight dimmer is still the original metal step-switch on the driver's side floorboard.

"I have a friend in Bayshore who helped a lot with the restoration," said Balch. "It was up on a chair tranny for a long time."

Joanie and Jerry Balch are two of the founding members of the Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club.

Their 1955 Chevy Bel Air will be displayed July 18 in East Park during the club's seventeenth annual car show.

Balch's interest in classic road machines began in high school. He has rebuilt "probably a dozen, or so" vintage cars. His current project is another Chevy Bel Air - a 1962 bubble top.

"It's the car in the Beach Boys' song," said Balch, explaining that the model was named for its huge 409 cubic-inch engine.

An ode to the dual-quad Chevrolet, "409" topped the charts in 1962.

The gunning growl heard on the recording is said to be a friend's souped up 409 captured on a hand-held tape recorder in singer/songwriter Brian Wilson's driveway.

Balch acknowledged that his hobby has gained momentum over the years. He currently has "a couple of pole barns" of vintage cars that he hopes to restore.

During the interview his wife slid behind the wheel of the '55 Bel Air, closed the door with a solid, satisfying chunk, and turned the key in the ignition. At the throaty rumble of the engine, Balch closed his eyes for a moment and grinned.

"It gets so the more you do, the more you want to do," he said.

OBITUARIES

Catherine May Lord: June 15, 1918 - July 11, 2009

Catherine May Lord, 91, of Norwood, died Saturday, July 11, 2009 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

She was born June 15, 1918 in Charlevoix, the daughter of William and Kate (Van Dusen) Lord.

On May 8, 1937, she married Stanley Lord in East Jordan. They lived in Lansing for four years before making their home in Norwood.

Catherine was a homemaker who enjoyed cooking, canning, and baking. She also enjoyed knitting, crocheting, and quilting. She was a loving mother and grandmother, Sunday School teacher, and 4-H leader. She was a member of Norwood United Methodist Church, Norwood Historical Society, and Norwood Area Knitting Club.

Surviving are her daughter-in-law Nancy Lord (Jack) Vanniman of Central Lake; grandchildren Kate Lord and fiancé Stephen Parfitt of Elk Rapids;

Jesse Lord and friend

Stephanie Gilbert of Lake Ann; step-grandchildren Carl (Stephanie) Vanniman of Central Lake, Neil (Jen) Vanniman of Brighton; step-great-grandchildren Finch and Kaitlyn Vanniman; nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her son Michael Lord in 1996, her husband Stanley in 2000, sisters Hazel Publow, Frances Wolter, infant Ruth Richardson, Marjorie Baumbach, and brother Martin Richardson.

Friends may call from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth on Monday, July 13.

The funeral service was held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, July 14, at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church with the Rev. Chris Wallace officiating. Burial will be in Norwood Cemetery.

For those wishing to make memorial contributions, the family suggests Good Samaritan Family Services in Ellsworth or the Norwood Historical Society.

DEATH NOTICE

Burton M. Orvis: Died June 10, 2009

Burton M. Orvis, 72, of Flint, and formerly of Charlevoix, died Friday, June 10, 2009, in Flint.

A graveside service will be 11 a.m., Wednesday, July 15, at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Todd Thompson of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church will officiate.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is in charge of arrangements.

Volunteers needed

Hospice of Northwest Michigan in partnership with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, which serves Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet counties, is looking for caring and compassionate individuals who would like to join its family of hospice volunteers.

Hospice will be conducting a volunteer training program starting on Monday, July 20.

The session will run for four weeks, meeting from 10 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays. The classes will be conducted at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, 220 West Garfield St. in Charlevoix.

The first session will give an overview of hospice, and the admission process to the hospice program. Each session will deal with a different aspect of training — grief and bereavement, spiritual care, communication skills, understanding the family, care and comfort measures, and ethical issues.

Hospice volunteers provide a variety of services — including respite care to the terminally ill and their family. Anyone who has been a caregiver knows how important it is to have some time for themselves — and our hospice volunteers provide this very needed help by staying at the home so the caregiver can get away, or just rest.

Volunteers provide much help, whether it is with patients, in the office, or helping with fundraising — they are truly the cement of the hospice program and make it possible.

Basic requirements are must be 18 years of age, had no significant loss in the past year, willing to make a commitment to the Hospice Program, complete the Hospice Basic Training Program, and willing to submit to background check and drug screening.

Call Hospice of Northwest Michigan office (547-7748) if you are interested in becoming a volunteer.

LETTERS to the editor

Charlevoix/Emmet Pink Ribbon Ride

Editor:

The 7th Annual Charlevoix/Emmet County Pink Ribbon Ride was held on Saturday, June 20, 2009.

The possibility of rain may have deterred some, but we still had 205 participants show up and help us raise $28,491. This is overwhelming considering the state of our economy. This money will provide both the Circle of Strength through Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Regional Hospital's Breast Health Fund with a substantial donation to help promote awareness, fund programs in early detection and education, provide support for women and their families, and make available mammograms and ultrasounds for under and uninsured women in Charlevoix and Emmet County.

In the past year these groups have provided mammograms to 61 women, with 12 of them receiving ultrasounds and MRI's. Additionally four women were able to get diagnostic biopsies. This was accomplished without the stress and worry of how they were going to pay for it. In these uncertain times when everyone is cutting back and downsizing, it is comforting to know there is somewhere to turn.

This year our top fundraiser was Karla Stokel of Petoskey, who won the Trek Cruiser Classic donated by Bo Mayfield at North Country Cycle Sport. We had some terrific prizes again this year and the riders themselves brought in more than $17,000.

I extend my personal thanks to so many of the businesses in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Petoskey, without whom we could not have put together this ride. Their donations of funds, goods and services, especially in this economy, make it possible for us to put on this event and keep our expenses to a minimum year after year. I would like to single out four businesses, North Country Cycle Sport, BC Pizza and Bikes, Cycling Center of Boyne City and Revolution Bike of Charlevoix for their unwavering support of this event. Also a special thanks to Angie and the crew at Charlevoix Screen Masters and Mark from Signs, Letters and Graphics in East Jordan — you always come through for us.

Finally I extend my deepest thanks to Kathy Jacobson from Charlevoix Area Hospital and Therese Green from Northern Michigan Regional Hospital; Kim Stevens, Dee Vincent, Gay Pung and Kay Holley from the Circle of Strength; Diane Gorkiewicz, Candy Greene, Helen Truchan, Missy Elder, Kim and Jessie Corp, Rod Stevens, Bob Roloff and staff, Bo Mayfield, Michelle Rick-Biddick, John McCloy, Cheryl Hofweber, Terri Reynolds, Pat McNulty, Paul Nicholls, Bonnie Brunett, Mary Siegwart, Lori Cheadle, Kathy McDonald's family, as well as my family, especially my husband Bill and my daughters-in-law, Kendra and Melanie. Our success is due to their steadfast belief in what we are trying to accomplish — that is that early detection saves lives and providing the funds to help make it so.

I hope you will join us for next year's Pink Ribbon Ride on Saturday, June 19, 2010.

Event Chairperson

There needs to be rules

Editor:

As a summer resident, boater, dad, son, I would like to comment on the timing of the fountain operation.

I always understood that the fountain was for the kids to enjoy. Certainly there needs to be rules but if the boaters can't stand the noise of kids laughing and splashing for a few hours than maybe make those few spaces only for short term shoppers docks. I am sure the city council can find a way to balance the schedules so it is fair to all. My vote is for the families and the kids. By the way mine are all grown up.

Support Venetian
Editor:
The 79th Venetian Festival is here and if you are one of the many who enjoy it, we need your support very much.

The costs associated with the event are $250,000.

The four largest expenses are fireworks, insurance, kid's day and music, most of which have no practical way to charge admission.

Some may not realize that, unlike the Cherry Festival and others, the Venetian Festival is organized and managed by an all volunteer group of people.

Venetian is not run by the city or chamber, even though both contribute in many ways as do the surrounding townships.

We are acutely aware of our tough economic times, however, if those who do enjoy and participate in Venetian could just give $25 to $100 for a week's worth of entertainment for the entire family, we would not have to beg others for thousands.

For those that are able, we need you to contribute a reasonable amount for your family circumstances.

For those unable this year, you are always welcome to enjoy all events, and hopefully you will find yourself in a position to contribute next year.

We have all seen articles in the paper explaining that communities three times the size of Charlevoix could not raise one-tenth of our budget for their Fourth of July fireworks. Our insurance alone is more than what they could not raise.

I think that speaks volumes about the kind of support this small town shows.

Please send your donation today to Venetian Festival, P.O. Box 120, Charlevoix, MI 49720, so we are not forced to make significant cutbacks to our 79th Venetian Festival.

Venetian has become a homecoming for the entire community and we need your support to make sure the tradition continues.

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club hosts a "Cruise to the Fountain" from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 18, in East Park.

This is the club's 17th annual car show—a summer highlight for car enthusiasts throughout the state, with all proceeds donated to local charities and non-profit groups.

"Seventeen years ago my neighbor kept bugging me about how we ought to start a car club," Sheriff Don Schneider said. "I told him, 'so start one.' What he meant was that he wanted me to do it."

Schneider and several others with an appreciation for memorable road machines did just that with his 2006 red Corvette.

Since their inception in the summer of 1992, the club has raised more than $80,000 to return to the community.

In 1996, they added a high school scholarship fund. The amount has grown from $500 to $2,000, and is awarded to further the education of a deserving student of auto mechanics.

Launching the festivities is the Friday Night Cruise-In.

Live music from The Fabulous Oldies but Goodies Rock and Roll Band plays finger-popping favorites from the 50s and 60s from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on July 17 in East Park.

The crème-de-la-crème of meticulously restored classic cars is augmented by an all-day lineup of entertainment including music, limbo, hula hoop and bubble gum blowing contests, 50/50 drawings and door prizes.

At 3 p.m. there will be a live auction of items donated by local businesses.

Proceeds from the auction are donated to Camp Quality, benefiting children with cancer. Awards are presented to participants in more than 30 categories, from Diamond in the Rough to Best in Show.

A People's Choice award honors the car receiving the majority of votes from the spectators.

The deadline to cast a ballot is 2 p.m.

Admission is free to the public. Cars may be registered on the day of the show from 9 a.m. to noon.

There is a $15 fee and all participants receive a goody bag and a dash plaque.

9th Annual Helen Open

The Helen Open Steering Committee and Hospice of Northwest Michigan are pleased to announce the 2009 Helen Open, the ninth annual golfing event which is held in honor of Helen Weislik.

Last year, community support of this event helped the "smallest little tournament" in town raise another $19,000, bringing the total raised and donated to Hospice of Northwest Michigan in memory of Helen Weislik to almost $100,000.

For those who may not be familiar with this event, the Weislik family has owned the townhouse bar for over 45 years, and this tournament was established as a lasting tribute to Helen Weislik, who dispensed spirited advice as freely as she dispensed spirits.

Several generations of Charlevoixans have benefited from Helen's caring and commitment to the community.

In keeping with her dedication, the proceeds from the 2009 Open will again be directed to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, to support the tremendous services they provide to area residents. The proceeds from this tournament stay in Charlevoix County!

Although the teams have been filled, there is still time to support the cause by sponsoring a hole.

Donations of as little as $20 go a long way toward the support of this cause.

Hole sponsorships are available in $50 and $100 increments.

Donations in excess of $50 will be acknowledged with complimentary drink tickets at the Townhouse.

This year's Helen Open will be on Sunday, Aug. 16 at the Charlevoix municipal course.

Signs with donor names will again be printed and placed on the course, and every donor will be acknowledged in the printed program.

A bratwurst picnic will be available on tournament day for a donation of $10 per person—advance tickets will be available at the Townhouse.

An auction will be held and everyone is invited to attend and bid on their favorite items.

For further information call Ron Weislik at 547-6690 or Cheri Hoffman at 547-4578.

Still time for adventure at Camp McSauba

Camp McSauba started in 1976 as a day camp and is run by the City of Charlevoix Recreation Department on the 80-acre natural setting of Mt. McSauba Recreational Area.

The camp provides local and vacationing boys and girls with a quality program which offers the camping experience at a reasonable cost.

Camp McSauba is geared to provide each camper with new experiences.

Camper try their hand at archery, BB gunnery, field sports, campfire programs, sand castle building, swimming, arts and crafts and many other activities.

Children also get to experience the camaraderie that camping establishes.

Several day-to-day activities are scheduled by the campers and their counselors on a small group level to encourage participation and decision making by all involved.

At the overnight, the kids enjoy roasting hot dogs around the fire.

The younger kids make s'mores and the older kids have the option of visiting the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Then it's time to settle in their sleeping bags and dream about the pancake breakfast rustled up by the Counselor's on Friday morning.

After the kids pack up and find their lost items, every child receives an award at the Awards Ceremony held at 11 a.m. with friends and family to appreciate their accomplishments.

The counselors work hard to provide many activities and adventures for the children and weekly themes that appeal to kids are planned.

Still on tap for the season are "Fun Factor", "Aloha" Camp Hawaii, "Camp Olympics" and a camp favorite, "Wacky Week."

Most sessions are five days, from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Mondays to Wednesdays, 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Thursday through Friday, with Thursday the overnight.

A limited number of scholarships are available to allow area children the opportunity to attend camp despite financial hardship.

Camp cost is $85 per week with Before and After Care an additional $30 per week.

If you would like to register for camp or inquire about scholarships, please contact the Charlevoix Recreation Department at 547-3253 or visit the "parks and recreation" link at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Sports a passion for 'Dean' of Venetian Games

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

After a lengthy career as an athletic director, coach and teacher, Dean Davenport has turned his energy and enthusiasm for sports loose on Venetian.

Once merely two events, the Venetian Games line-up now boasts everything from sailing and basketball to croquet, golf and an elite one-mile footrace for thousands of dollars in cash prizes.

"The City of Charlevoix was revamping and trying to decide whether to have the Venetian Festival or not because of the firework tragedy," Davenport said. "They had several forums and community talks that were well attended and it was evident to me that Venetian was critically important to people—if they lived here, their family and friends came back to visit; if they moved away, they would come back to see friends."

While Davenport was focusing on the discussions he was asked to join the Venetian Festival Board of Directors.

"I thought, 'What can I do? What can I bring to the table?' and then it dawned on me with my athletic background, why not start the Venetian Games," he said. "They were already doing several events anyway: the annual Venetian road race and the three-on-three basketball, so I just started with those two and we've built it now to 13 or 14 sports."

Dean Davenport (pictured left), the "Dean" of the Venetian Festival Games, is seen here working on the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program he started more than a decade ago. Davenport is an integral part in the success of the Venetian Games from two events back in the 1990s to more than a dozen today.

Davenport added, "Now it's a week-long athletic contest with tennis, soccer, golf and blades, bikes and boards, a new event this year."

Highlights of the individual events include golf, tennis, the Drenth footrace, swimming, a basketball clinic and the events at the skatepark.

The "Venetian Jam: Bikes, Boards, and Blades" begins with $10 registration at 2 p.m. for participants on Monday, July 20 at the city skatepark.

Competition begins at 4 p.m. Audience admission is $5. Prizes will be awarded to the best skaters and cyclists.

Call Laura Siebe at (231) 675-4505 for more information.

The annual basketball clinic taught by staff of the Detroit Pistons and Shock is scheduled for Friday, July 24.

The cost is $15 for pre-registration and $20 on-site. Entrants will receive a team T-shirt and souvenirs.

The clinic will be preceded on July 23 with a basketball shoot-out court for prizes.

Call 547-3872 or 547-0982 for times.

Swimmers of all ages can participate at 3 p.m. on July 22 at the community pool.

Call 547-0982 for more information on registration and fees.

On the morning of July 25, racers will line up for the Jeff Drenth Memorial Footrace. There will be 10 kilometer, five kilometer and one-mile races.

Register ahead of time at www.venetianraces.com or from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on July 24 or 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. on July 25 at Lake Michigan Beach.

Later that day the Ryan Shay Mile in downtown Charlevoix will feature some of the nation's top runners in an invitation-only race.

Those enrolled in the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program will see who the true champion is on July 14, and finals for the week-long tennis tournament are July 23.

"When I retired, friends talked me into starting this junior golf program ... and I said I would do that for two years," Davenport said. "Well, it's my 15th summer and I've just gotten so much enjoyment out of helping young kids learn the sport of golf."

He added, "We do a lot of stressing of honesty and patience, cooperation, competitiveness—all the things that make a good person. I've found that you can teach that stuff better through golf than anything else."

For more information about these or any of the Venetian Festival games and events, call Venetian Headquarters 547-3872.

Call the city recreation office at 547-3253 for games related questions only.

Davenport said the Venetian Games are an important part of the week-long festival which graces the place he was born and raised.

"The excitement and good feeling that goes along with making people happy and getting them to participate in recreation is a way for me to pay back the debt I feel (because) Charlevoix provided me ... with so many good memories," he said.

Men's slow pitch leagues

Regardless of age, profession or ability, for some, the crack of the bat or the pop of the mitt is a thrill that will never fade.

For those people, that excitement can continue as long as a bat can be swung and a trot around the bases can be completed, thanks to summer softball leagues.

"It's a place to go," said Denny Kruzel, president of the Boyne City men's slow pitch league. "It's not the major leagues, but it's still entertainment for everybody."

In Charlevoix, the men's slow pitch league began the week of Memorial Day and will continue until Aug. 5, with a break during Venetian week and a double elimination tournament starting on July 28.

Some teams may play past Aug. 5 in invitational tournaments as well.

Recreation Director Ike Boss said teams may have as many players per team as they wish, with some having as few as ten, and some having as many as 20.

Because of that, Boss said there was a special rule made.

"We have a rule that if there are 12 or 13 (players), they can all bat and switch back and forth in the field," said Boss.

To speed up the game, every batter comes to the plate with a ball and a strike already, which Boss said gets people swinging and cuts down on waiting for the "perfect pitch."

Because of the new rule, a game can be easily played in 50 minutes, which allows for more games in an evening.

Almost any age is open to join these leagues, with ages ranging from teenagers to men in their 60s.

The eight-team league meets for games at 6:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, at the ball fields on Carpenter Street, by the airport in Charlevoix.

In Boyne City, their slow pitch league is at nine teams this year, up from seven last year.

Kruzel said the teams began play in early June and will continue until the second week of August.

Much like Charlevoix, Boyne City has a wide range of ages, with players in their teens all the way into their 60's as well, though Kruzel said the majority of players are between 25 and 40 years.

He also said teams are usually 13 or 14 players deep, mainly to ensure there are always enough players per team to take the field on a given night.

"There's always a guy or two that has something (going on)," said Kruzel. He said since it is summer, players have vacations planned or other activities that may conflict with games, so the few extra players per team is a good safety net.

Kruzel also said despite varying records in the league, any of the teams have a chance to win when they hit the field.

"The top teams are pretty competitive with each other, and the lower have played a lot of close games. We've had a lot of real good close games," he said.

Teams play at 6:30 p.m., 7:45 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings in Rotary Park, with a church league playing on Tuesday nights.

Kruzel also said Ellsworth

For several years, environmental work has been underway at Resort Township's East Park to address problems left behind from the old cement plant that used to operate along the Lake Michigan shore. That work has been successful and one of America's most beautiful public parks is again open. Thanks to all who helped make it happen!

tration for health occupation at a dentist office and fell in love with it. A long run goal is to make sure I go out and see the world, meet a lot of people, and just experience life. I don't want to miss out on anything."

Hillary Lutz is the daughter of Jeff and Maria Lutz.

She plans on studying in the educational department at an undecided school.

Lutz also works with the St Mary youth group and plays clarinet in both the marching and concert bands.

"I think it's a great opportunity and I would be honored to be Miss Venetian Queen," she said.

Francesca Sardum is the daughter of Micki and Bob Williams.

She will attend Lake Superior State University where she will study pre-med.

Krista Pischner is the daughter of Michael and Amy Pischner.

She plans on going to nursing school at either Michigan State University or Aquinas College.

"I feel that I can represent Charlevoix very well since I've lived here my whole life and it seems like something fun to do," Pischner said.

Pischner is an athlete in cross country and track at Charlevoix High School in addition to playing flute and cymbals in marching band and concert band.

She wishes to stay successful and keep in touch with many family members and close friends.

Brooke Nemchak is the daughter of Mark and Laurie Nemchak.

She plans to go to college to pursue a Ph.D. in either environmental or forensic science.

Nemchak has been a Rayder athlete and will be a senior class co-president this coming school year.

"I've always wanted to run for Venetian Queen," she said. "It looks like a great opportunity and fun."

Erica Moses is the daughter of Genia and Tony Moses.

Erica will be a senior at Charlevoix High School next year.

"I want to go into interior design and I'll probably go to Northwestern (College) in Traverse City to get my basics done and then probably transfer to a bigger university," she said. "I've been in girl scouts for 11 years and I've always been like the shy, tomboy girl, but I do more stuff now and I know Charlevoix and I feel like I could represent it really well."

Three judges from outside Charlevoix County will evaluate this year's candidates based on two interviews and an informative speech.

The young women must also write a college-level essay which will be judged separately.

The coronation ceremony for Miss Venetian, 2009 will occur at 7 p.m. on Friday, July 24 in East Park.

Awards for Miss Congeniality and Scholastic Achievement will be presented in addition to the crowning of the queen.

The queen will receive an honorary scholarship and will represent Charlevoix over the next year by attending parades and events.

This year's winner will also be expected to organize the 2009 Venetian court and help run next year's competition.

If you would like to make a donation to the Venetian Queen scholarship fund, contact Diana Phillips at (231) 330-4675 or call the festival office at 547-9950.

Wednesdays on the Water

From 10 a.m. to noon on July 15, Valerie-Olinik Damstra will host a pleasant paddle through the peaceful waters of Susan Lake, one of the small "gem" lakes of Charlevoix County. Explore the beautiful quiet waters of the lake as well as potentially observe the bald eagle and a variety of other wildlife. From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on July 29, Kevin Cronk will host an Aquatic Invasive Species Driving Tour that will journey from Petoskey in a northeasterly direction to view and talk about the ecology and impacts of several of the more common aquatic species. You will also learn about management and control efforts.

On Aug. 5, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., take a tour of Little Traverse Bay by bicycle. Starting at Spring Lake Park, a six-mile ride will take us across a major watershed divide, through geologic shoreline formations, and into a discussion of water quality and watershed protection as we pass the largest urban area on the Bay, and end at the newly re-opened East Park near Bay Harbor. The hardy riders can return along the same route, but we will have a truck available to transport those who do not wish to pedal back. You will need your own bike and bike helmet. Tours are $20 for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council members and $25 for non-members. Pre-registration is required for all tours. Trips are limited to 15 people. For more information or to reserve your spot on the tour, please call 347-1181 or stop by the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council office at 426 Bay Street, downtown Petoskey, across from the Perry Hotel.

Board hears animal control, grant application

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during their July 8 meeting.

Item: Animal control ordinance.

In brief: Commissioners considered the finalized version of the updated animal control ordinance with minor language changes from the previous ordinance during a public hearing as required by law.

Board action: Updated ordinance adopted unanimously.

Item: Approve payment of monthly bills.

In brief: Expenditures for the previous month were $1,152,719.68.

Board action: Unanimously approved.

Item: Grant application.

In brief: Charlevoix Sheriff Department request to apply for tribal grant in the amount of $5,000 to be used for infant/child safety seats, drug screening kits and prescription drug abuse diversion.

Board action: Unanimously approved.

Item: Grant application.

In brief: Community corrections seeks to apply for a grant of $63,811 for monitoring systems, community service and Harbor Hall drug abuse treatment center.

Board action: Unanimously approved.

Item: Grandvue transfer of operating funds.

In brief: Bill-paying measure to transfer $39,829.93 from the Grandvue capital depreciation fund to the operating account to purchase a truck at $21,009.95 and a washer/extractor at $18,819.98.

Board action: Unanimously approved.

Item: Opposition to SJR-H.

In brief: Commissioners opposed a senate joint resolution which would lower the tax burden on certain homeowners and potentially shift the tax burden citing, "the reduced revenue to local taxing authorities will likely result in reduced services, increased millage rates or both, which will exacerbate the shift in the relative tax burden."

Board action: Unanimously opposed SJR-H.

What's next for schools

FUNDS

Biddle said the stimulus funds were supposed to help cover shortfalls in state budgets through 2009-2010, but that that money is being used at a much faster rate than anticipated.

"There is a finite amount of stimulus money and we're hearing (state) revenue's not going to be enough," she said.

Officials from neither schools will know how much funding they have to work with until the state sets its budget later this fall—and that number can always change depending upon economic conditions in the state.

"We passed a budget last month for 2009-2010 with a deficit of about $800,000," Janik said. "We can do that for one year, but when it comes time for 2010-2011 we don't have that option again."

Bailey said his school must also plan for the worst in coming years.

"I'm meeting with our administrators and board members to brainstorm because we've got to come up with ways to reduce our costs," he said. "I was a new salary last year and this school may have to go back to part-time teachers doing those duties."

Bailey added, "We'll just have to wait for the other shoe to drop and see what the situation is."

Official Notice

NORTH COUNTRY COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH BOARD will hold its regularly scheduled monthly meeting on Thursday, July 16, 2009 at 4:30 p.m. in the Board Conference Room, Second Floor, One MacDonald Drive, Suite A, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Anyone who has special needs or information to be brought before the NCCMH Board should contact Joan Booth at (231)347-7890.

NCCMH is an equal opportunity employer/program. Reasonable accommodations will be provided upon notification or request. Auxiliary aids and services are available, upon request, to individuals with disabilities. This meeting is open to all members of the public under Michigan's Open Meetings Act.

Venetian Beach Bash

An exciting new Venetian event will be staged for the first time this year on Saturday, July 12, 2PM-9PM at Ferry Beach in conjunction with the Venetian 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament which has been moved to July 18th at Ferry Beach. Venetian will stage a Beach Bash for Venetian beach goers and boaters, which will include an AquaPaloza Boating Party and live concert of island music, performed from 3-3:30 p.m. on the Ferry Beach pier.

The Venetian Beach Bash will not only bring a fresh new entertainment offering to Charlevoix, but will also provide an important additional source of revenue to the Festival. The cost of the Venetian Beach Bash has been fully underwritten by new Venetian sponsors and Venetian will also realize the revenues from beverage and food concessions.

Public parking will be available at Ferry Beach, with additional public parking provided at the Charlevoix Street Department and boat trailer yards, at the nearby intersection of Stover Road and Ferry Avenue. Additional public parking will also be available at the Wojan Window and Door facilities on Stover Road. Such additional parking areas will be posted with public parking signage. Hope to see you at the Beach!

Friday Night Fireworks

In the midst of excitement surrounding the 2009 Venetian Festival, Venetian has been confronted with a serious challenge in staging one of its signature events, the Friday evening "Night Sky" fireworks display over Lake Charlevoix. Due to tough economic times, the community has been advised that Friday night fireworks will be cancelled unless sufficient contributions are received to fund the same.

Charlevoix's response has been positive and supportive. Many members of the "Venetian Burgee Club," the community donation wing of Venetian fundraising, have maintained their customary level of Venetian sponsorship or have provided continued donations to the best of their ability. Numerous individuals have contributed to Venetian for the first time. Many others have increased their Venetian donations.

If the current trend should continue, Venetian may be in a position to proceed with Friday night fireworks. Immediate contributions are critical, however, as the Venetian Board only has seven more days to make this decision.

Giving resources back to our community is rewarding and is the true spirit of Venetian. We remain hopeful for a continued positive response, so that Charlevoix may enjoy another sensational Friday night fireworks display and the heartwarming sense of community pride in a job well done.

Men's slow pitch leagues

has a Friday night wooden bat league, which is fairly uncommon for summer softball leagues.

In East Jordan however, a lack of participants has resulted in the suspension of the men's summer softball league this year.

Ray Argetsinger, East Jordan's league president, said he was unfortunately forced to make the decision after a lack of response from last year's teams, along with one team's decision to move to a Petoskey league.

He said it is partly the result of many players having families and wanting to be at their children's games, but not having the time to play in their own games at the same time.

"Seven or eight years ago we had a few teams, but when (the players) get older, they have children getting into baseball and soccer and football at the end of the summer, so they're dropping out because they have children playing," said Argetsinger.

East Jordan does have a nine-team women's league though.

Kelly Woodard, president of the women's league, said despite having four fewer teams than last year, the league still has a lot of community involvement.

The women's league runs through Aug. 24, and there is also a Sunday co-ed slow pitch league in East Jordan as well.

Argetsinger said despite the cancellation of this year's men's fast pitch league, he is working on developing a co-ed fast pitch league in East Jordan next year.

He said he has had positive responses from the women's league as well as other people he has talked to.

For anyone interested in an East Jordan co-ed fast pitch league next year, contact Ray Argetsinger at 547-9626.
